COURT HOLDS BUYER OF RUM NOT LIABLE; DRY PLANS SPEEDED

Man May Not Be Tried if Case Fails to Involve Transportation.

CONSPIRACY ISSUE JUDGMENT DECLINED

Action Involving Alleged Plot Found to Have Been Foreclosed.

PERMITS OF MAKERS ARE ALSO DEFENDED

Prohibition Chiefs Differ on Pressing Legislation to Catch Purchaser.

(Associated Press.)

The buyer of bootleg liquor was held by the Supreme Court yesterday not liable to prosecution as a violator of the prohibition laws if the question of illegal transportation and possession be not involved.

The court declined, however, in another case, to declare whether purchasers who, knowing illegal transportation will be involved, are guilty of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. It found that the case in which the Government had sought to raise that issue had been foreclosed by the plea, equivalent to one of guilty, which had been entered when the accused was arraigned.

In a third case, the court held manufacturers using liquor and alcohol in the preparation of a nonbeverage product were entitled to operate until their permits were canceled for some violation and could not be compelled annually to renew their permits

Defeats for Government.

The two cases decided on their merits were defeats for the Government, and all three decisions were without dissent.

James E. Farrar, of Boston, was indicted for purchasing liquor from a bootlegger. The Federal district court for Massachusetts quashed the indictment, taking the position that the prohibition law did not, as the Government had contended, make the purchaser equally guilty with the seller.

The Government appealed directly to the Supreme Court, which, in an opinion by Justice Sutherland, declared the contention that any purchase without a permit was illegal could not be sustained. The court pointed out that the permit related to that class of persons who are authorized to deal with intoxicating liquors for nonbeverage purposes. Purchasers from bootleggers, it added, could not under any circumstances obtain a permit to make such purchases.

Express Provision Needed.

Justice Sutherland stated: "Since long before the adoption of the eighteenth (prohibition) amendment, it has been held with practical unanimity that, in the absence of an express statutory provision to the contrary, the purchaser of intoxicating liquor, the sale of which was prohibited, was guilty of no offense."

Suggesting that Congress may have considered it more important to make the purchaser available as a witness against the bootlegger, the court added it had failed to enact any specific legislation making the purchase of liquor illegal.

Asserting the Government for many years had not considered the purchaser guilty, the justice concluded that Congress in enacting the Volstead act had "deliberately and designedly omitted to impose upon the purchaser of liquor for beverage purposes any criminal liability."

Sustained by Appeals Court.

The second case was that of Alfred E. Norris, a New York banker, who was indicted for conspiracy with a Philadelphia bootlegger, from whom he frequently ordered liquor. When arraigned he entered a plea of "nolo contendre," intending to contest the question.

He sought to attack the judgment entered by the Federal District Court at Philadelphia, and was sustained by the circuit court of appeals, which took the broad ground that the purchase of liquor was no offense under the prohibition law.

The Supreme Court, in an opinion by Justice Sutherland, held the plea was equivalent to one of "guilty" and that the trial court had properly sentenced Norris. Under these circumstances it found there was no question open which would require it to rule whether the purchaser who orders knowing that illegal transportation was involved was guilty of conspiracy. Its action left that question for decision when a case can be found which presents the controversy in a form permitting a ruling on its merits.

The permit decision was in five cases, brought by the Government

Rum Purchase Ruling Divides Dry Leaders

Action of the Supreme Court in holding that the buyer of liquor is not equally guilty with the seller immediately evoked expressions of divergent opinion on the advisability of corective legislation on this point.

Senator Jones (Republican), Washington, author of the "five and ten" liquor law, said in view of the court's ruling that he seriously doubted the wisdom of any legislation seeking to make the buyer equally guilty.

Senator Shepard (Democrat), Texas, father of the eighteenth amendment, on the contrary, announced that he would press for immediate action on his pending bill to include liquor purchasers under the law, adding that "the decision emphasizes the reason for my amendment."

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman, in charge of prohibition enforcement, declared that "we've been going along on the theory that Congress did not intend to punish the buyer."

Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran asserted, "The decision of the courts will not in any way change our plans."

34 KILLED, 700 HURT AS RIOTS STIR INDIA

Rangoon Disorder Breaks Out as Striking Dock Hands Are Replaced.

POLICE CHARGE CROWDS

Bombay, May 26 (A.P.).—Bloody rioting in Rangoon, Bombay and Dacca today brought British authorities in India face to face with a serious situation in these three big cities of Burma and the Indian Peninsula.

The rioting at Rangoon, the most serious of the Bay, had no direct connection with the civil disobedience campaign of the Nationalists. It broke out between different bands of coolies, when laborers were imported to replace striking Burmese dock workers. The latest reports gave 26 dead and nearly 700 injured.

All bazaars were closed, and cavalcades of mounted police clattered through the streets in large patrols. Detachments of the Cameron Highlanders and the Punjab Regiment were on the alert and ready to intervene if necessary.

The rioters were brought under control by a vigorous display of force late in the day, but none of the officials could guarantee how long the relative calm would last.

In Dacca, an important city of Bengal, 150 miles northeast of Calcutta, Hindus and Moslems fiercely fought each other during the day. Six deaths were reported and many injuries. Scores of arrests were made throughout the city by the authorities.

The situation was still so serious tonight that the chairman of the district board telegraphed the Viceroy of India, Lord Irwin, for adequate police help "in order that the people may feel they are still living under the British government."

Communication with Dacca was extremely difficult, and has been so for House Committee Adopts Modified Program of Law Group.

ENFORCEMENT BILLS FAVORED AS CHANGED

Amendment to Jones Law Would Temper Act's Drastic Clauses.

QUICK PROSECUTION ONE MEASURE'S AIM

Arraignment on Complaint Without Jury Included in Provisions.

(Associated Press.)

A modified law enforcement commission program to expedite prohibition enforcement and relieve Federal court congestion by defining misdemeanors under the Jones law and authorizing their summary prosecution before United States commissioners was approved yesterday by the House judiciary committee.

After four months of deliberation the committee agreed on three bills designed to carry out the commission's recommendations. The measures were approved in a supplemental report submitted by Chairman George W. Wickersham, of the commission, and Attorney General Mitchell. However, the bills do not grant broad discretionary powers to district attorneys and United States commissioners as originally recommended in the report submitted to Congress in January by President Hoover.

The Stobbs bill to amend the Jones law to fix the maximum punishment for misdemeanor violations at six months imprisonment and a fine of $500 defines a misdemeanant as one who is not a habitual violator and who has in his possession, sells or transports not more than a gallon of liquor.

Would Amend U. S. Code.

The first of the other two bills by Representative Christopherson (Republican), of South Dakota, amends the United States Code, defining a felony as an offense which may call for punishment of not less than a year's imprisonment, and misdemeanors calling for a maximum penalty of six months in jail, a $500 fine, or both.

Under the second Christopherson bill, summary prosecution of offenses defined as misdemeanors under the Stobbs amendment and the first Christopherson amendment is authorized before United States Commissioners.

It authorizes prosecution by complaint or information without a jury, but sets out that a Federal judge must either confirm or disapprove the Commissioners' recommendations. Under it, the District Attorney can not refer an accused to the grand jury on a felony charge after he has entered a plea before a Commissioner. However, this measure would not affect the case of a violator who is bound over to the grand jury by the Commissioner.

Agreement Impossible Heretofore.

The judiciary committee had been unable to reach an agreement on the Commission's recommendations previously and Chairman Graham requested Chairman Wickersham for a supplemental report, noting that there "seemed to be a wide diversity

Estimates Submitted to Commissioners by Education Board.

PLANS PROVIDE FOR FIVE NEW BUILDINGS

JUNIOR HIGHS WOULD Cost $500,000 EACH

Library Expansion and More Teachers Proposed for Next Year.

Construction of three new elementary schools and two new junior high schools is provided for in the 1932 estimates submitted by the Board of Education to the District Commissioners.

Purchase of sites for a new senior, a new junior high school and three elementary schools as well as additions to six playgrounds and to an existing colored high school also is provided for in the estimates of the school authorities.

The estimates submitted the Commissioners total $14,829,780, which is $941,670 more than the $13,888,110 carried for schools in the pending District appropriation bill as it was reported to the Senate.

Of the total estimates, $3,083,000 is to provide for new buildings and $656,500 for additional sites, a combined building program total of $3,739,500 as compared with $3,693,200 carried in the pending bill as reported to the Senate.

New Buildings Provided.

The 1932 school estimates call for the purchase of ground for additions to the playgrounds at the Addison, Johnson, S. J. Bowen, Giddings, Jones and Ambush Schools; elementary school sites in the neighborhood of Foxhall road and Calvert street, in the vicinity of the Keane School, to replace that school with a new and larger one; a junior high school site somewhere in the vicinity of the Simmons School; a site for a four-room extensible elementary building to replace the site purchased on Bates road; a site for a new senior high school to be constructed north of Brightwood, and a site in the vicinity of the Armstrong High School.

New buildings provided for in the estimates include eight-room schools in the neighborhood of Connecticut avenue and Upton street and in Burleith or Glover Park at a cost of $200,000 each; a twelve-room addition to the Janney School to cost $200,000; eight-room addition to the Truesdell School, replacing the original Brightwood four-room school, to cost $140,000; construction of the contemplated second wing of Macfarland Junior High School, to cost $200,000; four-room addition to the Orr School, to cost $80,000; eight-room addition with gymnasium and assembly hall for the

BODIES OF TWO MISSED IN BOAT SINKING FOUND

Search for Third Still Unaccounted For to Go on Today.

SURVIVOR RECITES TERRIBLE ORDEAL

Hair of Man Turns Gray After 25 Hours Adrift in Potomac.

HE SANG AND PRAYED TO KEEP HIS SANITY

F. D. Klimkiewicz Believes Son Lost Life Trying to Find Him in Water.

Bodies of two of the three men missing since their speedboat overturned Saturday afternoon were taken from the Potomac River late yesterday, and naval aircraft, patrol boats and volunteers were preparing to renew the search for the third time this morning. Those recovered were identified as Richard DeSales Klimkiewicz, 17, of 132 Twelfth street northeast, and his brother-in-law, Owen D. Whitcomb, 33, of 5737 Thirteenth street northwest. The missing man is Capt. Arthur Fenwick, of Piney Point, Md., Maryland State oyster inspector.

Richard's father, Francis D. Klimkiewicz, 52, apparently the only surviving member of the party, yesterday told how he sang, prayer and counted numbers while drifting on a life preserver in the Potomac for 24 hours.

His speedboat sank in Saturday's squall off Cobb Island.

Young Klimkiewicz's body was discovered by a naval patrol boat floating off Swans Point. The other was found shortly afterward on the shore of Cobb Island by M. B. Miller, 1211 E street northeast, who owns a summer home near the island. Ring life preservers were on both bodies.

Father of 2-Year-old Son.

Mr. Whitcomb was the father of a 2-year-old son, James Francis Whitcomb. His body will be brought to Washington today. The body of young Klimkiewicz arrived in the city last night by airplane.

Mr. Klimkiewicz, who is unable to swim, drifted on the turbulent Potomac from 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon until 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. His hair—dark brown before his trying experience—was streaked with gray yesterday. He had two life preserver cushions, which he was forced to hold under his arms while the waves battered him around, and occasionally broke over his head.

"I thought for a time that I would go crazy," he said, "but death loses its sinister look when you stare it in the face for hours, and I soon composed myself. What did I think about? Everything. My whole life unfolded before me like a kaleidoscope I sang 'Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep,' several hymns and popular numbers, and I prayed for a time.

SENATE TO CONSIDER LONDON NAVAL PACT AT SPECIAL SESSION

Other Measures Will Be Disposed of During Regular Sitting.

COMMITTEE TO SEEK SECRET TREATY FILES

Assurances Given That Nation Will Be Told of Provisions.

MORE ADMIRALS PICK FLAWS IN DOCUMENT

Hughes, Nulton, Hough and Day Contribute Adverse Testimony in Hearing.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

With a special session for action on the naval treaty determined, the Senate foreign relations committee yesterday called upon Secretary Stimson to produce secret correspondence between the British and American governments which preceded Prime Minister MacDonald's visit last fall and resulted in the change of America's policy in cruiser building. The committee acted in executive session.

Senator Watson, Republican leader, found support for the President's suggestion of a special session and this procedure has accordingly been fixed. The program calls for clearing the decks of legislative matters like the tariff, rivers and harbors, &c., and making it possible for the House to adjourn. Then the task of disposing of the treaty can be undertaken without other considerations intervening.

Assurances have been given that undue haste will not be allowed to deprive the country of full opportunity to thoroughly understand provisions of the treaty before the Senate finally acts.

More Adverse Testimony.

Testimony of naval officers before the foreign relations committee was more pronouncedly adverse to the treaty yesterday than at any time before the President announced his special session plan. Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of naval operations and ex-officio president of the general board; Admiral L. M. Nulton, recently in command of the fleet and former superintendent of the Naval Academy; Admiral H. H. Hough, Admiral George C. Day and Capt. Alfred W. Johnson were witnesses.

Capt. Johnson, director of naval intelligence, admitted that the purpose of America's cruiser program was destroyed by the treaty and that unwarranted concessions were made to Great Britain and Japan.

"I believe the United States wants a treaty very much," he said. "In this particular case we have made greater concessions by far than any other country. Because of our desire to get a treaty we have had to pay the price."

Views of Capt. Johnson.

Senator Johnson asked if jeopardizing the national defense was not too big a price to pay. The naval officer suggested that the hearings, developing defects in the pact, should perhaps have been held before rather than after the treaty was signed. The general board was kept advised until September 15 last, but was out of the picture from that time on, as members of the board were no longer consulted.

"That's all I know," remarked Capt. Johnson.

"Pretty nearly all it is necessary to know," replied Senator Johnson.

Capt. Johnson said America would never attain parity in the 8-inch-gun class of cruisers with Great Britain during the life of the treaty because Great Britain, up to a minute before midnight on December 31, 1936, could retain the cruisers Frobisher and Effingham and thereby have seventeen big cruisers to a maximum of sixteen for the United States.

There was a comedy element injected into the hearings by Capt. Johnson which brought a roar of Educator Here May Head Famous College in Baltimore.

Dr. David Allan Robertson, of 1869 Wyoming avenue northwest, assistant director of the American Council on Education and prominently identified with institutions of higher learning, has been called to the presidency of Goucher College, in Baltimore.

The announcement was made in that city yesterday by Edward L. Robinson, president of the colleges board of trustees, following its session at which Dr. Robertson received a unanimous vote for the post, vacated by the death in January of Dr. Hans Froelicher, who had been acting president since the deaeth last April of Dr. William Wesley Guth, head of the intsitution for sixteen years.

Dr. Robertson, upon receipt of the information, declared last night that he was gratified at the action of the college and that he would "give the matter the most careful consideration," although he added that he was unable to give a definite announcement of his plans.

Dr. Robertson has had a notable career in education. Born in Chicago, Ill., October 17, 1880, he was graduated in 1902 with the degree of bachelor of arts from the University of Chicago, where he remained in important work. He spent the

BILL ON RETIREMENT AWAITS HOOVER PEN

Report's Approval in Senate Completes Legislative Action on Measure.

HAILED BY U. S. WORKERS

A stroke of the pen by President Herbert Hoover is all that is needed now to give the Dale-Lehlbach retirement bill the status of a law.

The conference report on the measure was approved by the Senate yesterday afternoon. This completed congressional action on the bill, the House having approved the report previously.

The bill will go to the White House for President Hoover's signature as soon as it is engrossed, which should be today or tomorrow. That the Executive will sign it is a foregone conclusion, for it was he who sponsored the legislation.

The bill is the most important piece of civil service legislation that has been enacted since the Welch pay-raise act of 1928; in fact, to some it is more important than the Welch bill.

The bill liberalizes a retirement system that affects more than 400,000 employes in the Federal and District governments.

It permits optional retirement after 30 years' service and permits employes to retire two years earlier than at present. The largest group, the clerks and others who now are eligible for retirement at 70, for example, will be eligible at 68.

The bill will substantially increase the annuities paid the extremely low-paid employes and will remove the present limitation which sets $1,000 as the maximum annuity which an employe may receive. Under the new

$300,000 IN STOLEN JEWELS RECOVERED

Four Men and Woman Seized as Police Raid Hotel Room in New York.

WIDE PLOT IS SCENTED

(New York, May 26 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Four "ordinary-looking" men and a matronly woman, all middle aged, were captured in a dramatic raid on room No. 1985 in the Hotel Commodore today, as they were squabbling over the division of some $300,000 worth of diamonds which lay spread out before them on a bed. They had just grouped themselves in uncomfortable sitting positions about the double bed—although one man had hired the room three days previously—and had poured the 26 diamonds, rings and brooches out of a chamois bag when the policemen swung the door open.

And as Detective Lieut. Oliver and Detective Ryan, of headquarters, held the group at bay with drawn pistols, several special investigators for the Federal Insurance Co. scooped up the jewels, the greatest single recovery, according to detectives, ever made by the New York Police Department.

The raiders were a bit too slow for the lone woman, however. For as they dashed into the room she swallowed a small piece of paper, which police now believe would have been a clew to the "fence," or receiver of the stolen jewels.

The capture of the alleged diamond thieves, Police Commissioner Mulrooney revealed, is but a mere dent in the international ring which has been functioning since last fall in various fashionable summer resorts. The commissioner withheld further information about the gang, explain-

Representative Aids War Buddy in His Hour of Grief

Disabled Veteran Father of Girl, 4, Who Died of Burns.

Behind the funeral plans for Gloria Lee Brown, 4 years old, of 1347 F street northeast, who died in Providence Hospital yesterday morning from burns received while playing with matches is the story of how one war buddy came to the aid of another in distress.

George E. Brown, father of the fire victim, fought with Representative Royal Johnson, of South Dakota, when the latter was first lieutenant of Company D, 313th Infantry, in France. They were in the same shell hole when their heroic actions brought to both of them Distinguished Service and Croix de Guerre Medals.

Representative Johnson learned of Brown's sorrow yesterday and came to his aid. Brown is a disabled veteran and the helping hand offered by the representative came at an opportune time.

Representative Johnson would not verify the report that he was giving his buddy a helping hand.

"George was one of the finest soldier in the World War," he said. "I know he'll raise sufficient money to bury his child."

Business in Washington

By M. G. GIBBS,
President Peoples Drug Stores, Inc.

While there might be opposition to any unqualified declaration that economic conditions in general are above criticism, our own business shows an improvement in sales of 17 per cent during the first quarter this year over the corresponding period in 1929.

To accomplish this, we not only maintained our previous standards of activity, but expanded consistently. We retained our full personnel, and carried out all our plans for opening new stores, hiring such additional employes as such expansion necessitated. In addition, we increased our advertising program slightly.

The recent upset in the stock market undeniably was a severe blow when it struck, but it is my opinion that the net result will be beneficial, if for no other reason than that it has impressed upon business men and the public at large that attention to business can not be sacrificed for the stock ticker.

Although the depression naturally shattered the confidence of many, thus intensifying the situation, I feel that within the past two months most people have recovered from the first shock and now realize that the world is still revolving as usual.

With returning confidence, production is being resumed, so that the workingman is earning money which he, in turn, can spend and is spending to provide a market for still further resumption in other industries.

Overconfidence is, of course, to be avoided; I believe it was largely overconfidence that brought about the recent slump, conditions having developed to a point where the public no longer could carry the load so that something had to be done to relieve the situation.

But I feel that, having learned its lesson, the Nation now is in position to function along natural lines, gauging expenditures to meet requirements and finances, and avoiding both extremes of overbuying and of ultraconservatism.

With such a policy in operation, as seems to be the case at present, I can see no further cause for alarm in the economic outlook. I can not believe that the picture is as black as the pessimists have painted it, nor as bright as the optimists would have us believe, and I feel that it is better that way.

Aviatrix Breaks Own Mark, Executing 980 Inside Loops

Laura Ingalls, 25, Thrills Crowd at Muskogee Airport Opening.

Muskogee, Okla., May 26 (A.P.).—Miss Laura Ingalls, 25-year-old New York aviatrix, landed at 7:50 tonight after making 980 consecutive inside loops, breaking her own women's record by 636.

She was in the air 3 hours and 5 minutes.

Miss Ingalls at St. Louis recently set the record of 344 loops. Her new mark is within 453 loops of the accomplishment of Charles (Speed) Holman, who looped 1,433 times at Minneapolis March 17, 1928.

By a pre-flight agreement Miss Ingalls is scheduled to receive prize money of $836.

Her feat brought to a climax a day of aerial activities dedicating the $200,000 new Hatbox-Municipal Airport in which hundreds of Army and civilian fliers participated. Taking the air at 4:45, the New York aviatrix averaged more than five loops a minute.

More than 200 planes of all types and the United States Army dirigible TC-11 came to Muskogee for the dedication ceremonies. The dirigible arrived early in the day from Scott Field Ill., and will remain until Tuesday.

Army fliers were in the majority, leading the maneuvers under Maj. Gen. Charles E. James Fechet, commander of the Army air forces.

laughter from committee members and the audience alike.

Senator Reed was seeking to emphasize the fact that the Japanese delegation was being criticized in Japan.

"Is it not true that the Japanese delegation felt disappointed," the senator asked.

"If I may be allowed to say it," replied Capt. Johnson, "if the Japanese felt disappointed, I hate to think of how our delegation must have felt."

As Senator Reed was the American delegate who negotiated the agreement with Japan, the laugh was at his expense. Mr. Reed flushed deeply, but joined in the laughter.

Replies by Hughes.

Admiral Hughes replied categorically to questions concerning the pact.

"Do you approve of the general board's report," Senator Johnson asked.

"Thoroughly."

"Of the 8-inch or 6-inch gun, which is essential for our needs and our defense?"

"The 8-inch gun."

"Do you deem the maintenance of the 5-3 ratio with Japan necessary for our protection?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you consider increasing the Japanese ratio disadvantageous to America?"

"I consider it detrimental to the interests of this Government."

Nulton Also Opposes.

Admiral Nulton opposed, without reserve, the treaty program representing cruisers.

"I can not see," he said, "why the United States should have to ask any other power what ships she has the right to build." America, he maintained, should be free to build according to American needs just as Great Britain retains the right under the treaty to build according to British needs. On account of her merchant tonnage, which can mount 6-inch guns, it is obviously to Britain's advantage to force America to build 6-inch gun ships, the admiral added.

Admiral Hough opposed the treaty provisions and said Japan had agreed to accept the 5-3 ratio for cruisers and now is given a greater ratio, to the detriment of American interests.

Comment by Johnson.

Questions by Senator Reed again focussed Senator Johnson's attention on the fact that the senator from Pennsylvania was acting as judge of his work as delegate and the senator from California remarked that the line of questioning was bringing out "the great learning of the delegation at London—the magnificent thing they accomplished by getting Japan graciously to permit America to build ships."

Admiral Day said America's concession to Japan on submarines was to America's distinct disadvantage and the need for adequate defense of the Panama Canal was cited for the first time in this connection. The treaty imperils "our ultimate defense in case of trouble in the Pacific," he added.

Senator Swanson asked about the announcement by the United States Government that it favored abandonment of the submarine.

"So far as I know this was done without any consultation with the Navy," the admiral replied.

Submarine Clause Hit.

Admiral Day said the provision in the treaty respecting humanizing submarine warfare had been made meaningless by an unnecessary paragraph after the first paragraph had made the meaning clear.

This second paragraph curbs the submarine "except in case of persistent refusal to stop" on the part of the merchant ship, and the admiral said no one would be able to say what the word persistent meant, as the commander of the submarine and the captain of the merchant ship would each give it his own interpretation.

Admirals W. C. Cole and W. H. Standley testified yesterday before the naval affairs committee.

Ottawa House Passes London Naval Treaty

Ottawa, May 26 (A.P.).—The House of Commons today approved the London treaty for limitation of naval armaments. It now goes to the Senate. The favorable vote was on a motion of approval proposed by Premier MacKenzie King.

R. B. Bennett, leader of the opposition, made a mild attack on the treaty and its provisions, but concluded his address by saying he was pleased with anything which would make it more difficult for the taxpayer to contribute to cost of armament.

J. S. Woodsworth, labor member from Winnipeg, and William Irvine, member for Wetsaskiwin, doubted whether the London conference had been a success, but made no direct attack on the treaty.

$291,000 EXPENDED BY GRUNDY IN RACE

WETS GAVE OUT $200,000

(Associated Press.)

The Senate campaign funds investigating committee learned yesterday that Senator Grundy spent $291,000 of his own money in his unsuccessful race for the Pennsylvania Republican senatorial nomination while Secretary Davis, the winner, contributed $10,541 to his own campaign expenses.

The cost of the senatorial campaign of Francis H. Bohlen, who headed the wet ticket, including Thomas Phillips for governor, was placed at $200,000. The ticket ran third in the primary race of last week.

Robert L. Montgomery, treasurer for the wet ticket, testified that the National Association Against the Eighteenth Amendment, contributed $100,000 to this campaign. Mr. Bohlen told the senators he spent no money for his campaign, but did a lot of hard work which he would not do over again "in a thousand years."

$332,076 Campaign Cost.

The cost of the Grundy campaign was put at $332,076 by Thomas Bell, treasurer for the defeated senator. He said a campaign chest of $338,602 was collected and some bills remained to be paid.

The Senate investigators failed to get any definite idea of the cost of the Davis campaign. The Secretary had an alliance with Francis Shunk Brown, gubernatorial candidate, who was defeated by Gifford Pinchot for the Republican nomination.

Samuel Vauclain, treasurer of the Davis-Brown ticket, and treasurer of the Davis-Brown campaign committees in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, were ordered to submit early reports.

Questioned as to what he thought of the expenditure of $291,000 of his own money to seek a Senate seat and as to what he thought of limiting these expenses, Senator Grundy smiled and said he was against limitation.

Pinchot Success Cited.

"Has a poor man a ghost of a chance of being elected in Pennsylvania?" asked Chairman Nye.

Mr. Grundy replied he did not think Gifford Pinchot had spent much money in his successful race for governor.

Senators Dill (Democrat), Washington, and Wagner (Democrat), New York, examined Secretary Davis closely as to whether he had given any instructions to the Davis-Brown campaign managers about guarding against election irregularities. Mr. Davis said he had not taken any action other than to say he wanted "a clean, pure election."

Mr. Grundy said the great proportion of his money was spent for "Advertising and printing."

He said contributions were given to 30 of the 67 county organizations and that he had no alliance with any other State candidates. The other $47,000 given to his campaign was scattered over a number of contributors, he said.

Davis, Grundy Shake Hands.

Walking into the committee room as the hearing was about to open Mr. Davis and Mr. Grundy shook hands warmly. Mr. Bohlen sat beside Mr. Davis and waited his turn on the stand.

Chairman Nye withheld comment pending receipt of reports of the costs of the Davis-Brown ticket. He said the committee was ready to call in county organization heads, if necessary to determine the full amounts.

Mr. Davis said he conferred with William S. Vare, of Philadelphia, before announcing, and he understood he had the support of the Vare machine.

Mr. Klimkiewicz finally landed 25 miles from the point where his boat sank.

The Klimkiewicz family was prostrated when Richard's body was found. He was an excellent swimmer and was equipped with a ring life preserver. Mr. Klimkiewicz was confident that all members of the party had safely reached shore, but hope for Fenwick was virtually abandoned when it was established that Richard and Mr. Whitcomb were dead. The father kept repeating "Richard could not have drowned."

"I think that the boy swam himself to death, looking for me," he explained. "I waved for him to head toward shore, but soon lost sight of him in the high waves. He must have thought that I was sinking, and I believe that he exhausted himself looking for me."

Sister Faints at News.

Richard's sister, Miss Ethel Klimkiewicz, fainted when informed that her brother's body had been found. Sorrow hung like a pall over the household as neighbors came in to sympathize. Only little Mary Lucy, 8-month-old sister of Richard, was calm.

Young Klimkiewicz played football at Gonzaga High School and was proficient in other branches of sport, especially swimming. He is survived by his parents, three brothers and four sisters. The body was expected to arrive in Washington last night by airplane. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Naval planes and patrol boats were searching the Potomac yesterday for the other members of the party.

Pernambuco, Brazil, May 26 (A.P.). With nearly 8,000 miles of her historic tricontinental voyage completed, the Graf Zeppelin tonight nuzzled her mooring mast awaiting another 5,000-mile jaunt, northward to Havana.

Arriving here at 9:10 a. m. (7:10 a. m., Eastern standard time), the Graf today had made her bow to Rio de Janeiro and was being provisioned and refueled for her return across the Equator and the long flight up the South American coast. The Graf made an uneventful voyage down the coast to Rio and back, landing at Campo dos Affonsos Airfield in the Brazilian metropolis, where the party spent an hour without leaving the airship. They received numbers of visitors on board.

The return voyage began early Sunday. The craft passed over Victoria 1:15 p. m., and over the City of Bahia at 10:25 p. m., and maintained a steady pace to her mooring mast here throughout the night.

Great quantities of fresh provisions today were being taken aboard, together with other necessaries for the northward trip. The health of all passengers and crew was reported excellent. All have developed into first-class air sailors.

TARIFF CONFERENCE REPORT ROW LOOMS

Smoot to Explain Schedules Today; Data Sought on Foreign Protests.

FLEXIBLE PROVISION HIT

(Associated Press.)

Minus the export debenture amendment opposed by the administration and embracing a new flexible provision acceptable to President Hoover, the tariff bill conference report will be taken up in the Senate today with a contest in prospect.

Indications last night were that debate would last well into next week since adjournment over Friday and Saturday has been approved.

The new flexible provision came in for criticism in the House yesterday by Representative Beck (Republican), Pennsylvania, a former solicitor general of the United States, while the Senate adopted without discussion a resolution by Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, calling upon the State Department for information as to the number of foreign protests against the bill.

Smoot Presents Report.

Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah, chairman of the Senate conference committee, presented the report to the Senate, but, under the rules, it went over a day.

He said he would explain it, schedule by schedule, today.

Mr. Beck described the new flexible clause as "worse than the original House proposal" and served notice he would fight its adoption in the House.

"If Congress is to relinquish its taxing power," he said, "I would rather give it to the President, who is elected, than to the Tariff Commission, which is not elected."

If the compromise is adopted, he asserted, Congress would set maximum and minimum limits for tariff rates, but the "real tax would be set by the commission which the President appoints and can remove."

Collective Assault Planned.

Representative Ramseyer, of Iowa, a Republican member of the ways and means committee, argued that the flexible provisio did not constitute a delegation by Congress of its taxing power.

Democratic leaders, as well as pilots of the Republican Independent group, plan a collective assault on the conference report in the Senate. They appear to be as stern in their opposition to the new flexible clause as they were in their successful fight many months ago when they restored the rate-changing power to Congress. They will make the new plan a special target on constitutional grounds.

Democrats also are prepared to point out a number of foreign retaliatory measures as evidence of widespread opposition to the bill and will renew their arguments for the debenture plan.

Republican leaders felt they had the votes to repel opposition and to put the final decision up to the House early in June.

They took comfort from reports that the opposition would not press points of order against at least four rates to the extent of seriously delaying the bill.

Thomas Resolution Adopted.

While the points undoubtedly would be raised, Democratic leaders pointed out that they were merely to correct what they believed to be unintentional mistakes by conferees. They made it clear they did not wish to delay the bill unduly because of minor technical errors.

Democrats will contend that the conferees took the highest rate of the Senate and House bills in adjusting duties in dispute and that Senate conferees receded in a majority of instances to accept a higher House rate or a compromise.

Without objection a resolution by Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, was adopted. It demanded that the Secretary of State furnish the Senate copies of "all protests on file" from foreign governments.

Attacked by Democrats.

Despite assurances from Attorney General Mitchell that the new flexible provision was constitutional, three Democratic senators, Bratton, New Mexico; George, Georgia, and Wagner, New York—each a former member of the highest court in his State—joined in opposition to the new clause in statements issued through the Democratic national committee.

Senator Bratton contended that the new provision was "the most revolutionary proposal ever advanced," and "the widest departure from the plain intent of the Constitution, that the taxing power shall be exercised exclusively by Congress."

"Every devotee of the Constitution," he added, "should look upon this scheme with deep anxiety, it being to delegate the power to levy tariff duties—a type of taxation—not exclusively to the President, but, in the event he fails to act, to a commission not elected by the people and, consequently, responsible to them, but answerable only to the appointive power.

Powers of Commission.

"Moreover, in ascertainment of the difference in costs of production here and abroad, the commission may consider the advantage or disadvantage in competition. Indeed, that may be the controlling and decisive element.

"In practical operation, it permits the commission to increase or decrease taxes, based solely upon its conclusion respecting conditions of business here and elsewhere, the only restriction or limitation being that the change shall not exceed 50 per cent of the rate fixed by Congress.

"Although the opinion of the commission may be erroneous, it is final and conclusive. One may easily forecast with certainty that the next step will be creation of a commission to levy income taxes and fix the rates thereof."

George, Wagner Protest.

Senator George asserted the new provision "strengthens the position of those members of Congress who held the flexible provision of the act of 1922 to be unconstitutional."

Senator Wagner joined in this opinion and said the proposal was objectionable "because it concentrates economic power in the hands of a single individual * * *, because political use is likely to be made of it * * *, and because it destroys the independence of the Tariff Commission as a fact-finding agency."

UNEMPLOYED DATA WILL BE RELEASED

Census Aids Authorized to Make Figures Public Immediately.

REPORT MANY INQUIRIES

(Associated Press.)

Immediate announcement of the unemployment census by all supervisors has been authorized by Census Director W. M. Stewart.

This will make possible a far speedier summary of the unemployment survey than by a Census Bureau compilation after all schedules arrive in Washington as was first contemplated.

Supervisors, who earlier had been advised they were not to give out any information concerning unemployment, have now been informed that inquiries have become so numerous it was decided to permit announcement of the figures.

The census director's letter asked supervisors only for announcement of "the most significant class" of the unemployed, those "without a job, able to work, and looking for a job." The supervisors were instructed they must not give out any further information from the unemployment schedule at this time.

These figures, like other early census returns, are to be considered preliminary and subject to correction. They will be supplemented later by data given out from Washington for other classes of persons not at work at the time of the census, such as those who had a job, but were sick or temporarily laid off.

For cities and minor divisions whose populations already have been announced, supervisors were instructed to issue supplemental announcements.

Where schedules already have been sent to Washington, count will be made and figures announced from the Census Bureau.

Director Stuart authorized supervisors to make any exlanatory statement with regard to unemployment as was thought "proper or advisable," to prevent "misunderstanding or misinterpretation" of the figures.

the past few days, but everything indicates that feeling among Hindus and Mohammedans is very tense.

Bombay did not escape unscathed. Two persons were killed and nineteen injured, including a Mohammedan woman, during the suppression of a riot in the heart of the Moslem quarter. A mob of 5,000 Moslems stoned European policemen.

The police were compelled to fire several volleys, first over the heads, and then into the mass of the rioters. They were forced to fire in self-defense.

The disorders, which were centered in the Bhendi Bazaar, were caused by a mere trifle. A Mohammedan Hooligan threw stones at a dog belonging to a European police sergeant, and when the sergeant started to pursue him a group of Moslems began throwing stones.

Mob Stones Police.

A riotous mob of 5,000 rapidly gathered. They marched on the police quarters and stoned the buildings and the police, who finally responded by revolver fire.

Armed police finally got the mob under control and dispersed them.

The Dharasana Volunteers continued to provide a lively time for the police, though nothing occurred on the scale of the recent great salt raids there and at Wadala.

The government has declared forfeited the land where the Untadi camp is situated. Police this afternoon bodily removed certain volunteers who refused to vacate the camp when ordered to do so. The commissioner of the northern district of the Bombay Presidency served the expulsion order in person.

Volunteers Sing Under Tree.

Twenty-three volunteers remained sitting under the famous mango tree that sheltered Mme. Sarojini Naidu and her councils before she shared Mahatma Gandhi's fate and was imprisoned. They sang Nationalist songs and defied the commissioneer to do his worst.

Eighty-three volunteers raided the Wadala salt pans this morning, 30 escaping with salt and 30 being arrested. The others fled.

An official inquiry has opened in Peshawar into the disorders there in April. Shah Muhammed Sulaiman, a high court judge, and a British judge named Pankridge are conducting it.

LIBRARY PLAN AIDED BY MRS. M'CORMICK

Representative Helping in Movement to Secure Georgetown Branch.

WILL INTRODUCE BILL

Georgetown wants a branch public library and Representative Ruth McCormick intends to help secure it. Addressing a mass meeting of several hundred citizens in St. John's parish house last night, the first woman to receive a senatorial nomination said that she would introduce the library bill in Congress before that body adjourns next month.

"As a newcomer to Georgetown I want to join in the fight for a branch library," she said. "We who are raising children in Georgetown have every right to one."

Dr. George Bowerman, librarian of the District public library, said that he had long favored the establishment of a branch in Georgetown. "It is 2½ miles from Georgetown to the central public library he said," and that is too far for children to walk."

Characterizing Washington as woefully backward in the matter of library facilities, Dr. Bowerman said that the city had only three major branches, compared with the 25 of 30 that many cities of comparable size possess. He added that Washington paid only 64 cents per capita for the public library, while Cleveland spends $1.76.

The Georgetown Citizens Association which called the meeting, adopted resolutions appointing a committee to assist Mrs. McCormick in drafting the library bill.

HIGH COURT TO FIX DRIVER TRIAL RIGHT

JURY ISSUE INVOLVED

The United States Supreme Court is to decide whether a person charged with reckless driving is entitled to a trial by jury. This was learned yesterday when the high tribunal decided to review the case involving William H. Colts, colored, recently decided by the District Court of Appeals in favor of Colts.

If the Supreme Court affairs the appellate court the effect of the decision will be to force increased jury trial facilities at Police Court. The decision also is expected to shed considerable light on the legality of the Law Enforcement Commission's proposal that minor liquor cases be tried before United States Commissioners.

Colts was arrested late last year and after being refused a trial by jury was sentenced to serve 30 days in jail on a reckless driving charge. Through Attorneys Harry Whelan and William B. O'Connell an appeal was taken on the grounds that under common law reckless driving constituted a breach of peace and that a defendant could not be deprived of his liberty without a jury trial. The appeal was granted in an opinion written by Justice Charles H. Robb.

Due to serious consequences which face the Police Court as a result of the appellate court's decision the District applied to the Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari, which was granted yesterday. The granting of the writ is the fifth in succession won by the District in recent cases and is said to be a record.

MINISTERIAL UNION ATTACKS RUM POLL

Capital Group Says Digest Using Survey to Spread Wet Propaganda.

QUESTION PASTORS' VOTE

Definite hcarges that the Literary Digest deliberately misrepresents its prohibition poll for the purpose of spreading wet propaganda are made in a letter sent yesterday to the magazine editor, William S. Woods, by B. H. Melton, president, and Perry L. Mitchell, secretary, of the Ministerial Union of Washington.

Asserting that "we resent the implications of your poll and utterly repudiate that report so far as it relates to the white Protestant clergy of our city," the letter demanded, "for verification as to its accuracy," a detailed list of all Wasington clergymen to whom the Digest ballots were sent.

The letter was the culmination of correspondence begun on May 12, when five officials of the National Methodist Press wrote to the magazine charging that "the editorial columns of the Literary Digest were used in the issue of May 3 to misrepresent grossly the attitude of the Protestant clergy of the District of Columbia regarding prohibition" and that the figures shown in the poll were either a mistake or "someone having to do with them was deliberately attempting to deceive the public."

Preachers Check Poll.

This first letter stated that the Methodists had canvassed 198 white Protestant ministers, of whom 196 favored enforcement of prohibition while the tatitude of two was not ascertained. The letter added that 108 of these 198 had received ballots and 98 had voted, 87 voting for enforcement, and 8 for modification.

The Digest's poll showed that only 42 votes for enforcement had been received from clergymen of all denominations in Washington, while there were 38 votes for modification and 234 for repeal.

In his reply to the Methodists on May 16, Mr. Woods pointed out that "in your investigation you admit you canvassed only part of the clergy in the District, so naturally your results would not tally with ours. Yet you seem amazed that they do not. I can not understand such logic, and I am sure a little further thought will show you how wrong it is."

Commenting on the statement that the Methodists had found 87 white Protestant clergymen, who claimed to have voted for prohibition enforcement while the Digest poll showed only 42 such votes from all denominations in the District, Mr. Woods wrote:

Editor Offers Explanation.

"Now I have no doubt that these 87 voted for enforcement. I believe them absolutely. Yet we received only 42 enforcement votes from the clergy of the District in the special clerical poll. How can that be? Here is the explanation: Each of these 87 clergymen received a ballot in our big general poll. Then most of them received a second ballot in our special poll of Digest subscribers. Then they all received a third ballot in our special poll of the clergy.

"Unquestionably 87 of them voted for enforcement in polls 1, 2 or 3, but it is equally unquestionable that 87 did not vote for enforcement in the special poll of the clergy, as 45 ballots would not be lost between Washington and New York. It is entirely probable that many clergymen who had already voted in the general poll would say, on getting the second ballot and not noticing that it was a Digest-subscribers' poll or a clerical poll, 'I have already voted for enforcement' and would drop it in the waste basket. When questioned later, they would say in perfect sincerity, 'Yes, I voted for enforcement!' That is how you would get 87 enforcers against our 42."

But in its reply yesterday to Mr. Woods' letter, the Ministerial Union asserted that "our position as to the accuracy of your count is just the opposite to your own, and will continue to be so until we have convincing proof to the contrary," and that the editor had "so twisted our statement to try to make us say something that we never said."

300 Ballots Received.

This charge was made by the union in asserting that "we certainly were not so foolish as to assume that the results would tally when we canvassed less than 200 pastors and your report indicates that you received ballots from more than 300," thus presenting the possibility that, while all of the white Protestant pastors interrogated had declared themselves in favor of enforcement, votes for repeal might have been cast from other denominations.

After admitting that "we can see how the votes of clergymen in the first or second poll have not been counted as received in the third," the ministers charged that "The very method which you pursue, knowing that the ballots would be treated as you have just suggested, indicates clearly to us how very unreliable your figures are. The course which you have pursued impresses us with the idea that you have followed this method knowing in advance that you would not get dependable results and yet you were willing to submit the figures as if they were reliable."

The union's letter declares that publication of the poll results, "apparently without any effort to verify such a situation as that indicates, certainly has not added to the confidence in the Literary Digest on the part of the Christian people of this city," and adds that "on the contrary it has strengthened the feeling, which has been growing widely, to the effect that the magazine is distinctly wet and the purpose of this poll, aside from the subscription value to the magazine, is to increase the wet propaganda which is trying to break down the strong sentiment of our people in favor of prohibition."

Alexandrians Aid Woman on Hike

Californian, Who Is Said to Have Tried to Kill Self, Going to Richmond.

Clothed in a dress, shoes and stockings which Police Capt. W. W. Campbell had procured from sympathetic women, Mrs. Louise Ruggles, who was picked up by the Alexandria police Sunday, wearing pajamas and a loose-fitting coat and house slippers, was released from custody yesterday and, after thanking Capt. Campbell for his assistance, left by the hitch-hiking route for Richmond. When arrested she told the police she was en route to Richmond, where she expected to stop at the Y. W. C. A. and seek employment. There was no charge against her on the police records.

Mrs. Ruggles, who first gained prominence in Washington in January, 1929, by swallowing an overdose of a sleeping potion while in the rectory of St. John's Episcopal Church, and again about two weeks ago when she is alleged to have made an attempt to end her life in a rooming house, is the daughter of the Rev. MAN HELD IN LIQUOR BUY WILL BE FREED

First Ever to Face Charge Benefits by Decision of Supreme Court.

HART OUTLINES POSITION

By DUNBAR HARE.

John Weyland, believed to be the first man in the United States to be arrested and arraigned on a liquor purchase charge, will be cleared of the charge today, as a result of the decision of the United States Supreme Court yesterday, according to announcement made last night by Assistant United States Attorney David A. Hart, in charge of prohibition enforcement in Police Court.

"In view of the Supreme Court's decision, I don't see that any other course is open to me," Mr. Hart said when questioned about the case by The Post. "We started the prosecution of the purchaser, but somebody else beat us to the final decision and we will profit by their experience," he added.

Weyland was arrested last March by police who reported to the prosecutor that they saw the man purchase two half-gallons of liquor from a Negro woman. The police said they saw Weyland and two companions enter the home of the Negress, who was suspected of selling liquor, and peering through the window, they declared they witnessed the entire alleged transaction, even to the passage of the money.

Woman Charged With Sale.

Weyland and the woman both were arrested in the house and the names of Weyland's companions were taken as witnesses. The woman was charged with sale and possession of liquor and the charge of purchase was booked against Weyland, who was alleged to have accepted the liquor and to have handed the woman a bill for which she gave him change.

Shortly afterward the Supreme Court announced that it would review the Philadelphia case involving alleged conspiracy to violate the prohibition law through alleged acts of ordering and purchasing whisky, and Mr. Hart stated that he would not try Weyland until after the Supreme Court had acted on that case. At that time the local prosecutor said that he hoped the Supreme Court would clarify the quesiton involving purchase of liquor.

Still later the Boston case arose, and that, too, was taken to the high court on the request of the Department of Justice.

Two Cases Similar.

Points raised by the prosecutor in the Boston case were the same as those announced by Mr. Hart at the time of Weyland's arraignment.

Weyland was the second man arrested in the District on the charge, but the case against the first man was dropped the day after the defendant's arrest because there were no witnesses and no evidence except the word of the police that the man had told them he had bought the liquor. Mr. Hart threw the case out with the statement that the evidence was not sufficient. At the same time he said he was going to make a good test case to take to the Supreme Court and within a few days Weyland was arrested. Mr. Hart immediately made out papers against him, and he was arraigned and pleaded not guilty and demanded a trial by jury.

Both the local arrests on purchase charges were the subject of considerable publicity all over the country, and it is thought that the Boston case received its inception from that publicity.

Senate Dry Leaders Differ.

There was a difference of opinion among Senate dry leaders as to the advisability of pressing legislation to fasten guilt equally upon the buyer and seller.

Senator Sheppard (Democrat), Texas, has such a measure pending and he announced after the decision yesterday he would urge its early enactment, but Senator Jones (Republican), Washington, author of the Jones law, said he doubted the wisdom of such legislation.

Meanwhile opposition arose to the action of the Prohibition Bureau under the recent Supreme Curt decision that paraphernalia and ingredients intended for use in manufacturing liquor might be seized.

A delegation of Wisconsin legislators protested to Prohibition Commissioner Doran against the seizure of $6,000 worth of such articles from John Lang in their State last week.

Mr. Doran told the delegation he had had no report on the seizure.

of opinion" as to what legislation the Commission desired.

"I was directed to advise you," Mr. Wickersham wrote, "that the Commission feels that among the bills so far suggested, its recommendations would be most effectively carried out by the passage of the following bills," referring to those approved.

Attorney General Mitchell wrote Chairman Graham:

"The commission has given very careful consideration to these measures, and speaking for this (Justice) Department, I accept their conclusions, on the various points that have been under consideration and hope that they will receive favorable consideration from your committee."

Measure's Expedition Urged.

Chairman Graham was instructed by the committee to expedite consideration of the measures in the House along with measures to authorize the appointment of seventeen additional Federal district judges to relieve congestion in various courts.

Immediately after the bills were reported, Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, described the program as a "legislative monstrosity," adding that "in a desperate attempt to do something, an entire new system of criminal procedure has been hastily, ill-advisedly and most unscientifically slapped together."

"The entire Anglo-Saxon idea of trial by jury is abruptly brushed aside," the New Yorker said. "Under the guise of seeking to relieve conditions in the Federal courts, they have provided rubber-stamp justice, long distance testimony and trial by correspondence." He added that the amendment to the Jones law was "the only constructive piece of legislation offered and the crime commission accepted that grudgingly."

Mr. LaGuardia said he would file a minority report.

HOWELL DRY BILL FAVORED IN REPORT

Little Prospect Seen for Its Enactment Into Law, However.

VOTE NOT MADE PUBLIC

The Howell bill to place a drastic prohibition enforcement act on the statute books of the National Capital was reported favorably by the Senate District committee late yesterday The vote was taken in executive session, and the roll call was not made public. A number of the wets on the committee, including Senators Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin; Gould (Republican), of Maine, and Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, were not at the meeting.

Although the bill now goes before the Senate with a favorable report, there is little prospect that it will become a law, either at this or any other session. At least it will not pass in its present form.

The action of the committee on another bill yesterday represented a defeat for the Public Utilities Commission. The bill, a companion measure to the street car merger resolution, was designed to strip the courts of the power they now have to upset decisions of the utilities commission.

Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, amended this bill so that the courts are given authority to review the evidence and the findings of fact in cases decided by the utilities commission. This, in effect, would continue the status quo.

The utilities commission, backed by Chairman Capper, of the Senate District committee, fought the Glass amendment, but it was adopted by committee yesterday nevertheless.

Mackey Attacks Prohibition Acts

Congressional Candidate Touches on Number of Issues in Speech.

Special to The Washington Post.

Orange, Va., May 26.—Speaking for an hour and 30 minutes, Capt. Crandall R. Mackey, former prosecuting attorney of Arlington County and candidate for Congress from the eighth district to succeed R. Walton Moore addressed the voters of this section at the courthouse here today.

Capt. Mackey, introduced by R. M Waugh, jr., of Unionville, spoke briefly on farm relief, tariff, immigration and the power trust and devoted much of his address to scoring the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law and said that if elected to Congress he would vote against this "infamous law." He spoke of the impossibility of regulateing the bootlegger and said he was n favor of substituting temperance for a form of prohibition which neither prohibited or produced temperance.

He advocated a disregard or unjust laws giving biblical reference in substantiation of his attitude. A crowd that taxed the capacity of the courtroom heard Capt. Mackey's address.

FIGHT BEGINS ANEW ON VARE VOTE FUND

U. S. Given Another Chance to Make Philadelphia Sheriff Testify.

SOURCE OF GIFT ISSUE

Philadelphia, May 26 (A.P.).—The battle over the unanswered question of the source of the $50,000 that Sheriff Thomas W. Cunningham gave to the William S. Vare senatorial primary campaign fund in 1926 is to be fought all over again.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today granted the Government a rehearing in the latter's effort to have Cunningham appear in the District of Columbia and answer an indictment charging him with contempt of the Senate in not answering a question put to him by the Senate investigating committee of which James A. Reed, of Missouri, was chairman.

After Cunningham's indictment he resisted removal to Washington, but was ordered removed by the Federal district court of eastern Pennsylvania. An appeal was taken to the circuit court of appeals and Cunningham won on a two-to-one opinion.

In the meantime another phase of the case was decided against Cunningham by the Supreme Court of the United States. This was a warrant of arrest by the Senate to force Cunningham to appear before it and tell the source of the $50,000. He also had resisted going to Washington in this case and the Federal district court decided against him only to be reversed by the appellate court. This case was carried to the Supreme Court and Cunningham was ordered to appear in Washington but the matter was held up pending further action in the appellate court here.

Thus, Cunningham, a leader of the Vare organization in Philadelphia, has been twice arrested and twice ordered to Washington by the Federal district court here, which was twice reversed by the appellate court.

Since all this started, Vare has been rejected by the Senate, Joseph R. Grundy appointed in his place, who in turn has been refused an election to the seat by the voters of the State.

The hearing in the case probably will be held late next week, and it may eventually reach the Supreme Court.

HOOVER ACTION NEXT ON RETIREMENT BILL

scheme it will be possible for some of the higher-paid employes to receive an annuity as high as $3,000.

President Hoover always felt that the annuity ought to be based on the amount the employe contributed to the retirement fund, and that was one of the reasons he sponsored the new legislation.

Under the terms of the new bill the Government guarantees the employe a basic annuity of $900 for 30 years' service, which represents $30 for every year of service.

In addition to this basic annuity, there will be paid to the retired employe an additional annuity based on the amount he has contributed to the retirement fund from his salary.

The higher annuities are made possible by what is known as the "tontine," a scheme under which $1 a month will be deducted from the employe's contribution to the retirement fund and placed in a separate fund.

The bill now is more attractive than it was when it was first introduced. For one thing, certain forfeiture provisions have been removed. A provision also has been written in to take care of retired employes who failed to apply in time for the retirement benefits under the old law.

There also has been added a provision to take care of aged but valuable employes like Dr. William Tindall, chief of the information bureau of the District of Columbia government. Under a law that takes effect August 20, Dr. Tindall and other veterans would be automatically dropped frfom the service.

Under the amendment to the Dale-Lehlbach bill, such employes may be continued in the service indefinitely if it is agreeable to their chiefs and to the Civil Service Commission.

The conference report on the bill was called up in the Senate yesterday by Senator Porter Dale (Republican), of Vermont, chairman of the Senate civil service committee. At the outset, Senator Dale was opposed to the bill, but in the end he decided to support it.

He estimated that, whereas the Government now is paying $20,600,000 toward the retirement system, under the new bill it will pay $33,000,000.

The conference report was adopted without a record vote.

In the gallery when the Senate acted were Luther C. Steward and Gertrude McNally, president and secretary-treasurer, respectively, of the National Federation of Federal Employes, who had supported the legislation from the outset.

"The enactment of the new retirement bill," Mr. Steward said, "is a source of gratification to the National Federation of Federal Employes, the organization which sponsored it from the outset.

"It is the best retirement plan from the employe's standpoint that has ever received serious consideration by Congress. The opposition of some organizations and individuals, which was quite vocal for a time, was based entirely on a failure to understand and appreciate its beneficent features.

"July 1, 1930, will mark the beginning of a Federal retirement system worthy of the name."

Monticello Guards Greet Descendants of Lafayette

Visit to Jefferson Home Planned on Brief U. S. Stay.

New York, May 26 (A.P.).—The Marquis Jackues Hendi de Dampierre, descendant of Lafayette, entered New York today as an honored guest.

He, his two sons and the wife of one arrived aboard the New French Liner Lafayette, making her maiden voyage, as the guests of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation.

Stuart Gibboney, president of the Jefferson foundation, met the four guests and 50 members of the Monticello guards of Charlottesville, Va., dressed in colonial uniforms, escorted the party from Battery Park to City Hall.

The marquis and his party plan to leave tomorrow for Jefferson's old home, Monticello, returning here Wednesday night and sailing for home Saturday.

Charlottesville, Va., May 26.—Marquis Jacques Henri de Dampierre, great-grandson of the sister of Gen. Lafayette, who arrived in New York today on the maiden trip of France's newest liner, the S. S. Lafayette, will devote one of the four days he is in America to a visit to Monticello and the University of Virginia.

The Monticello Guard, the oldest continuous military organization in Virginia, is in New York to welcome the marquis and his family. They will act as his guard of honor on behalf of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation.

In recognition of this compliment the marquis will spend Wednesday visiting Monticello, home of Jefferson, and the University of Virginia. He will be accompanied by his eldest son, Comte Henri de Dampierre, and the comtesse, his wife, and by a younger son, the Cicomte Armand de Dampierre.

At the university the marquis will be received in the Salle Lafayette, which was dedicated last fall by Paul Claudel, French Ambassador to America, as a memorial to the friendship between the sister republics. The Salle Lafayette has been decorated with scenes from the life of the distinguished ancestor of the marquis, done in fresco by Robert and Martha la Montagne St. Hubert, two of France's best-known mural painters. One of these shows the Monticello Guard serving as an escort when Lafayette was received by Jefferson at Monticello 105 years ago.

The visitors from France will arrive in Charlottesville tomorrow night. After placing a wreath on the grave of Jefferson and being received in the Salle Lafayette, the marquis and his family will visit Ash Lawn, Farmington and other points of interest here.

The Monticello Guard will remain in New York City for the costume ball of the Revolutionary period on board the Lafayette Thursday night, but a squad will be detailed to remain in Charlottesville to serve as an escort to the marquis while he is in Virginia.

Police Must Live In District, Ruling

Those Now Residing Outside Boundary Not Affected, Maj. Pratt Says.

Policemen of the District must observe the law requiring them to live in the District, Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, declared in a general order to the police office made public yesterday.

Maj. Pratt ruled that men now living in Maryland or Virginia may continue to do so but that no others may move outside the city they are sworn to protect. Neither will men be appointed to the force and permitted to live outside the city, the police chief said.

He said that 200 men now are living outside the District, some of them in inaccessible places where they could not be readily reached in emergencies. An act of Congress requires policemen to reside in Washington, but this requirement was waived during the war period when policemen were so hard to get that the War Department made special exemptions from Army service for policemen.

FIVE ARE ARRESTED IN BIG GEM THEFT

ing that several more arrests would probably be made within 24 hours in several cities throughout the country.

The five arrested gave the following names and addresses: William J. O'Connor, 41, a salesman, Buffalo, who hired the room at the Hotel Commodore; Jack Rosen, 38, a diamond broker, of this city; James W. Watson, 48, an engineer, of Chicago; George Cole, 42, a salesman, of this city, and Hilda Carter, 35, no address given.

It was exactly nine weeks ago that the police were enlisted in the search by the insurance investigators, headed by Noel C. Scaffa, for the diamonds, which police now believe were stolen in Miami and Palm Beach hotels from a David J. Bonwitt, of Pittsburgh, and from Mrs. Louis W. Herman, of this city.

Lieut. Richard Oliver and Detective Daniel J. Ryan were placed in charge of the case at that time and immediately set out for Chicago and Buffalo to find Watson and O'Connor, who were supposed to be heading for New York to dispose of the loot.

Both detectives found their men and traced them for eight weeks, night and day, until O'Connor arrived at the Grand Central Terminal Saturday and subsequently engaged a room at the adjacent hotel. Within 24 hours the watch-detail reported to Commissioner Mulrooney that four others had arrived and were closeted in room 1985.

They waited until noon today and surrounded the hotel, blocked stairways and corridors, and prepared for the picked squad to enter the room.

Lieut. Oliver inserted a pass key and kicked the door open. His quarry, taken by surprise, put up a weak fight but were subdued at the sight of revolvers. One of the men swung his arm toward an open window as if to throw something, but a later search of the courtyard failed to yield any object.

They were immediately escorted to private automobiles and rushed to headquarters where they met a battery of photographers' flashlights with yells and curses. They were charged with receiving stolen goods.

Judging from police descriptions of stolen jewelry, the recovered loot probably taken from Mr. Bonwitt at the Hotel Blackstone in Miami and from Mrs. Herman at the Hotel Ambassador in Palm Beach. Mrs. Herman said she lost approximately $150,000 worth of jewels including a $55,000 18-carat diamond ring. Such a ring was recovered today.

The executive committee appointed by the five Granges of Fairfax County met with T. B. Mason in the county agricultural exhibit room at Fairfax Saturday evening to discuss ways and means of opening a market stall in the Washington market, where Grange members can dispose of their farm produce. Members from each grange were present and reported that their granges were in sympathy with this movement and that the subject had been thoroughly discussed by them.

It was unanimously believed that the plan was feasible and information will be collected as to the best methods of procedure.

It was decided that as soon as the quantity of produce would warrant, the stall would be kept open the entire year. For the present it was believed best to conduct a number of stalls under joint operation rather than have them unite into one and then have to engage a manager. The members feel this will lead to better marketing conditions.

The committee will discuss the plan with the grange organization in nearby Maryland and ask its cooperation. The members will also visit different markets in Washington and will make a report at a meeting to be held at Fairfax on the evening of June 13 at 8 o'clock.

He also stated last night that there was little conflicting testimony by the witnesses. The decision automatically absolves Finks from prosecution.

Woman Given Use Of Maiden Name

Plea Granted After Court Hears Husband Missing for Seven Years.

Jacqueline Wallart Hajek, who searched in vain for more than seven years for her husband, Vaclav A. Hajek, attorney, criminologist and secret service operative, yesterday was given the right to use her maiden name, Jacqueline Wallart, when Justice Alfred A. Wheat in District Supreme Court granted her petition for change of name filed last month.

The woman, in her petition, told the court that she and Hajek were married in Brussels, Belgium, on September 13, 1921, and that until February 7, 1923, they lived happily. On the latter date, however, the wife asserts her husband sailed for the United States on urgent professional business, and never again has been heard from.

The woman stated that she came to this country and made an extended search for Hajek and even returned to Europe in the course of her quest, but without reward. In her petition the woman stated that she was convinced her husband was dead and stated that she desired to return to the legal use of her maiden name in order to save herself the embarrassment of explaining about her husband. Miss Wallart at the time of the filing of the petition gave her address as 1768 Church street northwest.

AN EXTRA SESSION.

The plan agreed upon by Senate Republicans is to dispose of urgent unfinished legislation before taking up the London naval treaty. Under this plan the legislative work of Congress can be cleaned up and the House can adjourn. The Senate will then be free to concentrate its attention upon the treaty. The country will be relieved of all apprehensions concerning legislation. Commerce, business and industry can go forward, knowing what is before it.

An extra session of the Senate will be called immediately after adjournment of Congress, for the purpose of considering the naval treaty. Probably the desire of senators to take a few days' breathing spell will be taken into account by the President in fixing the date for the extra session. At any rate, it is now settled that the treaty will be disposed of by the Senate without waiting until the next regular session.

Whether or not the public will interest itself in the treaty to the extent of impressing its opinion upon the Senate remains to be revealed. The press of other matters, particularly the tariff, has prevented a country-wide discussion of the naval treaty. The public is not yet aware of its precise terms, and merely assumes that a simple agreement has been reached by the three principal naval powers, putting a limit upon building. A Senate session confined strictly to consideration of the treaty should bring out the facts requisite to a clear public understanding of the pact. With the tariff and other controversial matters out of the way, the public will be in a better position to study the treaty and its probable effects.

One of the matters which all American citizens might do well to bear in mind is the fact that an organized minority of pacifists and internationalists is busily at work, trying to convince the Senate that while the treaty should be ratified, it will not be necessary or desirable to build up the Navy. A determined attempt will be made to prevent the construction of vessels which ought to be built, whether the treaty be ratified or not. The Navy is far below the point of adequacy, because of the failure to maintain a suitable building program during the last ten years. This fact is mentioned by all Government authorities, including Secretary Stimson and Secretary Adams. The treaty does not affect the necessity of building up the Navy. In fact, the treaty contemplates American building up to a certain tonnage. Opposition to this necessary building is not only contrary to the spirit of the treaty, but is an attack upon the national security.

When senators begin to discuss the naval treaty they should help to clarify the public mind as to the necessity of further naval construction, whether the treaty be approved, amended, or rejected. Too large a proportion of the people are deceived by the lying pacifist propaganda which attempts to show that the treaty will make it unnecessary to build more American ships. This propaganda may injure the chances of the treaty in the Senate, by antagonizing senators who wish to promote good will, but who will not consent to abandonment of American naval defense. If they should conclude that the pacifist and internationalist scheme is to get the treaty through and then block the building of necessary ships, the treaty will encounter opposition that might not otherwise have developed.

MUSCLE SHOALS.

Every indication points to favorable action on the House bill for leasing Muscle Shoals for private operation when that measure is called up today by the military affairs committee. This committee sidetracked the Norris bill adopted by the Senate, which provides for Government operation of the plants, and formulated a bill of its own. The new measure represents the general sentiment in the House and of the public. It is the only measure for disposition of Muscle Shoals that can be expected to meet with approval at the White House.

Attempts will be made to amend the House committee's bill so that the Norris plan would become an alternative to private operation if no satisfactory lease can be negotiated within a given period. This is an effort to obtain by subterfuge what the House will not approve in principle, and will probably have little better support than the original Norris resolution. The Republican party in control of the House is opposed to Government competition with private industry, and can not approve any socialistic project without running counter to a policy that goes deep into the roots of the party.

If the House follows the recommendation of its committee the bill will then go to conference. A compromise of two such radically different plans is impossible, and unless the Senate yields there will probably be no Muscle Shoals legislation at this session. The public has every reason to be disgusted with the delay of Congress in solving the Muscle Shoals controversy, but the question involved is so fundamental that the House will be justified in holding out for private operation even though it means another deadlock. The attitude of the House will determine whether or not the Government will assume the function of a public utility operator.

THE PURCHASER OF LIQUOR.

The Government made a case to test the guilt of the purchaser of bootleg liquor because a certain dry element insisted that the national prohibition act covered the purchaser as well as the vendor. The United States Supreme Court now holds that purchasers of liquor from bootleggers are exempt from provisions of the law.

The record of debate surrounding enactment of the national prohibition act shows that Congress purposely excluded from its provisions the purchaser of liquor. When the legislation was under consideration in 1919 an effort was made to have the purchaser included, but the dry leaders realized that to make the purchaser guilty would react against the success of the experiment. Congress itself realized that since the eighteenth amendment makes no mention of the purchaser, an attempt in the prohibition act to make him liable would have been unconstitutional. Several attempts have been made to amend the Volstead act or to increase its scope, with the end in view of penalizing the purchaser of liquor. That these efforts failed is due not so much to the fact that Congress knows that no legislation going beyond the bounds of the eighteenth amendment will pass muster before the Supreme Court, but also that the organized drys shrewdly resist any innovations calculated to turn public opinion against the prohibition law. In the case of the Sheppard bill to penalize the purchaser, the national conference of organizations supporting the eighteenth amendment itself counseled abandonment.

The Supreme Court in its decision remarks that Congress had not made the purchaser guilty, perhaps for the purpose of leaving the purchaser free to testify against the seller. Since the situation that led to the exclusion of the purchaser when the national prohibition act became law has not altered materially in the meantime, there is scant likelihood that the law will be changed.

NEW RETIREMENT PLAN.

Senate approval of the conference report on the civil service retirement bill in effect marked the final episode in the enactment of such legislation. The retirement bill approved by the Senate last fall did not meet with the approval of President Hoover, nor did it seemingly protect the interests of all Federal employes. The bill approved by the House was drawn up as an acceptable substitute; it was unchanged except in minor details in the conference and since the House already had approved the report, the bill has only to receive the President's signature to become law.

The bill as enacted definitely commits the Government to assuming a share of the cost of retirement. The annuity is based on a flat contribution by the Government of $30 a year for each year of service up to 30, upon which would be superimposed the additional annuity purchasable from the individual employe's contributions to the retirement fund carried out on an actuarial basis. The maximum basic annuity would be $900. The total annuity would bear a relationship to the salary or salaries the individual received during his service. One dollar a month will be deducted from the employe's contribution to the retirement fund of 3½ per cent of his salary, which will be used to help defray the cost of the basic annuity.

In other respects the bill is more liberal than the measure for which it was substituted and is an improvement upon existing legislation. It allows, for example, retirement for total disability incurred after five years' service, whereas at present the employe must serve fifteen years to retire with full privileges for disability. The new bill provides for optional retirement 2 years prior to reaching the age fixed by law, and it reduces the retirement age for certain classifications. It contains a retroactive clause extending the benefit of increased annuities to those already on the retirement list, and makes provision for returning what is left of the individual's contribution to the retirement fund to his estate if he should die before he has received full advantage therefrom.

DECREPIT MOTOR CARS.

The report of the committee on maintenance of motor vehicles to the national conference on street and highway safety is of special interest in Washington. Research by this committee has brought to light that mechanical defects are responsible for nearly 5,000 fatal accidents per year. Fifteen per cent of all casualties on the highways are attributed to improper maintenance of cars and the failure of public authorities to prohibit use of machines that are ready for the junk heap.

Washington is particularly afflicted with automobiles that have outlived their usefulness, as revealed in a recent survey by The Post. Hundreds of motorists are driving decrepit cars through the streets immune from inspection or regulation. Many cars of modern vintage are nevertheless unsafe because of defective brakes, lights, &c. Modern driving practices demand mechanical efficiency, and when that is lacking traffic either becomes sluggish or the accident rate becomes unduly high. Washington is suffering from the first of these afflictions.

While the committee on maintenance is recommending periodic inspection of all motor vehicles and the removal of unfit automobiles from the highways, another committee is advocating to the national conference greater speed on the highways. Elimination of decrepit machines is a prerequisite to higher speeds with safety. No speed is safe with defective brakes or steering gear. But with mechanical deficiencies removed there is no reason why traffic should not move faster without incurring any additional risk.

While every motorist who fails to keep his car in good condition is running a risk of injuring himself and others, the full responsibility for Washington's superabundance of defective machines can not be placed upon the public. People continue to drive unsafe machines because the traffic regulations favor that type. Washington has not yet modernized its traffic code. It serves the needs of motor vehicles that are obsolete or fast becoming so. The public can hardly be expected to give attention to the efficiency of its vehicles so long as efficiency is not required by traffic regulations. Washington stands to profit much from the conference.

SCIENCE AND ART

By DR. ROGERS D. RUSK,
In the Scientific Monthly.

Science running wild may lead to a war beside which the horrors of past wars are insignificant. Already there are rumors of secret poison gases many times more poisonous than those of the recent past which may easily destroy whole cities, perhaps nations. It has become a truism that the war of the future will be between cities and nations, not armies, and that more than ever before it will be waged unto the death of all even remotely concerned. On the other hand, it is not at all impossible for peace-time science to run wild and build up a staggering industrial mechanism that might crush its adherents. The consequences of art running astray which have been visible in some recent exhibits are more insidious but nevertheless real and indicative of racial decadence.

Whether art be defined in terms of beauty or pleasure or valuable experience, in the last analysis the appreciation of its values must depend upon the experience of the individual, and that means that thought must accompany feeling. Perhaps in music of all the arts the thoughts are the most vague and least expressible by words, and yet the enjoyment of a symphony depends largely upon the listener's previous experience which determines the thoughts that accompany his emotional states. In other words, it is impossible to sit through a symphony with a perfectly blank mind.

A picture by Renoir may be interesting for its colors, a work of Michelangelo for the modeling it displays, an early Egyptian decoration for the story it tells, a Corot for the mood it exudes, an extremist creation for the unrestrained movement of color—there are different values in different pictures—but beware of that modernist who tells you that his picture has nothing to do with anything you are familiar with, that it has no connotative interest and that it is to be enjoyed only as it affects the emotions. Somewhere in the picture if it is sane there must be thought. If the forms are not recognizable, the colors at least must be. The artist overvalues his own response to the picture, but somehow or other there must be sufficient thought, sufficient organization so that his response is transferred in part to his optience, else there is no real art.

Out of a group of mathematical equations proposed by J. Clerk Maxwell in 1885 and understood by only a very few at that time came the discovery of electromagnetic waves and the invention of the radio telephone. Thus did the apparently "cold" science of Maxwell find its ample justification in the everyday life of the common man. The radio, which brings us human voices out of a seemingly empty space and has tied together the men and minds of many lands, has endowed those seemingly dry and abstract equations of Maxwell with human values even now pulsating from station to station around the world. The romance of science is no fiction; it is the romance of today and tomorrow, and where there is romance there must be emotion. Out of the Einstein theory came the explanation of the discrepancy in the calculation of the orbit of the planet Mercury, and again practical justification is achieved. It takes no more abstruse mathematical training to appreciate these results than it does to appreciate the fact of a Moses by Michelangelo, but the appalling abstractions back of the former are wont to mislead many a well-meaning enthusiast who imagines that they represent pure intellect without emotion, and that conversely he may sail on the wings of emotion into the ethereal realm of art, leaving intellect behind. Like Icarus he falls to his death with the realization that his wings were willing but the wax was weak. Emotions can not fly high unless secured by tempering thoughts any more than intellect can ignore the emotions.

THE NEW BRIDGE.

He fashioned it with utmost care,
A bridge of gold for me to wear,
A glittering thing, and from beneath
Hung seven artificial teeth,
And said, when several days have gone,
"You'll never know you have it on."

That slender bit of oral gold
Is very pretty to behold.
Men's admiration, it would win,
If I could only get it in
Or on, or whichsoe'er you do
With things the dentist makes for you.

I tried it for a day or two
And I could neither talk nor chew.
"It's perfect," mother said to me,
My friends dropped in that bridge to see,
And every one was moved to say
How skillful dentists are today!

But now in comfort once again
I walk the thoroughfares of men.
I've found the perfect place to hold
That glittering thing of teeth and gold.
Although sometimes the maid it shocks,
I keep it in my collar box.

"I Shall Hang You for Wearing Green," Said the King, "Unless Your Neighbors Like Green."

By ROBERT QUILLEN

A T a certain address in New York City, a liquor store does business in open violation of the law.

It sells all kinds of liquors and wines and delivers them to customers who do not find it convenient to call in person.

Its unusual significance lies in the fact that a magazine of national circulation and high repute has repeatedly called attention to its brazen challenge to Federal authority.

As a result of this publicity, various persons have made complaint to authorities in Washington.

The United States District Attorney's office in Manhattan, questioned by the press, said it had evidence of purchases made at the store and that the case would be tried in regular order.

Meanwhile the store serves its wares as openly as other stores sell soap.

In Georgia two negroes were arrested for violation of the Volstead act, one charged with selling and the other with transporting a pint of corn whisky.

One was sentenced to serve six months and the other three.

Similar small offenders meet a similar fate in all parts of the United States.

Most of them are "farmed out" to the States because the Federal prisons are overflowing.

Despite this arrangement, which crowds many State institutions far beyond their capacity, the Federal Government finds it necessary to parole an average of fifteen prisoners each day in order to make room for new ones.

Thus we have the spectacle of a strong central Government dividing an indivisible republic into two sections to avoid offending contrasting sentiments.

In one section, where popular opinion supports the law, violators crowd the prisons to overflowing; suspects are given indefinite liberty on bail because the courts can not keep pace with offenses; prisoners are turned loose in order that others may be given a taste of punishment.

In the other section, where popular opinion does not support the law, thousands violate it openly, flagrantly, brazenly, without fear of molestation.

Thus the central Government, unwilling to offend masses of voters, unable or afraid to make its edicts effective, deliberately reduces the eighteenth amendment to the impotence of the fourteenth and fifteenth—effective where it was not needed, inoperative in the section it was meant to affect.

A national law that sees guilt only where the neighbors see it!

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

MODERNISTIC FURNITURE, AND HOW.

The modernistic furniture craze is growing. House furnishings that puzzle the owner as well as the guest are becoming a pronounced fad. The test of the well-furnished home is whether or not the various pieces can be identified without a key.

* * * *

Modernistic furniture is a revolt against gee-gaws, furbelows, superfluous curves, overstuffed upholstery and curious swellings. The modernistic home is so fitted that every piece in the house looks like something on an eighteen-day diet.

* * * *

The up-to-the-minute bed looks like a packing-case that has acquired culture, and the best chair in the house resembles a cross between the driver's seat on the Covered Wagon and a flagpole-sitter's swing. The dressing-table looks like something worked out in building blocks by Junior.

* * * *

In the code of the modern furniture designer a straight line is the shortest distance between two joints.

* * * *

To be truly modernistic every piece of furniture in the home should have such sharp edges that father can shave with a chair, bureau or desk.

* * * *

There is one sure way to try out a modernistic chair. Sit in it ten seconds. Get up, and if you haven't cut yourself it's not modernistic.

* * * *

Four boards will make a bookcase, a plank will make a table and a bunch of shingles will suffice for a medicine chest. If it's uncomfortable, it's modernistic.

* * * *

"Won't you sit down?" asks the lady with the modernistic flat.

"No, thanks," you reply, if you're cautious, "I bruise too easily."

But with all its faults the new furniture is an improvement over the stuff grandma used. Some of those old-fashioned pieces were pretty grotesque. They looked like something created by furniture designers with the gout. The sofa seemed blown up by hand-pump, some of the best chairs were so overstuffed they seemed ever on the point of exploding, and many an old-fashioned bureau might well have been designed by the fellow who created the Forepaugh Circus band wagons.

* * * *

These old pieces bring big money now as antiques, but an antique is nothing but a relic, which nobody is heartless enough to produce any more.

* * * *

The old-time furniture had an effeminate touch. This modernistic stuff looks as if it might be designed by Hardboiled Smith, manufactured by Smedley Butler and sold to the public by the Marines.

CRASH-H-H!

Mr. Owen J. Roberts was confirmed by the Senate for the Supreme Court in one minute flat. He landed in the high court so abruptly he knocked the rear bumpers off the bench.

It is reported in New York that Mayor Walker's former police commissioners are getting up a baseball nine.

Ordinances prohibiting radio loud speakers outside buildings have been passed in many cities. But there is still no protection for a man who spends any time at home.

There is a rush on to buy shares in the new World Bank. It is located in Switzerland and all stockholders get a course in yodeling free.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Public Invited Today to Visit Home for Incurables, Washington's Splendid Institution.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many of the people who may avail themselves of the invitation to visit the Home for Incurables, Wisconsin avenue and Upton street, May 27, during the afternoon, possibly know very little about it or its work.

The name "Incurables" has been very much criticized, but it was a name that was given to such work over 90 years ago. Miss Frances Powell Cobbe, a young Irish girl, visiting relatives in England, discovering that all incurables were in the almshouses, under conditions not very favorable to their comfort or well-being, she started a Home for Incurables, and such homes are all over the world and apparently have never suffered from the name.

The Home here, which was founded and incorporated by a handful of women March 6, 1889, started in a very simple way in Mount Pleasant with five patients. A few years later, Miss Bessie J. Kibbey gave $50,000 for a new home at S and Thirty-second streets, where a larger building was built and where the Home remained from 1893 until 1924, when it again moved into the splendid, up-to-date Home, hospital and grounds containing eleven and three-quarters acres, at a cost of $562,000, all paid for by legacies and most generous gifts. Small sums, ranging from one to five thousand dollars annually, to care for free patients, were contributed by Congress, and finally, after seventeen years, the amount was increased to $10,000, which is now received.

The majority of the patients, now 120, have single rooms, the Home only having a few larger rooms for patients who are nervous about being alone. During the building of the new Home, all legacies were used. Now the money goes into the endowment fund, which has reached $540,000, with legacies enough in view to bring it up before long to a much larger sum. The income from endowment, pay patients, annual gifts, &c., is not quite enough to carry the home, so as a rule it runs behind about $5,000, which during the year is generally made up by unexpected gifts.

In regard to the pay patient question, it is found more self-respecting for people to pay even a trifle, and that applicants very much prefer to do so, but the sum that they pay depends entirely upon their financial condition, with never any pressure brought to bear on them about it. In spite of being able to take now 120 patients, having added some rooms lately, the home still has a waiting list of 23 and always a growing one. The most valuable feature is that this Home is the only one of its kind between Atlanta, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, which take care of inoperable cancer patients. The Home began that work in 1895, and has now eleven patients, and always a long waiting list. Of all the patients, the Home feels this does the most good, as hospitals do not like to take cancer cases. Their rooms are charming; they have a porch and little sitting room of their own, and a diet kitchen, and everything possible is done to alleviate their suffering.

The public has been wonderfully generous, and the management is most grateful for all gifts, large or small. It earnestly hopes that as many people as possible will pay the Home the compliment of coming to see its building, grounds and patients, on May 27. It is felt certain that those who do will never forget the impression of comfort, and contentment, and even happiness, which the board feels it has obtained in this refuge for those who otherwise would have endless suffering, entailed by loneliness and in many cases, great poverty.

All are welcome to visit the Home, not only on this day, but whenever they feel they will be interested. They will be shown around by a competent management.

MRS. ARCHIBALD HOPKINS,
President.

Night Baseball Combined With Radio Would Suit Many Fans.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While the American Association Baseball Club at Indianapolis is getting ready for night baseball, Sacramento and Oakland's Acorns, both of California, will try it in the Pacific Coast League.

Why don't more American Leaguers participate in night playing and rejuvenate the game with a little radio entertainment just before the games begin? New electric lighting systems can be installed easily on any baseball diamond within ten days or two weeks at very moderate expense. Radio music, passing through amplifiers, would attract bigger crowds, once these night crowds were assured of entertainment instead of a tedious wait before games, and would greatly swell gate receipts.

Will night playing, together with radio entertainment, be the next phase of baseball development?

VERNER M. HOLSTON.

Quality, Not Quantity, Counts Most in Cities That Are Already Big.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A good many people seem to be disappointed because Washington failed to reach the half million mark in the census just taken. If it was a question of the kind instead of the number of people who are being added to our population I would take a great deal more interest in the matter. In fact, I really don't see why I should take much pride in an unassorted increase in Washington's population. For one thing, they might most of them be dumbells, of which every city has enough at all times. If they were all highbrows that would be something else, and even a city overcrowded with highbrows so that they got in each other's way would not be what I would call a satisfactory dwelling place for a plain citizen. The way I look at it is that, when a city has grown into the hundreds of thousands, the quality and not the quantity of population is what counts, inasmuch as the interests of ordinary citizens are concerned.

U.S. MOTHERS HONOR UNKNOWN OF FRANCE

Hero of Dardanelles Speaks in Praise of Gold Star Pilgrimage.

TWO OF PARTY FALL ILL

Paris, May 26 (A.P.).—Gen. Henri Gouraud, the one-armed hero of the Dardanelles, stood in reverent silence today under the Arce de Triomphe while the American Gold Star Mothers of the second group began their pilgrimage with homage to the unknown soldier of France. The American women placed five wreaths on the tomb prior to starting tomorrow for the battlefield cemeteries to see for the first time the graves of their sons and husbands.

At a reception later Gen. Gouraud welcomed the women in the name of his government and told them how greatly touched he was by their tender mission.

"I have seen kings, princes, potentates and statesmen pass there," he said in speaking of the visit to the unknown's tomb, "but the pilgrimage of you American mothers has moved me most of all."

Ambassador Edge Speaks.

Ambassador Walter E. Edge spoke at the reception, assuring them that their sacrifice had not been in vain and reminding them that their sons and husbands were cared for with tender hands.

Father Barker, of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, suggested that Americans should add two stars to the 48 now borne by their flag, a gold star for the mothers and a silver one for the fathers. Dean Frederick W. Beekman, of the American Procathedral for Protestants, repeated Mr. Edge's assurance that mothers who gave their sons could feel certain that the world had been made better, and said Gen. John J. Pershing had urged him to tell them so.

Both groups of the Gold Star Mothers and wives who have reached France thus far were in Paris tonight. The first has concluded its tour of the battlefield cemeteries The second, which arrived only Friday, will start tomorrow morning.

Two Are Seriously Ill.

Only two of the American women, most of whom are elderly, have developed serious illness. Officials of the pilgrimage said today that Mrs. Mary Reynolds, of Damascus, Ohio, and Mrs. Florence Williams, of Portsmouth, Ohio, were gravely ill, with some fear felt for their recovery.

Mrs. Reynolds is in the American Hospital suffering from acute peritonitis. Mrs. Williams contracted bronchial pneumonia while visiting her son's grave in Romagnes Cemetery. She is at the Hotel Nouvel in Verdun, from where late news said she was improved but her condition still was grave. She is 72 years old. Mrs. Reynolds also showed some improvement, but Army physicians still were alarmed by her condition.

London Weather Kind to Them.

London, May 26 (A.P.).—England was kind today to the Gold Star Mothers and wives of the Twenty-seventh Division, and even the famous London weather eased up a bit. The little doughboy hats of the Twenty-seventh, which the mothers are wearing, dotted many parts of the British capital as the visitors today took their first opportunity of seeing the city.

The police stopped traffic, Londoners eagerly offered to aid, and even the sun shone brightly as the little bands of women marched through the streets. Only one mother of this contingent, Mrs. Gertrude Harris, of New York, has a son buried in England, but most of the party will go to Brookwood Cemetery with her tomorrow.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THERE will not be a more graphic chapter in American history than the story, when it is written, of the mad dash of the Four Horsemen back from Rapidan Saturday night. One can see them now—Senators Allen, Goldsborough, Hatfield and Walcott; see them sitting there behind the driver in their foam-flecked automobile, balls of fire issuing from the rear wheels and only the clear night sky ahead.

Certainly the gallop of Mr. P. Revere pales into insignificance when compared with this great dash. Onward, they came down the mountainside, hurtling little mountain brooks and obstacles known as the marines, down through Criglersville and then onto the asphalt stretch that points to the Nation's Capital.

* * * *

IT frightens one when he realizes that he is living in the midst of history-making such as this; the drama of it grips him, unnerves him and leaves him a hopeless wreck, especially when he is awakened at midnight as were the newspapermen on Saturday night.

All out over the country plain folk were retiring and making ready for an early start for church. The crops had been left for the day of rest, the lights of the Nation's marts had dimmed.

But matters of state brought the Four Horsemen riding through the night. "Save that tariff! Save that tariff!" was the cry.

As to what they did when they got here no one knows save themselves. One may rest assured that they did something. Looking at the matter in a very practical way it would seem that about the only thing they could have done was to rush breathlessly to the printer and still the fingers that were working over the tariff bill.

Their mission was a grave one and unquestionably it was fulfilled. They had gone to Rapidan and told Mr. Hoover that something was in the bill which disturbed him. That there was not is beside the point.

As also is the fact that had the bill been all wrong they could have done nothing about it except browbeat the printer until they were thrown out, which is quite likely what would have happened to them.

* * * *

BUT to say that because of this their ride will not make a moving narrative in history is to overlook the space which is given to the Revere incident, and the fact that Hobson's sinking of the Merrimac in Santiago Harbor was a futile undertaking that did not accomplish its purpose in the first place and which was a good thing for the American Navy that it did not in the second.

It is not the success of these great undertakings that count. It is the brave hearts that essay them. And there is no one to gainsay that it was four brave hearts that sped over the Virginia roads Saturday night. My goodness! Suppose they had had a blow out.

CHINA NATIONALISTS FACE SERIOUS CRISIS

Revolts, Banditry, Failures of Crops Menace Chiang, Fighting Alliance.

RED RUMORS REVIVED

Shanghai, May 26 (A.P.).—The Nationalist government of China tonight faced another crisis menacing its safety. President Chiang Kai Shek, personally commanding the government forces in Honan Province, which since May 8 have been attempting to turn back the Northern Alliance (rebel) armies, was informed by Finance Minister Soong that immediate victory was imperative to prevent grave detrimental developments within the government.

Backing his appeal for the quick defeat of the rebels, who have fought a series of battles with Chiang's troops, the minister's telegram stated that Communistic and bandit depredations throughout China, failure of crops and demoralized business were combining to present the gravest menace to the Nationalist government had encountered in its brief and turbulent existence.

Treasury Badly Drained.

The government's depleted treasury has been subjected to an almost continuous levy to meet a succession of revolts, to wrestle with banditry which has scoured several provinces, and with looting and massacre. Fields unplanted by farmers, who turned bandits or soldiers, are unproductive. The country's buying power has faded due to the drop in price of silver and business failures are numerous.

The old story of alleged Russian participation in Communistic activities was revived today. A representative of the Nationalist government, upon completing a tour of the Yangtse Valley, the heart of China, asserted that the various Red armies of China were instigated by the Russian Third Internationale to terrorize the populace. The purpose was to embarrass the Nationalist government, it was reported.

Alliance Claims Victory.

Fighting a crucial series of battles with the Northern Alliance of generals, the government has withdrawn its troops from many provinces. In consequence banditry, which has pillaged Kiangsi, Fukien and Kwangtung provinces in South China for many months has spread to virtually all provinces south of the Yangtse River and to several north of that artery.

The reports of continued success of the Nationalists against the northern rebels were contradicted today. The Northerners declared that in a battle of the past two days, near Lanfeng, in Honan, they had taken 20,000 prisoners and forced the Nationalists to retreat.

Agreeing that there had been heavy losses on both sides, the Nationalist leaders asserted their forces were converging on Cheng Chow from eastern and southern Honan for a decisive battle.

COURT OUSTS PITTS CONTEMPT CHARGE

Tardy Testimony in Answer to Subpena Declared Satisfactory.

DOUBTS WIN DISMISSAL

A criminal contempt of court charge against G. Bryan Pitts, former chairman of the board of the F. H. Smith Co., was dismissed yesterday in District Supreme Court by Justice William Hitz.

The charge was preferred after Pitts was alleged to have failed to answer a subpena served last December for appearance before the referee in bankruptcy in the Boyle-Robertson Co. bankruptcy proceedings. Justice Hitz, in dismissing the charge, pointed out that Pitts had appeared last week before the referee and given testimony "satisfactory, if tardy." This, the justice, said disposed of the civil aspect of the alleged contempt, leaving only the criminal aspect.

"Because of the many doubts both as to the facts and the law in this case to which the respondent is entitled to the benefit, I will discharge him," the justice said, adding that the advice of counsel is not a defense to a contempt proceeding. He also pointed out that he could not subscribe to the theory of migratory citizenship which formed the basis of the advice and declared that when a person established citizenship and availed himself of its benefits it is presumed to continue and the burden is upon him to show that he made a change.

Pitts had testified that until last November he was a citizen of the District but that on December 11 he was a resident of New York, later removing his residence to Florida. Pitts was represented by Attorneys Wilton J. Lambert, Rudolph H. Yeatman and Frang G. Raichle.

Old Man Overhead Gets the Gate!

THE bugaboo of the retail automotive industry is Old Man Overhead, as disguised by show rooms as pretentious as the throne room of old King Midas, supposingly strategically placed on what our blue-coated guardians would designate as arterial highways, but in reality only a landlord's paradise. Peopled with an esprit de corps of gentlemen skilled in the art of persuasion and marshalled under that grand old campaigner, General Quota. After their triumphal entry, ye mere publican finds himself alone with a motor vehicle, whose price, of course, includes most liberally the cost of retaining Old Man Overhead and his act.

But the old order changeth—and DM has wrought the change! DM, who essaying the roll of Dick Murphy, has provided many a Dependable Motor car—now insists upon Dependable Merchandising.

So "the pink slip" entered the pay envelope of Old Man Overhead last Saturday night at our Fourteenth Street showroom. DM is going to merge his sales crew with the home office boys up at 1724 Kalorama Road. Still selling Reos and believe us, a Reo is so fine an automobile that it doesn't take a Louvre Gallery setting to convince you of its beauty and superiority.

We're off the beaten pathway, but 'twas Emerson who remarked, "If a man but make a better mouse trap, the world will beat a pathway to his door." We're offering Reo, the 100,000-mile car and we know we can offer you better values for your money since Old Man Overhead left our midst. DM would like to suggest that before you invest in motor transportation it would be to your advantage to see him FIRST!

Hunter Focus Of Attention At Polo Ball

Annual Event at Willard Attracts Brilliant Assembly.

By JEAN ELIOT.

IF Hunter, famous cavalry mount and polo pony, reports for "sick call" today, it's all the fault of the guests at the polo ball. His loose box at one end of the Willard ballroom was the focus of interest last evening and, somewhat bored, but always the gentleman, he consumed enough sugar to put any pony out of commission. Voted the best polo pony in the War Department string, Hunter had been invited to be a special guest at the ball; and, shod in "ballroom shoes," he had danced his way delicately across the floor to the "box" reserved for him. Above this was posted a record of his achievement on polo, hunting and battle fields, covering a record of 19 years.

Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen, who had ridden Hunter when he was in Germany with the American Army of occupation, paid his respects to his former mount in the course of the evening; and another who insisted on "shaking hands with Hunter" was former Representative John Philip Hill, recognizing an old friend of his wartime days.

Gen. and Mrs. Allen and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Charles G. Treat were among those who entertained box parties at the ball. The two men are known as "the fathers of polo in the Army." Among the first Army officers to take up the game, they started playing in the late nineties and kept it up until they retired from active service a few years ago.

The polo ball is always distinctive and colorful. The familiar Willard ballroom was transformed for the occasion into a replica of a famous Long Island Polo Club. The floor was laid off as a miniature polo field, with regulation goal post and side boards. Awnings atop the boxes and bright-colored sun umbrellas made a picture of the club gallery. Tucked away behind a wing fence of white pickets a famous jazz orchestra played; and refreshments were served on an awninged balcony, simulating a country club veranda.

One had only to glimpse the standard of flags in one corner to realize how important was official recognition given the fete. There were the flags of the Assistant Secretaries of War and the Navy, wit hthe four-starred admiral's flag and the four-starred general's flag. Boxes reserved for dignitaries were also marked with the pennants denoting their rank.

The Minister of Guatemala and Mme. Recines entertained at dinner last evening in honor of the Chilean Ambassador and Senora de Davila. Other guests were the Minister of Panama and Senora de Alfaro, Senora de Grisanti, the Charge d'Affaires of El Salvador and Senora de Leiva, the Charge d'Affaires of Argentina and Senora de Enciso, the United States Minister to Salvador and Mrs. Warren D. Fair Gallery Views Tennis Despite Cold Postponed Matches Seen by Enthusiasts at Chevy Chase.

Hot dogs were much more in demand than ice cream cones in the "entr'actes" of the tennis at the Chevy Chase Club yesterday—the finals, postponed from Saturday, of the Davis Cup matches which put the Mexican team out of the running and gave the United States team opportunity to go on in the fight to wrest the famous international trophy from the French. Postponement and the coming of cool weather had rather thinned out the gallery, which had witnessed the first two days of play. But a good many enthusiasts were present.

The Spanish Ambassador and Senora de Padilla occupied a box and members of the embassy groups filled the boxes reserved for the German Ambassador and Frau von Prittwitz and the British Ambassador and Lady Lindsay. Members of the Mexican Embassy staff were also present, as they had been each day, and Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general of the Pan-American Union, spent most of the afternoon in their box, chatting animatedly in Spanish.

Others glimpsed were Mrs. Henry Winfield Watson, Mme. Ekengren, Mrs. Frank B. Freyer, Mrs. Georgia Knox Berry, Col. and Mrs. George C. Thorpe, Mrs. Wilbur Turner, Dr. Charles Noble Gregory and Capt. Joel T. Boone, the President's physician, who was present each day of the tourney.

To the Members of the House of Representatives

Gentlemen:

Would you vote to make unemployment worse?

Would you vote to increase wheat or cotton acreage further?

No, of course not. No one would deliberately vote to add to unemployment, or to increase farm overproduction.

Yet, if you vote for the Reece substitute for the Norris Muscle Shoals bill, you will be voting to enforce additional overproduction in the nitrogen and fertilizer industries.

Why Try to Force Fertilizer Production by Act of Congress?

Is there a shortage of fertilizer? No.

Are we confronted with an insufficent supply of nitrogen? No.

Are fertilizer prices too high compared with farm products? No.

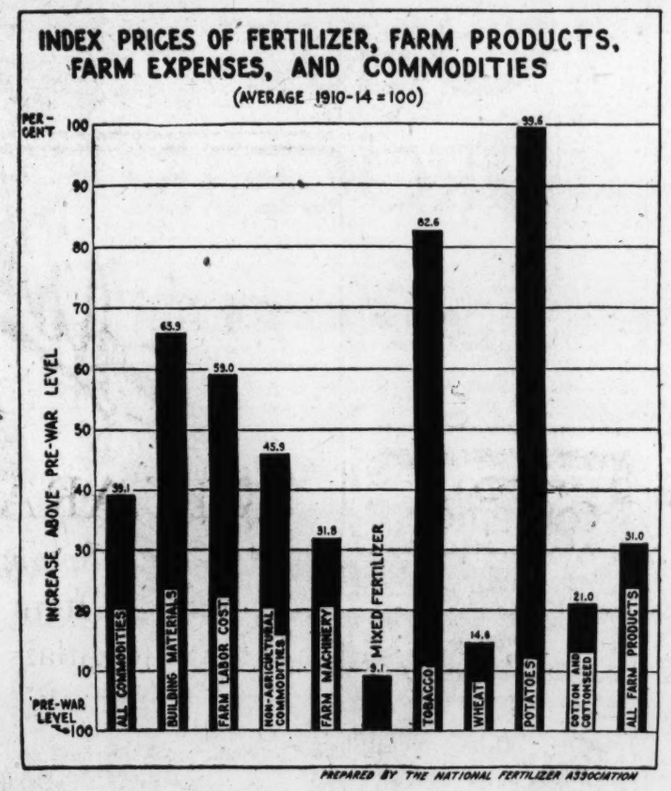
Are nitrogen prices too high? No.

The Norris resolution, as passed by the Senate, provides primarily for production of power by a Government corporation, with provision for fertilizer research intended to cheapen costs and increase consumption.

The Reece substitute, now before the House, provides for private operation but inexplicably subordinates production of power and places the stress on further overproduction of fertilizer.

We submit that the forcing of nitrogen or fertilizer production at Muscle Shoals is uneconomic and inadvisable for the following reasons:

1. Private industry in the United States is producing 180,000 tons of by-product nitrogen and has installed capacity to produce 140,000 tons of synthetic nitrogen annually—the equivalent of more than 2,000,000 tons of nitrate of soda.



2. Fertilizer prices are less than 10 per cent above pre-war, while the average price of all commodities is nearly 40 per cent above the pre-war level.

3. The bill contemplates also that any lessee shall be forced to produce phosphoric acid. Nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash constitute the three indispensable plant foods. There is already an excess capacity for the production of phosphoric acid in the United States, and other phosphoric acid plants are being built by private enterprise.

4. So far as potash is concerned, Muscle Shoals offers no help whatever, because there are no nearby potash deposits of suitable quality.

5. The Reece substitute would compel the manufacture of complete fertilizer, wholly ignoring the fact that present demand calls for less than 8,000,000 tons and that existing plants have a capacity to produce 12,000,000 tons.

DENTIST SENTENCED FOR LIFE IN KILLING

Dr. Bass Makes Guilty Plea in Insurance Fraud Death of Mechanic.

EN ROUTE TO PRISON

Bentonville, Ark., May 26 (A.P.).—Dr. Andrew J. Bass, retired wealthy dentist of Columbia, Mo., tonight was on his way to the pentientiary at Little Rock to begin the life sentence imposed on him for the killing of William R. Pearman, Columbia garage mechanic, and his coconspirator in a $200,000 insurance fraud plot.

Abruptly ending his case before the trial began at a special term of Circuit Court here today, Dr. Bass, on advice of his counsel, entered a plea to guilty to the charge of killing Pearman, whose body, with three bullet wounds in the head, was found by the highway near Gravette, Ark., exactly two months ago.

Tears came to the eyes of the 55-year-old dentist, one-time candidate for Congress, as he heard Judge Earl Blansett pronounce the sentence, recommended by Prosecuting Attorney John S. Combs by agreement with defense counsel. He accepted it and refused to make a statement to newspapermen.

His left arm was bandaged as he came into court, the result of an attempt to kill himself in his cell by cutting an artery with a razor blade.

While several of Pearman's relatives, including his widow, Mrs. Maude Pearman, were in court today and later visited the jail to obtain some personal effects of the slain man, neither Mrs. Bass nor Bass' two young sons attended the court session.

To explain their disposal of the case defense counsel issued a statement in which they described the plea of guilty by Bass as "the commonsense method" of procedure because of Dr. Bass' mental conditions, which they predicted would soon lead to his transfer from the penitentiary to the State Hospital for Nervous Diseases.

The case was disposed of in less than an hour. Prosecutor Combs said he accepted the defense proposal for a life sentence because he believed it was a greater punishmnt than death in the electric chair.

Believe Missouri Crime Scene.

Defense counsel told the court they believed the crime was committed in Missouri and the body was brought to Arkansas, but that sufficient evidence had not been obtained to establish Missouri as the scene of the crime, although Bass says the killing took place near Rocheport, Mo.

Pearman was shot to death in a plot to collect $200,000 insurance on his life which he had taken out at Kansas City in four $50,000 policies in the name of William Folta, missing from his Martinsburg, Mo., home for seventeen years.

Mrs. C. E. Warburton Gets Divorce Decree

Philadelphia, May 26 (A.P.).—Mrs. Elizabeth M. Peltz Warburton, was granted a divorce today from C. Egerton Warburton, son of Maj. and Mrs. Barclay H. Warburton, and grandson of the late John Wanamaker. Cruel and barbarous treatment were the grounds, according to counsel for Mrs. Warburton.

Mrs. Warburton is the daughter of Mrs. George M. Dallas Peltz, of Philadelphia. She and Mr. Warburton surprised social circles by eloping to Elkton, Md., on April 28, 1923. At the time Mr. Warburton was 21. His bride was 17.

COMMISSIONERS GET 1932 ESTIMATES FOR CITY SCHOOLS

Harrison School, to cost $200,000; sixteen-room school on the site of the Giddings School, to cost $275,000; two gymnasiums for the Randall Junior High School, to cost $80,000, and two new junior high schools.

Two New Junior Highs.

The proposed new junior high schools would cost $500,000 each, but for each only $200,000 is carried in the 1932 estimates. Sites for both schools already have been purchased. One is to be erected at Eighteenth and Otis streets northwest and the other at Seventh and H streets southwest. This latter would replace the old Jefferson School.

Completion of the Roosevelt High School in 1932 is provided for with an estimate of $600,000 for that purpose. The school authorities also provided $100,000 to complete the colored platoon school in the Northeast section and $300,000 for completion of the Northeast Junior High School. A combination gymnasium and assembly hall in the Whittier School and the school on Broad Branch road also is provided for with $50,000 for each project.

An estimate of $124,479 is provided for the remodeling of the Columbia Junior High School, the Abbott Vocational School, old Business High School and the Morse Elementary School.

Total For Repairs.

An increase of $53,000 over the appropriation carried in the 1931 appropriation bill as passed by the House was asked in the item for repairs and improvements. This total of $528,000 was needed to provide, among other things, school officials explained, for the installation of four modern steam heating plants for schools and a betterment of other heating plants.

One senior high school, three junior high schools and the Northeast Platoon School will be completed and ready for occupancy before the end of the 1932 fiscal year, and provision must be made for equipping and maintaining them, school authorities said, in explaining increased estimates for these items. The new schools which will be completed include the Roosevelt High School, for which $190,000 was asked for equipment the Leal and the Northeast junior high schools, for the equipment of each of which $50,736 was asked; the Northeast Platoon School, for equipment of which $17,741 was asked, and the Gordon Junior High School, for equipment of which $15,544 was asked.

The total asked in the 1932 estimates for equipping new schools was $393,159, an increase of $328,159 over the amount for that purpose carried in the House 1931 appropriation bill now pending before Congress.

Ninety-three More Teachers.

The opening of new schools which will be completed in 1932 was given by school authorities as a partial explanation of the $59,567 increase they asked for in the fund for the care and maintenance of schools. The total asked for in the estimates for this work was $866,477, and included provision for caretakers and employes needed in the new schools as well as provision for the repair and more careful maintenance of existing buildings. Several schools are to be painted.

An increase of 93 teachers over the number in the schools on April 15, 1930, is provided for in the estimates. On April 15 there were 2,730 teachers, 10 librarians and 24 annual substitutes on the school pay rolls. The House 1931 appropriation bill increased the number by 38 teachers and the 1932 estimates increased the number of teachers to 2,823, leaving the librarians and substitutes at the same figure. Fifty-eight new elementary classrooms which will be opened in 1932 will necessitate employment of 17 additional teachers with 2 teaching principals, while the new high and junior high schools will require 86 teachers, but the total additional teachers required will be reduced by changes in assignments among those now on the rolls.

Expansion of Libraries.

The salaries for teachers and librarians carried in the estimates total $6,566,700, an increase of $294,700 over the House 1931 bill. Sixteen new clerks are asked for, together with changes in the status of present employes to provide seven new administrative and two new teaching principals.

An item of $10,000 is asked for improvement of the high and junior high school reference libraries which, school officers said, are now "very inadequate." It is proposed to provide increased funds for these libraries until each school has a reference library representing expenditure of $2,000. An appropriation of $3,000 now is being divided among eight schools, it was said.

Extension of School Bus Service Planned

Apparently deciding that it is easier and more practicable as well as more economical to bring the child to the school than to take the school to the child, District school authorities propose an extension of the transportation service inaugurated for the benefit of crippled and tubercular school children

In their estimates for the fiscal year 1932 just submitted to the District Commissioners, school officials included an item of $2,500 to provide for three motor buses which would carry children of Bradbury Heights to and from schools. Two buses would run to and from two white schools and one to and from the nearest colored school. The nearest colored school, they said, is 2.9 miles away, while the white schools are 2.1 and 2.8 miles distant, they said.

If the innovation is a success the practice may be extended, school authorities said.

BANK LOOTERS GET MORE THAN $150,000

Police Say St. Louis Robbers Made Entrance With Duplicate Key.

EMPLOYES FACE QUIZ

St. Louis, May 26 (A.P.).—Burglars who looted the safety deposit vault of the Grand National Bank here yesterday may have obtained cash and securities in excess of $150,000, officials of the bank announced late today. The burglars took about $20,000 of the bank's cash, $94,000 worth of negotiable bonds belonging to one customer, and an undetermined amount of securities and cash from 29 other deposit boxes.

At first the loss was estimated at $14,000, but mounted steadily today as bank officials and customers of the bank checked their losses.

Ed Mays, president of the bank, said insurance covered the bank's loss.

While Mays expressed no opinion as to how the burglars gained entrance to the bank, police worked on the theory that entrance was gained through the front door by use of a duplicate key. Several employes of the bank had keys, police said. It was planned to question all the employes holding such keys.

No one saw the burglars enter, and Benjamin Strozier, Negro porter, and William Britten, custodian of the vault, who were bound and gagged, were the only persons who saw the robbers.

Strozier told police there were five or six burglars, all wearing handkerchiefs over their faces. The robbers were in the bank several hours.

Emmett M. Myers, resident vice president of the Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland, in a statement tonight said payment of losses probably will be contested by the insurance company. He said, "Officials of the bank apparently failed to provide adequate protection in the form of building security, burglar alarms and similar commonly used devices."

VOTE ON PAY RAISE IS SET FOR MONDAY

House Leaders in Accord on Measure to Aid Police, Fire Departments.

SIMMONS GIVES GROUND

The Capper-Zihlman bill to raise the pay of Washington's policemen and firemen will come up for a vote in the House on Monday next at 4 o'clock. There is every indication that it will pass.

A decision to let the bill come up at that time was reached by House leaders yesterday after those who figured in the deadlock on the measure showed a disposition to compromise.

Only one of the amendments to the bill now is in dispute, that affecting pay increases of third-class privates in the Police and Fire Departments; and there is good reason to believe that a modified version of this will be agreed to before Monday.

Having triumphed in his fight for other amendments to the bill, Representative Robert G. Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska, appears to be in a mood to give ground on this particular amendment.

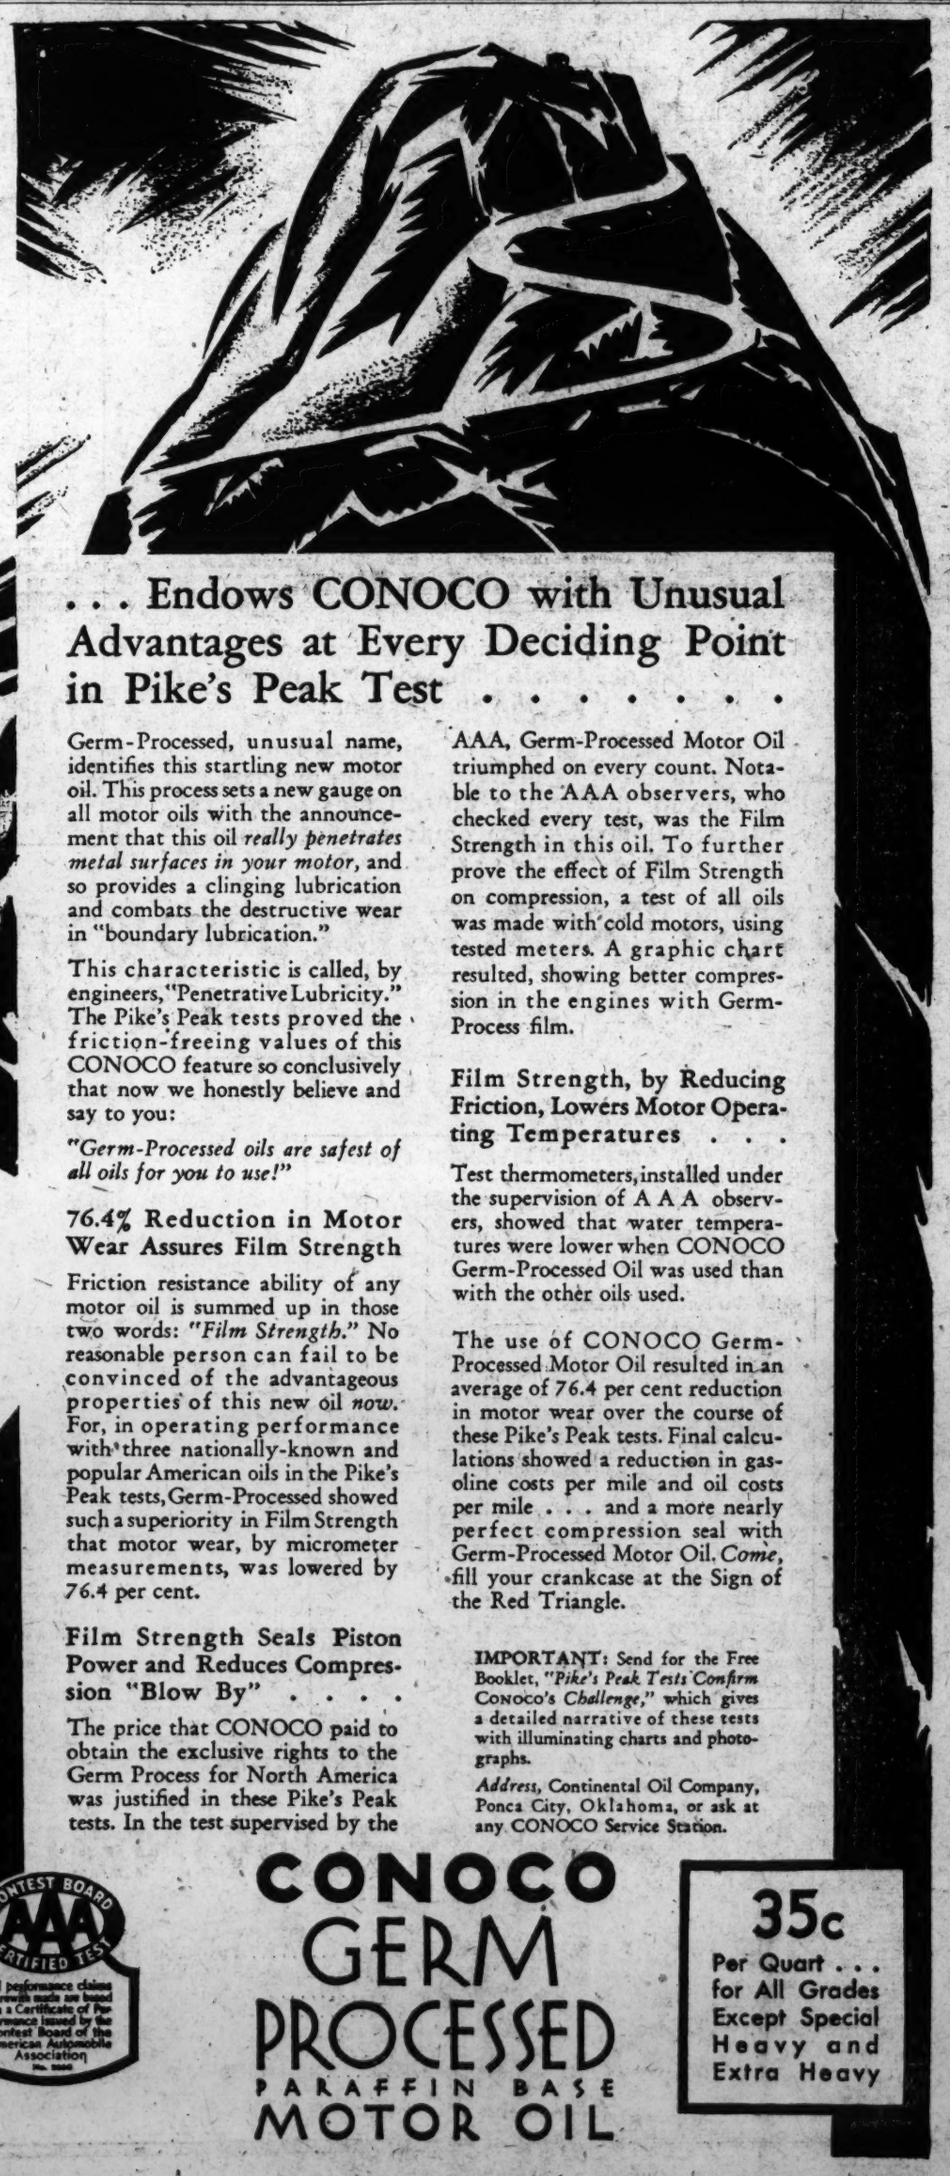
GERM PROCESS .....



. . . Endows CONOCO with Unusual Advantages at Every Deciding Point in Pike's Peak Test . . . . . .

Germ-Processed, unusual name, identifies this startling new motor oil. This process sets a new gauge on all motor oils with the announcement that this oil really penetrates metal surfaces in your motor, and so provides a clinging lubrication and combats the destructive wear in "boundary lubrication."

This characteristic is called, by engineers, "Penetrative Lubricity." The Pike's Peak tests proved the friction-freeing values of this CONOCO feature so conclusively that now we honestly believe and say to you:

"Germ-Processed oils are safest of all oils for you to use!"

76.4% Reduction in Motor Wear Assures Film Strength

Friction resistance ability of any motor oil is summed up in those two words: "Film Strength." No reasonable person can fail to be convinced of the advantageous properties of this new oil now. For, in operating performance with three nationally-known and popular American oils in the Pike's Peak tests, Germ-Processed showed such a superiority in Film Strength that motor wear, by micrometer measurements, was lowered by 76.4 per cent.

Film Strength Seals Piston Power and Reduces Compression "Blow By" . . . .

The price that CONOCO paid to obtain the exclusive rights to the Germ Process for North America was justified in these Pike's Peak tests. In the test supervised by the AAA, Germ-Processed Motor Oil triumphed on every count. Notable to the AAA observers, who checked every test, was the Film Strength in this oil. To further prove the effect of Film Strength on compression, a test of all oils was made with cold motors, using tested meters. A graphic chart resulted, showing better compression in the engines with Germ-Process film.

Film Strength, by Reducing Friction, Lowers Motor Operating Temperatures . . .

Test thermometers, installed under the supervision of A A A observers, showed that water temperatures were lower when CONOCO Germ-Processed Oil was used than with the other oils used.

The use of CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil resulted in an average of 76.4 per cent reduction in motor wear over the course of these Pike's Peak tests. Final calculations showed a reduction in gasoline costs per mile and oil costs per mile . . . and a more nearly perfect compression seal with Germ-Processed Motor Oil. Come, fill your crankcase at the Sign of the Red Triangle.

IMPORTANT: Send for the Free Booklet, "Pike's Peak Tests Confirm Conoco's Challenge," which gives a detailed narrative of these tests with illuminating charts and photographs.

CONVICTION REVIEW GRANTED O'CONNELL

Supreme Court Issues Writ Asked by Party Leader, Cited in Contempt.

PRISON TERM INVOLVED

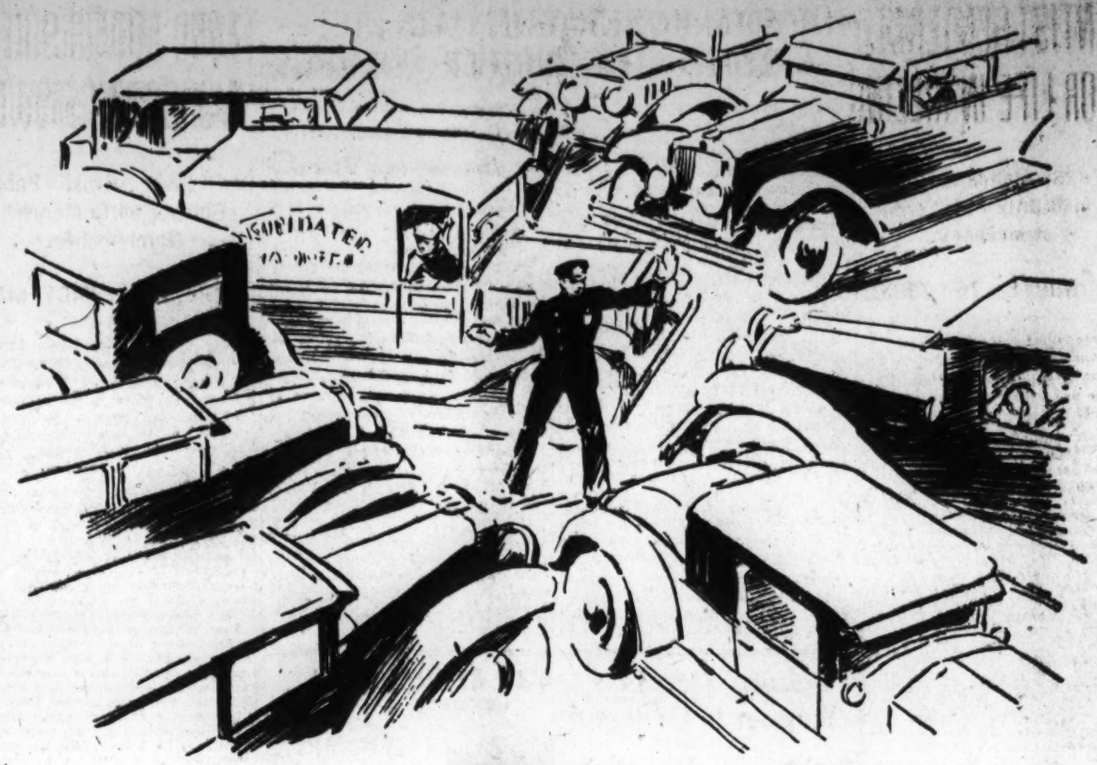
Daniel P. O'Connell, Democratic leader of Albany, N. Y., yesterday was granted a review by the United States Supreme Court of his conviction of contempt of court for refusal to answer questions before a Federal grand jury during an investigation of the alleged Albany baseball pool.

The action was taken by the court in granting the application for a writ of certiorari submitted by Mr. O'Connell to have reviewed the judgment of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, which adjudicated him in contempt and imposed sentence of three months in the Federal House of Detention for failure to answer certain questions propounded to him when he was brought before a grand jury in New York City during investigation of the alleged baseball pool.

On behalf of Mr. O'Connell, the application for the writ of certiorari was submitted in open court a week ago yesterday by his counsel, Wilton J. Lambert and R. H. Yeatman, in which it was claimed that Justice Mack, sitting in the New York court, had summarily adjudicated the petitioner in contempt of court because of his failure to answer questions of District Attorney Tuttle regarding which O'Connell had claimed his constitutional privilege, asserting that to answer would tend to incriminate him.

It was also contended that at the time of his conviction there was no proper complaint made against him to which he could intelligently answer and that, therefore, he was deprived of due process of law in violation of his constitutional right. When the case was heard by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, the action of Justice Mack was sustained by a majority of the court, the dissenting opinion being submitted by Chief Justice Manton.

It was further claimed that the proceedings before the grand jury were intended to form the basis of criminal action against the petitioner. By the action of the Supreme Court yesterday in granting the writ, it is said that an opportunity will be given for a decision on the review which it is hoped will harmonize the authorities with reference to practice and procedure properly to be adopted in contempt cases where the alleged contempt has been committed outside of the presence of the court or before a grand jury.



Taking the Haphazard out of the Situation

Some years back we who did not travel to Europe heard with wonderment about the London "bobbies", as the policemen were called, who regulated traffic simply by holding up a hand.

Traffic here did not seem to require such regulation, and we all doubted whether American drivers could be so readily halted, and then told to proceed.

What London then had in the way of traffic regulation, nearly every county seat in America now has, and needs. Things have speeded up mightily—and they are still speeding up faster. Industry is speeding up, in exactly the same way.

This faster-moving industry is reaching every community. Joint effort—concerted effort, in the benefits of which every citizen has the opportunity to share, is speeding up industry as never before. There has been a growth in the number of stockholders of one important group of corporations, including banks, public utilities, railroads and industrial concerns, from 1,820,988 last year to 2,546,247 in 1930.

There are today, all told, over 15,000,000 individual investors in American industrial concerns—twice the entire population of Canada! And these industrial concerns, as a whole, are bringing benefits directly or indirectly to all the 120,000,000 people in America.

Southern Dairies began a few years ago, by bringing together the scattered efforts of the Southeastern section of the United States, to take the "haphazard" out of the dairy industry in this section—organizing and increasing production, transportation and market, for the benefit of all—eliminating losses due to dull seasons and lack of organization, and collecting for its shareholders who invested millions only a small fraction of the savings effected.

You who daily consume the products of this widespread organization furnish the best testimony of its growing success.

PACKARD-DIESEL AIRCRAFT ENGINE

At Our Showrooms

This Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday

We Are Proud to Introduce to the Air-Minded Public of Washington the Greatest Advance in Aircraft Power in the Entire History of Aviation

THIS engine is destined, according to conservative estimates, to mark the beginning of a new era in world flying—an era of tremendously increased air travel.

Three Years of Development

Packard foresaw the need for radial, air-cooled aircraft engines in 1927, but was not content to build "just another" conventional gasoline motor. Instead, the opportunity to make a truly noteworthy contribution to the science of flight attracted Packard engineering genius.

So, equipped with the finest of facilities—adequate resources, the best of materials and machinery and an engineering staff of unsurpassed ability and experience—Packard spent three years at the so-called "impossible" task of adapting the Diesel principle to aircraft engines.

A Packard Triumph

The Packard-Diesel eliminates the principal causes of motor failure. It has no carburetor, no magnetos, no spark plugs. It has but one valve per cylinder. Each cylinder has an individual fuel pump, making it an independent working unit. The fuel is ordinary furnace oil, fired spontaneously by the heat of the air compressed by the pistons—and the engine will run as long as fuel flows to the cylinders.

There are three major advantages: Greater reliability because of simplicity of design. Greater economy because of lower fuel consumption, the latter permitting greater pay loads with longer range of flight. Greater safety because the fire hazard is removed. These three advantages mark the greatest advance in aircraft power in the history of aviation.

The Packard-Diesel, after exacting tests by the United States Army, has been granted Department of Commerce A. T. C. No. 43, with an official rating of 225 horsepower. (With a weight of 510 pounds, this means but 2.26 pounds per horsepower.)

INDIA POLICY DEBATE BEGINS IN COMMONS

Labor Government Upheld as Benn Pleads for Understanding.

EXPLOITATION IS SCORED

London, May 26 (A.P.).—Debate on Great Britain's Indian situation began in the House of Commons today with a plea from Wedgwood Benn, secretary of state for India, for a "rebirth of mutual understanding and respect" between the mother country and her restless Asiatic domain.

The discussion was adjourned without the taking of a vote. Mr. Benn, defending Labor's Indian policy, asserted that in spite of apparent unrest the vast majority of Indians were still continuing their peaceful pursuits. He declared the government intended to keep a firm hand on malcontents.

A. Fenner Brockway, one of the Left Wing Labor, described the Indian view of the Peshawar rioting in April. He read a long report from the president of the Punjab congress committee blaming British police and troops for the riots.

Disorders Confined to Cities.

Mr. Fenner Brockway said that he did not necessarily accept the report as accurate, but thought at least that the Indian side of the affair should be given. The congress president accused the troops of shooting down Indians who were maintaining a nonviolent attitude.

Mr. Benn's statement occupied most of the afternoon session. He was interrupted occasionally both by left-wing and by regular members of his own party.

Mr. Benn remarked that the disorders thad been confined to the urban districts, except in the Gujerat, and said the government had no intention of letting the civil resistance movement spread to the countryside. He added at this point that the Moslems of India had in general held aloof from the disorders.

Conference in October.

The next step, he continued, is the round-table conference between British and Indian leaders, scheduled to begin in London, October 20. He declared that guidance in overcoming the difficulties of the conference must come from Indian opinion, and said that if the meeting was able to reach substantial agreement no government could ignore its work.

Then he asserted there was a school of thought in Britain which regarded India as a market to be exploited in behalf of British interests.

"If such a belief were commonly held in this country the days of the British Commonwealth would be numbered. What moral justification can there be for an empire built upon the principle of exploitation of one race by another?"

Packers' Decree Report Is Ordered

Senate Tells Mitchell to Reveal Stand Toward Change Efforts.

(Associated Press.)

The Attorney General was called upon yesterday to report to the Senate the attitude of the Justice Department toward efforts to secure modification of the packers' consent decree of 1920, which confined packers to the packing business. He also was asked to report the extent to which the decree has been enforced.

The requests were made in a resolution by Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, which said Armour & Co. and Swift & Co. were attempting to "destroy" the decree, and that "Congress believes necessary steps should be taken to bring about the enforcement of this decree in the interest o fthe people of America.

The resolution asked the Attorney General also to inform the Senate whether the Department "takes the position that the fight over the modification of the packers consent decree shall be conducted by the packers involved and the Wholesale Grocers Association, without active and vigorous control of the case by the Department of Justice."

FLOOD MOVES SOUTH MAROONING TOWNS

Red River Crest Passes Shreveport to Menace Natchitoches.

PUSH-CARS CARRY MAIL

Shreveport, La., May 26 (A.P.).—The height of the northwest Louisiana flood coursing down Red River and its valley lowlands, marooning small towns and making refugees of hundreds of families, today centered in Red River Parish, 25 to 30 miles southeast of Shreveport.

The high water's progress from there will be through Natchitoches, Rapides and Avoyelles Parishes to the Mississippi River. Flooding is looked for in Nachitoches Parish as the swollen stream moves on but at Alexandria, in Rapides Parish, next in the path of the flood, no expectation of serious consequences was felt today.

Two villages in Red River Parish were marooned as the stream carrying the overfloow from the Shreveport area spread out there. Armistead and East Point were surrounded on all sides and mail was carried into the villages over the Louisiana and Arkansas Railroad on push cars with men in water waist deep, feeling their way.

Hundreds of families in the parish were grouped about in refugee camps set up by the Red Cross and are being cared for under plans formulated at a meeting of the Red Cross today at Coushatta, county seat of Red River Parish.

The volume of water which struck with force in Red River Parish with a break in the river levee yesterday poured down from the extreme northwest parishes of Caddo, Bossier, Webster and De Soto, where the Shreveport Journal estimated 100,000 acres had been inundated through the backwaters of the river, canals and bayous. The situation in those parishes today was improving.

In northeast Louisiana the Ouichita River today had flooded 70 to 80 gas wells in Moorhouse Parish near Monroe, but the opinion was expressed that the banks would hold the heaviest of the flow.

DEAREST GENEVIEVE: All anyone is thinking of this week, is the holiday week-end. Parties are being planned to go to the various beaches or to attractive country places adjacent to Washington. This means new clothes, frocks and hats, and bathing suits, for, who knows, it may turn out to be hot and fine, and really summer weather.

Many of the shops are featuring reduced prices this week, which is very kind and thoughtful of them, considering that most people like to stretch the clothes budget to the very limit.

June Weddings Hold the Center —of attention at the present time. The usual large number of weddings are scheduled for this month of brides and roses. Photographs of some of the girls who are to be married make an interesting window at Underwood & Underwood's this week.

A wedding involves so many uses for photographs. This publication and that publication wants your picture from the time your engagement is announced until you say "I do" at the altar.

The bridal party, the bridesmaids, the bride, the bride and groom, singly and in groups, all must be photographed, either in the familiar setting of the home or in the studio at Underwood's. It has become the thing to have a picture of the happy pair photographed together as soon as the engagement is announced. This is always in great demand by magazines and other publications. Of course it goes without saying that since your picture is sure to be wanted, you may as well take the trouble to have good ones made, pictures you will be proud of, pictures you will like, pictures to cherish, as mementoes of the occasion.

Don't forget to stop by Underwood & Underwood's and see the window of pictures of all the pretty girls who will take the vows next month.

Tub Silks At Schwartz

—are only $12.75, and such attractive models they are! Lovely blues and yellows and pinks, some with satin stripes or a woven figure. The little cap sleeves and high waist-line predominate. The lines are good, the tailoring excellent. At this price you will consider them a find.

For this week, in time for the holiday, gowns which have been $32.50 and $29.75 are now $19.75. In this group are flat crepes, crepe de chines in colors and styles for afternoon and evening, for country and town wear.

Every day a sale day at Schwartz still prevails. The public knows by now that this means something worth while. Schwartz, 1325 Connecticut avenue.

Week-Day Luncheon At the Iron Gate

—offers much of pleasure and comfort to the person who likes a cool attractive place which also serves good food. There is service in the garden now with gay orange and green umbrellas to shield you from the sun, and to add a note to the scenery. The courtyard approaching the Iron Gate and the garden are more like little places in Paris than anything you will find in Washington.

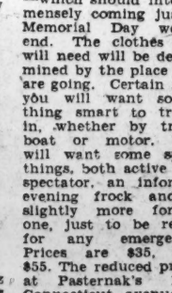
Beginning May 30, The Iron Gate will remain open every day until 8:30. On Memorial Day dinner will be served steadily from 12 to 8:30. Luncheon will be served from 12 to 3. You will find plenty of parking space adjacent to The Iron Gate if that is an inducement to you. Luncheons are from 50 cents to $1.25. The $1 dinner will include roast turkey on the menu every day. The Iron Gate, 1734 N street.

Nicholson Studios, Inc. 1117 Twentieth St. N.W.

—is the place where you go to see the exquisite organdy flowers, about which the entire town is talking. Of course you may see them in most of the smart shops around town too, but you will be especially interested in seeing them "where they grow." Flora Mason Nicholson, who created the famous "Powder Rose" has made another ten strike with these luscious "Lotus Flowers," "Country Rosebuds," "Rose Sprays," so adorable for wear on organdy and point d'esprit frocks. As graduation gifts, these are simply perfect. Ask for Organdy Flowers from the Nicholson Studios, 1117 Twentieth street northwest. Telephone, Potomac 4922. At this address they are for sale both wholesale and retail.

Graduation Gifts at Camalier & Buckley

—may be selected from the exhibits of beautiful purses just arrived from European capitals. You will see no smarter purses anywhere in Washington, or, for that matter, anywhere else. Any girl's heart will leap with joy at receiving one of these exquisite purses.



Whether you choose a pouch of silk embroidered in gold and silver threads and charming colorings, with a clasp of jade or amber, or a thin envelope of ecrase leather, you will feel confident that you have the latest in purse fashions.

If the sweet girl graduate is to spend the summer traveling in foreign lands, you might select for her one of the purses designed for secreting the passports and other important documents. Prices range from $5 to $250, so it should be easy to decide. Camalier & Buckley, 1141 Connecticut Avenue.

Pasternak Has Holiday Specials

—which should interest you immensely coming just before the Memorial Day week-end. The clothes you will need will be determined by the place you are going. Certain it is you will want something smart to travel in, whether by train, boat or motor. You will want some sport things, both active and spectator, an informal evening frock and a slightly more formal one, just to be ready for any emergency. Prices are $35, $45, $55. The reduced prices at Pasternak's 1219 Connecticut avenue, prevail in all departments. You will be able to pick up some wonderful hats at prices less than they have been.

Be sure to visit the Missy Department on the second floor, where clothes for town and country and every imaginable occasion, in small sizes and large sizes, await you at the smallest prices.

Prices are $15, $19.50 and $27.50.

The Alcazar at 1729 L Street

—opened Saturday, and is already filling an evident need in that neighborhood. Just around the corner from the Mayflower, it is a convenient and attractive place to stop in for a light lunch or a soda, or to buy imported delicacies to take home.

METHODIST REPLIES TO BAPTIST CRITIC

Charge Committee Asked for Trial of Bishop Cannon Denounced as Error.

CITES REPRIMAND MADE

Savannah, Ga., May 26 (A.P.).—The Rev. Walter Anthony, pastor of the Wesley Monumental Methodist Church here, today took issue with the Rev. John E. White, Baptist pastor, who criticized the Methodist conference for not punishing Bishop James Cannon, jr., for alleged speculation in stocks.

In a formal statement the Rev. Mr. Anthony, who returned here yesterday from the conference in Dallas, said the Baptist pastor was in error and that the general conference "did not refuse to bring Bishop Cannon to trial, although the conference committee recommended it," as was charged by the Rev. Mr. White in a sermon.

"It was the committee on episcopacy, referred to by Dr. White, which reached the conclusion that Bishop Cannon should not be brought to trial," the statement said. "Their action under our law is final. I do not think it ought to be final, but it is.

"The committee on episcopacy declined to bring Bishop Cannon to trial as he made an abject, humiliating, heart-breaking confession of error publicly to the conference, and issued a written statement that his error was not intentional and promised not to repeat this conduct.

"The committee issued a scathing public reprimand of Bishop Cannon, calling him by name, and also renounced the whole stock market playing business as being gambling.

"I personally deplore the alleged stock market transactions, and as the conference advanced I became convinced Bishop Cannon had done wrong. I demanded an 'aye and no' vote on his continuance as chairman of the committee on prohibition and social service. I am on record as opposing his continuance.

"Bishop Cannon is a broken, sick man, physically. He has to walk with a crutch. He almost died of an African fever contracted on one of his missionary journeys into that continent. His confession, his apology, his promise of amends, the public reprimand and the rest was enough, the committee thought, to satisfy the demands of Christian conscience. I personally wish he had retired, for this course seems to me the wisest and best."

Theosophists to Meet Thursday.

Beginning Thursday night, the United Lodge of Theosophists will meet on that evening regularly each week in a change of date from Sunday afternoons at its rooms in the Hill Building, Seventeenth and H streets northwest. The subject at the next meeting will be, "What is Theosophy?"

"IN THE PLAYHOUSE"

by JOHN J. DALY

Romantic comedy is the menu at the National this week, with Marion Wells, Walter Gilbert and Clifford Brooke costars in "The Misleading Lady." It is a well-chosen hot-weather offering, a not too heavy plot garnished with toothsome epigrams, and flavored with romance.

In the background is the time-honored theme that civilization is only skin deep, the idea in this case being carried back far beyond the Colonel's Lady and the doubtless estimable Judy—going back, in fact, to the folkways of the cannibals in Patagonia, if such there be, and the way they would react to a super-civilized flirtation. It is not a novel theme, to be sure, and such thinking as it may provide has no doubt been done many years ago, but hot weather is no time for heavy cogitation anyway.

Marion Wells is the ultrasophisticated product of modern manners, who finds that she has inadvertently scratched the epidermis of civilization too deeply. Then she finds that such injuries are contagious and all ends well, as must nearly always be the case in successful plays. Walter Gilbert is he who gets scratched and reverts from the ways of a ballroom ornament to those of his beloved cannibals.

Then there is Clifford Brooke who does quite nicely by the role of the traditional unfortunate ho thinks he is Napoleon. Mr. Brooke by the way turns in an unusually pleasing bit of character acting and deserves to share honors with the two leading performers.

Other members of the National Theater Players offer their usual well-rounded renditions in minor roles, among whom Freddie Sherman should have special mention. Freddie is a reporter in this piece, a reporter who obviously went through the school of experience by attending a performance of "The Front Page." But the authors are probably responsible for that.

All in all, it is worth seeing and, doubtless, by tomorrow night the scene shifters will have acquired enough practice to eliminate the interminably long intermission between the first and second acts. W. C. M.

Sewer Hunted for Boys Who Vanished in Storm

Baltimore, May 26 (A.P.).—In the belief that four boys who disappeared during a storm Saturday afternoon may have been swept down a storm sewer by sudden flood waters, city employes joined with parents and neighbors today in a widespread search. The boys, Wilbert Alban, 15; Donald Moore, 12; Francis Welden, 9, and John Kelly, 14, had been playing near the sewer plant inlet at the edge of the city and had entered it despite warnings of nearby residents.

A rowboat from a city police boat was sent today up a stream into which the drain enters and city employes with gas masks and searchlights resumed search of the drain itself.

UNION PLAN BEATEN BY PRESBYTERIANS

37 VOTES FOR MERGER

Charlottesville, Va., May 26 (A.P.).—Defeat of a proposed merger with the United Presbyterian Church and selection of the School of the Ozarks at Hollister, Mo., for the 1931 meeting place featured today's sessions of the Southern Presbyterian General Assembly.

A tabulation of votes of the 92 Presbyteries on union with the United Presbyterians showed 37 votes in favor of union, 29 against, 25 for postponing action and 1 presbytery not voting.

The vote of 25 presbyteries to postpone action was said to have been prompted largely in anticipation of the larger movement to unite with all Presbyterian bodies.

Heated Report Discussion.

An invitation to hold the 1931 assembly at the School of the Ozarks was extended by D. K. Ferguson, of Marshall, Mo. The invitation also was urged by S. G. Wood, of Auxvasse, Mo. An invitation to hold the assembly at Montreat, N. C., was received from the Mountain Retreat Association, but the commissioners voted, 165 to 80, in favor of the School of the Ozarks.

G. M. McNutt, of Miami, Fla., extended an invitation to meet in Miami in 1932.

The disapproval of Dr. Egbert W. Smith, of Nashville, Tenn., of the report of the permanent committee on the assembly's work, vigorously expressed on the floor of the assembly, provoked for a short while a spirited discussion as the session opened this morning. Declaring the assembly's financial situation to be appalling, Dr. Smith accused the committee on the assembly's work of being blind to this fact. He quoted other delegates to the assembly as saying the committee report was an outrage and camouflage.

Thompson Answers Criticism.

The financial difficulties had been encountered, said Dr. Smith, when the various synods pared the quotas of money to be raised assigned to them. "We may readily infer," he declared, "that the presbyteries will use the same surgical methods when the quotas are passed on to them."

The chairman of the committee under fire, Dr. Ernest Thompson, of Charleston, W Va., gained the floor in defense of his committee's report, which he said mentioned most of the conditions outlined by Dr. Smith.

"They were not explained when the report was submitted," he said, "because I did not care to make a spread-eagle speech." As Dr. Thompson left the auditorium, Dr. Smith replied vigorously that he had the "greatest love" for Dr. Thompson, but Dr. Thompson was "entirely mistaken."

Five Trustees Reelected.

Before the debate could be carried further, Dr. Thomas W. Currie, of Austin, Tex., the moderator sought to iron out the situation by remarking that he wished to buy an overcoat which the delegates thoroughly appreciated, the thermometer having dropped several degrees over the week-end, overcoats being much in evidence.

Dr. J. B. Hutton, of Jackson, Miss., rendered a report on the assembly's training school at Richmond and submitted a list of recommendations which were adopted among them a suggestion that the third Sunday in October each year be designated as the general assembly's training school day. Five trustees of the school were reelected for three-year terms: F. T. McFaden, Winchester, Va.; Henry H. Sweets, Louisville, Ky.; H. W. Dubose, Spartanburg, S. C.; George W. Call, Richmond, and Robert Friend, Petersburg, Va.

Miss Janie McGaughey, secretary of the committee on woman's work, of St. Louis, was made a new trustee.

Oldest Marine Veteran Dies in San Pedro at 92

San Pedro, Calif., May 26 (A.P.).—William H. Savage, 92, pioneer California and Arizona attorney who claimed he was the oldest veteran of the United States Marine Corps, died here last night. Savage, who was born in Ireland, came to California to fight Indians in 1866. In 1884, he temporarily deserted the legal profession to become editor-owner of the Tombstone, Ariz., Epitaph, one of the most widely known of the early day newspapers.

He was a member of the crew of the old sloop of war Mississippi at the battle of Port Hudson in the Civil War. During his military career he saw service in the Navy, Army, Infantry and Marine Corps.

On the Rules of Traffic

By WILLIAM ULLMAN

Among the regulations in the traffic code that make life uncomfortable for the absent-minded motorist is that which requires an automobile driver to shut off the engine when he leaves the car. There is an obvious safety purpose behind this provision, for the car would become a menace if it were put into gear with no one present capable of operating it.

This makes an exception of vehicles used by the postal service and permits their engines to be left running while the operators are collecting or delivering mail within easy reach.

Example: A driver stops in front of his home for "just a minute." He leaves his wife, who knows nothing of operating a car, sitting in the front seat. A policeman, seeing the driver's seat unoccupied, asks where the operator is. When the latter returns, he is informed that he has violated the regulation.

Court Dismisses Contempt Charge

Apologies of Leo K. Drury, Lawyer, Accepted by Justice Bailey.

Justice Jennings Bailey in District of Columbia Supreme Court yesterday dismissed a criminal contempt of court charge against Leo K. Drury, attorney, with offices in the Southern Building.

In a memoranda opinion the justice said:

"... ...y opinion the conduct of the respondent constituted a serious contempt of the court, but in view of his sincere apology and of his comparative inexperience and youth I have decided to accept the apology in discharge of his contempt. The rule therefore will be discharged at the cost of the respondent."

Mr. Drury was charged with making disparaging remarks about a jury in Justice Bailey's court which several weeks ago returned an adverse verdict. Assistant United States Attorney Neil Burkinshaw at the instruction of the justice filed a petition for a rule to show cause why Mr. Drury should not be adjudged in contempt. Mr. Drury, through Attorney Morgan H. Beach, told the court that he did not remember making the remark attributed to him, but apologized anyway and declared he would make any further apologies the court might require.

Rert Lytell Admits Evasion of Income Tax

Los Angeles, May 26 (A.P.).—Bert Lytell, actor, pleaded guilty in Federal Court here today to charges of failing to pay adequate income tax for the year 1925. On the claim that he expected a $3,500 a week stage and screen contract shortly, Judge William James delayed pronouncing of Lytell's sentence until next October.

Government agents testified that Lytell's income for 1925 was about $66,000, on which he paid $1,381 in taxes. They testified he should have paid an additional $3,582. The actor declared the discrepancy was unintentional, as his tax return was prepared for him. He informed the court he would be able to pay the arrears form the income of his forthcoming contract.

The indictments charge murder, assault and battery, robbery and conspiracy to commit murder. Included in the list of those indicted is R. L. Ballentine, attorney, Mayor of Walhalla.

Customs Men Accused Of Smuggling Watches

New York, May 26 (A.P.).—Two former customs agents, William F. Gilroy and Samuel Stansfield, were charged with smuggling watches and watch movements into the United States in an indictment returned today by the Federal grand jury.

Both men were said to have confessed, Gilroy admitting receipt of $5,000 and Stansfield of $7,000 in bribes.

Inquiry Into Death Of Zepp Set Today

Coroner to Impanel Jury to Investigate Shooting of Capital Salesman.

A coroner's jury will be impaneled at 11 o'clock today to inquire into details of the death of Irvin W. Zepp, 25-year-old salesman, of 1803 Biltmore street northwest, who died of a bullet wound early Sunday morning.

While police believe that Zepp's wound was self-inflicted, Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt decided to place all the facts before a jury.

The tragedy, which occurred outside of the Connecticut Apartments, managed by Zepp's father, T. Raymond Zepp, was witnessed by the victim's wife, Mattie Lou Zepp, and Cyril B. Smith, radio dealer, of 2710 Ontario road. Zepp, his wife and Smith had attended a dance at the Argyle Country Club, Md.

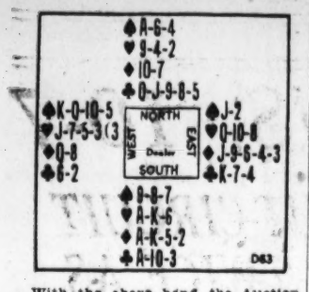
WORK ON BRIDGE

COULD YOU HAVE MADE MORE?



With the above hand the Auction Bridge bidding would be: South one No Trump, followed by three passes.

At Contract South would bid one No Trump, being one point short of the count needed for a two No Trump bid; and North, one point short of a jump, should pass—strictly speaking. North has a hand so close to jumping qualifications that it would be hard to criticize him if he did bid two No Trumps, and should he do so South, of course, would bid three

The hand was played in a game of Auction Bridge with the contract one No Trump, and the Declarer out to make three-odd so as to go game.

West (the original leader) started with the King of Spades. The Declarer having the Ace and two others in dummy, held up so as to block the suit. East played the Jack so as to enable his partner to continue the suit. He knew the lead had been made from King-Queen-Ten and that should he fail to play his Jack, the leader would stop the suit as he would place the Jack in the closed hand. Delighted to see the Jack, West led his Queen of Spades; and when that won he drew North's Ace by following with a third round of Spades.

North (dummy) then led his Queen of Clubs. East, a follower of the Bridge theory that "an honor should always be covered with an honor," played his King, and Declarer won with the Ace and ran all dummy's Clubs. After that, South's Ace-Kings won; so the Declarer took one Spade, two Hearts, two Diamonds and five Clubs—one more than he needed for game.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

Declarer played perfectly, but East followed his clever play of the Jack of Spades on trick 1 by chucking the game when he covered North's Queen of Clubs at trick 4.

There is no rule known to expert players which says "Always cover an honor with an honor." Sometimes it is right to do so, but more often it is wiser for second hand to play small when an honor is led. In this case East could see (without any rule) that by holding up his King of Clubs he would block dummy's suit, which is what he should have done. On dummy's Queen South would unblock by playing the Ten, and lead the Club a second time. East would hold up a second time and consequently all that the Declarer could make would be one Spade, two Hearts, two Diamonds and three Clubs; East's play would save two tricks and game.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

COLDS.
(Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.)

Babies frequently have colds in the head because they are thoughtlessly permitted to be near some one suffering from this complaint. All colds are contagious, and the baby must be kept away from any person who has a cold, whether child or adult. What is "only a cold" in an adult may be a serious illness for a baby and develops into bronchitis or pneumonia. Earache and "running ear" are commonly caused by colds. As infections in the ear in infancy are frequently responsible for deafness in later life, great care should be taken to prevent colds. If a baby has colds often, the adenoids are probably enlarged or infected and should be removed by a doctor skilled in this operation at a time when the baby does have an acute cold.

Colds in the head cause difficulty in breathing and nursing. Placing two or three drops of mineral oil in the nose with a medicine dropper three or four times a day will help to keep the passages clear and make breathing easier. Rest in bed is an essential part of the treatment for any bad cold. The baby should be put to bed and the temperature of the room kept even day and night at 60 degrees Fahrenheit to 65 degrees Fahrenheit while he has a cold.

The Glove Box.

GLOVES have become awfully important all of a sudden, and a lot of hard earned money is going to go their way if it hasn't already. "Chair," which means a flesh but not a pinkish flesh color, and oddly enough means in French also "expensive," although spelled differently, is smarter than white for three-quarter or long evening gloves, even to wear with white and black.

One's glove box simply must show a pair of these, or white, if you prefer; a pair of long black suede, three-quarter length chocolate-y brown if it fits in with the rest of your wardrobe, of course, and white pique or shantung gloves, very wide and loose and very musketeer in effect, for summer dresses.

It costs money to be a lovely lady!

• • • •

I quote what seems to me a pertinent paragraph: "The line has been relieved of the exaggeration which always follows experiments and attempts at something new, and now seems to have settled down satisfactorily into harmonious proportions quite attractive to the eye."

• • • •

And there are a couple of cunning children's hats and dresses, in white pique, which is almost, I believe, the most fashionable material for children's things.

You've never lived—and really had a bath until you've had a "peignoir" to dry yourself with after it. It's a bath towel bathrobe with long sleeves, and it covers you all over and keeps you warm while it dries you. And what's more, you can make one yourself with the Dah-ray directions in this week's illustrated leaflet. You buy the toweling by the yard—but first you have to send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the leaflet. Don't delay!

Cheruit loveliness again! There is something about all of the Cheruit models that is so entirely graceful and feminine that one just can't help liking to sketch them, let alone wear them.

Mousseline and lace, which means chiffon and lace made the gown I illustrated for you today. Don't you agree to its loveliness?

Our hearts are broken into a million pieces, and we don't think we'll ever be able to write another fashion column again! You might have guessed it from all of the brides' costumes we've been sketching for you lately—La Chic Secretaire Americaine is going home to get married. If this collum sounds a little weepish to you from now on, you'll know why.

Nevertheless, we know you'll enjoy the weekly Dare fashion letter. It will be in The Sunday Washington Post, as usual.

Wives of Tomorrow

—FRANCES M'DONALD—

Division of Income.

DEAR Miss McDonald: Last night my fiance and I went to see some friends here in town. There was a discussion about the division of the husband's income, which seems to be troubling lots of people now.

My fiance, who is the dearest and most generous man in the world, sided with the men in the party who said the man should handle the family funds. We argued about it for what seemed hours, seemingly in fun, but really down underneath, dead in earnest. Miss McDonald, don't you think that it is humiliating to a woman to have to meekly accept what is given by her husband, just when it suits him to hand it out? To have to go to a man and ask for everything. A woman really does just as much to keep the home going as does the man. I think that after bills are paid, and a certain amount put aside, that the surplus should be divided evenly, for little things one may want, and yet would hate to come and explain and ask for. I don't mind asking my father for money. I'm in school and there is no necessity for my doing anything around the house. I don't really deserve any money, except that I happen to be his daughter and he enjoys seeing me have things and giving me money. But, with a husband it's different. You earn every cent you get, and you should not have to ask for it.

My fiance says that he loves me and would want to give me money for everything I want, that it would be a pleasure. The idea of dividing it seems to him like paying me wages or something and not just taking care of the woman he loves.

Should I make him a promise to divide things as I wish or I won't consent to marry him? I'm nineteen and he is twenty-four. He will be twenty-five and I'll be nearly twenty by the time he is through law school, and ready to marry. He will make a good income as he is to go into his father's law firm. His father is very well off.

I'm afraid, as he is as proud and stubborn as I am, he might say, "well then don't marry me." I'd die if he did that. I love him very much and I know he adores me. I hope you'll consider this worth answering. Thank you. ADDIE.

Do I think it worth answering? I surely do. And I hope a few more women will think it worth answering! Of all the pre-historic ideas, that purely masculine one concerning the division of the husband's income, which seems to be troubling lots of people now, is the most intolerable. But it will never down while one single subnormal male treads the earth.

Addie, if you give in to this would-be Cesar of yours, don't ever dare come to me for sympathy when you get to hate the sight of him and his generous right-hand doling out the dimes. Why don't you ask his mother what she thinks. I'll wager she could speak convincingly on the subject, for when you find a man bent upon that form of "torture-to-wives," you may know he has been waiting all his life to be able to be like his father. Things like that run in families, only this one thing, daughters never inherit. The ten-year-old girl, watching her mother fearfully suggesting a piece of small change to buy postage stamps, registers her first revolt against her lot, and her first antagonism toward the soul-stirring sex.

Stand pat, remember it's slavery or life. Make your choice. Won't a few of the slaves assist by joining in the chorus?

What right, if any, has a man to demand that his wife submit to the downright humiliation of asking for money?

While in no way subscribing to Frances McDonald's view upon this or any other subject, we would appreciate the views of other women on this particular question. In answering, consider these points:

1 Is it humiliating to a woman to ask money from the man who is her husband?

2 Is a 50-50 division, after debts are paid, advisable?

3 Why do men favor the idea of handling the finances themselves?

4 What plan do you favor?

5 What plan do you use?

Answer any or all questions. Address this column.

"GEMINI."

IF May 27 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 8:30 a. m., from 10 a. m. to 11:40 a. m., and from 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from noon to 1 p. m., and from 6 p. m. to 7 p. m.

On account of the astrological influences, this date is liable to be a purposeless time. It will be difficult to make decisions. When you can not make headway, hold on. Guard against profitless quarrels.

The child born on this May 27 is apt to rely too much upon others and will be unable to move forward spontaneously. It will be mentally sensitive, warm-hearted, somewhat of a dreamer and will merit popularity.

You are "Yesterday's" exact opposite in temperament and type of mind. You are not an original thinker, but you have a well-ordered mind that within its well-established limits knows every detail to its umpteenth decimal point. You know the value of slow motion; you do not hit with a battle-ax. Your imaginative powers are almost nil, but you do know your facts. Yoy usually know just where you want to go, and for this reason you often have your quick-minded, quick-actioned competitors beaten. Neatness and precision characterize your work, and there are no loose ends floating gayly in the air when your job is finished.

It is rather difficult for you to show any signs of demonstrativeness, although you inwardly have very deep feelings of affection. You are almost slavishly loyal, and you worship those whom you do love. It is not easy for you to take punishment and forgive. You must fight against becoming bitter toward your adversaries. Your daily work and your simple pleasures give you enough emotional stimulation, so that you are not looking for more artificial thrills. A routine life is one which you prefer. you detest changes, and you dislike having habits interfered with. You are very much of a home body.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

DIET FOR RHEUMATISM.

D. O. W. asks for a rigid diet for persons with rheumatism. I wish I had enough information to comply with this request. Frankly I have not.

If a person has an acute rheumatic attack with swollen joints, high fever, sour sweat and highly acid urine, I would feel confidence in recommending that he go on a very light, liquid diet such as soups, milk, fruit and some toast, for a few days. There is ample reason for advising him to get plenty of water in the form of plain water, carbonated water, lemonade, orangeade, grape juice, soups, cambric tea, hot water tea, and even caffein beverages such as coffee, tea and cocoa.

There is ample reason for advising a fruit and vegetable diet. During the fever stage, when there is no appetite, there is no reason for eating anything. Certainly there is reason for declining to eat acid ash foods such as fats, meats, beef tea, breads, crackers and cereals. This, however relates only to the acute febrile stages. This form of rheumatism destroys blood rapidly. Anemia is the natural outcome. There is loss of muscle strength and loss of weight.

The restrictive diet of acute rheumatism fever must presently give way to one in which there is more protein, meat, eggs and bread, and more iron or its equivalent—liver, tripe, juicy meats, oysters, eggs and vegetables.

There is one variety of chronic joint trouble, commonly spoken of as rheumatic, which calls for dietmg. It is gouty arthritis and gout nodes. If this diagnosis is agreed on the person affected should outline a diet and then follow it for the remainder of his life. In the first place, he should get on the water wagon and never fall off. He should avoid spices and high seasoning. Food gorges must never be indulged. He should eat sparingly of roe, eggs, meats and meat juices.

In the main he should live on sauerkraut and potatoes, with a backing of other vegetables and fruits. He should get his proteins from cheese and milk foods with some grain foods. One of his great difficulties will be in getting enough iron to supply his bodily needs. The great food sources of blood iron are: Liver, tripe, egg yellow, bone marrow, spleen. All these are on his taboo list. He can get the equivalent in spinach, greens, and other pigmented vegetables.

TRAIN FEAR OUT OF HIM.

Mrs. C. D. C. writes: Will you please tell me how to cure my little boy of sleep walking? He is between 9 and 10 years of age and while thin and far from robust he seems to be healthy enough. But as often as three or four times a week he walks in his sleep, and at such times he opens doors and wanders about the house and even goes outside.

I am worried about him and he surely isn't getting the restful sleep he should when he does this. I am afraid, too, he will get hurt some night in his wanderings. There may be something wrong with his health.

REPLY.

There is nothing wrong with his bodily health. The trouble lies with his mental health. All you can do in a physical way is to see that he eats a light supper and sleeps in comfort. The principal treatment relates to his behavior and consists in training Train him away from all fear and into poise and calm. He should avoid emotional storms. Thrilling mornings may harm him. He should spend his evenings quietly.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

Answers to Inquiries.

I HAVE had a maple-leaf begonia which always bore very large, reddish leaves while in a northern exposure. Last fall I moved to another apartment—very sunny—and the plant does not do so well. The large leaves are falling and the new ones which take their place are all small. I have repotted it, but it does not seem to thrive. What do you suppose is responsible for the change in the condition of the plant?

MRS. J.

It is likely a case of too much sun. As a rule, all begonias do better when in a partly shaded place or a place where the sun does not shine directly on the plant at all times. Better remove the plant to a light but not too sunny place.

If have several very fine amaryllis plants and have given them the usual care. They have come up beautifully, have lovely, healthy leaves but no flowers. Always before at this time these bulbs have been in bloom I have been growing these bulbs in the same soil, never repotting them. Perhaps this is a mistake. I have another flower somewhat like an amaryllis, which has also failed to bloom this season. LOUISE A. M.

Try giving your amaryllis some liquid manure. This stimulation may cause the bulbs to bloom. If they do not bloom this season I would repot them when they show signs of growth after their next period of rest.

Inclosed please find a leaf of a fern. Please examine the back of this leaf and tell me what ails it. Please also tell me the name of the inclosed leaf.

MRS. H. L. C.

Your fern has been attacked by scale. Better go over each frond, dislodging these hard-shelled insects with a tiny brush. To prevent a return of the pests spray the plant once a day with cold, soapy water Keep up the treatments for about a week. The other leaf is from a cyclamen. If you care to write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I shall be glad to send you a circular we have prepared for readers on the care of cyclamen.

Please tell me how to care for an echinocactus. I think that spelling is correct. CAROLINE F. K.

Cacti require a light, open and porous soil, containing lots of leafmold, loam and sand. There should also be enough lime present to keep the soil from souring. They need water during the summer, but not much during the winter. Plant them in full sun.

Please tell me of any one flower which will persist in blooming in dry weather. I am away all the month of July and can not therefore, water my garden. I am anxious to know of one flower which will grow with only rain for water.

MRS. WILLIAM G. T.

Gaillardias bloom even during prolonged dry spells. They prefer full sun and a sandy soil. Old plants have tendency to become blind, and such clumps should be dug up and divided.

Please tell me of two vines which will grow in shade. RUTH P. H.

Kedsu (Japanese), Dutchman's pipe, euonymous and English ivy will all grow in shade.

Please tell me what to spray on hollyhocks for rust.

MISS EMILY H. T.

The most efficacious remedy is made by dissolving two teaspoonfuls of copper carbonate in one-half teacup of ammonia. Add six and one-half gallons of water and apply this spray twice a week, using it full strength.

Behind the Screens

—With NELSON B. BELL—

IN a recent column there was reproduced in part a communication from Mr. Thomas Gilmer, of this city, in which, after making anxious inquiry as to the present whereabouts of certain of the apparently waning stars of the cinema, he earnestly lamented the failure of the new Hays code of movie behavior to function with any visible degree of success.

It was our suggestion that it was a little too early to look for any concrete results of the uplifting rules of conduct prescribed by Mr. Hays and his organization. That seems to have been correct and in support of my view I shall quote briefly from a Hollywood date line appearing in the last issue of Mr. William A. Johnston's authoritative and helpful Motion Picture News:

"First pictures to be produced under the mandates of the code of ethics are expected to be ready for theaters about July 1. The Hays organization and its members will, therefore, face their first test on or about that date.

"If any squawks develop between now and then the answer will be that the code does not, and was never intended to, embrace pictures placed in work before March 31, or produced before that date. Whether better film movements and the various civic organizations with which the Hays group has been cooperating will understand this is something that observers here are beginning to question."

In other words, please hold your horses and keep on all of your apparel!

Maybe it was just the fleet, but it has seemed to me over the last weekend that President Hoover—having told the Senate to do its stuff, or else—has picked up a bit in popular estimation. At any rate, for the first time in a long time he received an enthusiastic hand from the movie audicense, even before any battleship came along with a bone in its teeth.

Whether or not you derive any great amount of nerve stimulus and spiritual exaltation from "Journey's End," at the RKO-Keith Theater, the picturized Sherriff play at least will serve to demonstrate how mistaken first impressions are apt to be.

There are in the cast two players who are engaged in activities the exact opposite of those in which they achieved a considerable screen popularity. Billy Bevan, for years a slapstick comedian on the Mack Sennett lot, although still appearing in a role of appreciable comic content, as Lieut. Trotter, nevertheless is presenting a characterization that embodies no few of the more substantial virtues. Charles Gerrard, on the other hand, is scoring decisively in the essentially comic role of Private Mason, the cook, despite the fact that his reputation has been wholly made as a "heavy" delineator of villainous types in which no humor was embodied whatsoever.

It just goes to show that in this mundane sphere you never can tell—or something like that.

If you see an ambulance backed up to the stage door of the Palace Theater any time this week, it will probably be waiting to receive the crumpled form of the more diminutive of the Sydell sisters, appearing in the "Varieties" stage unit. These young women go in for the Apache dance in a big and hazardous way and the manner in which the little one is slammed around that stage is nobody's business—at least, I am happy to say, not mine!

Of course, there is a great deal in knowing when and how to fall, but then a hard wood floor is a hard wood floor and you can't make me believe it is any feather bed!

And that reminds me. I still don't understand how the powers that be can sanction the uncensored presentation of Gus Sonnenberg butting his opponent's ribs in in a so-called wrestling match and ban the more scientific and less brutal proceedings of the prize ring. You'd think they were senators!

The receipt of several communications as promptly as on the afternoon of the day on which the review of "The Lady of Scandal" appeared in The Post, substantiating my view that its star is miscast, leads me to believe that; despite the fact that her career received its initial impetus in this city, Miss Ruth Chatterton is not sacrosanct, even in the view of those who admire her most.

That settles it. I shall run for the United States Senate. I just dialed a wrong number and there is no girl to swear at!

NATS CONQUER YANKEES WITH 4 HOME RUNS, 10-7

Pegler

NEW YORK, May 26.—The story of the secret marriage of Red Cagle makes pleasant, romantic reading, but, in none of the dispatches from West Point, have I seen any explanation that would reconcile his conduct with the cadet's code of honor, that rigid rule of self-accusation which sums itself up in one exalted phrase, "all right."

For several years, I have been hearing from Maj. Phil Fleming, the athletic officer; Capt. Walter Wells, the publicity officer, and Frank Wandle, the trainer, who recently quit his job, that the cadet's "all right," delivered so casually 100 times every day and night, is a sacred pledge in the code of the kids in the skin-tight uniforms.

As good as any oath ever devised.

"All Right?" Followed By No Answer.

I heard cadets answering "all right" one night during inspection of the barracks by the tactical officer. He would go bouncing up the stairs, stop at a bedroom door, fetch it a bang with the back of his hand and throw it wide open. There would be a rumble of chairs as the cadets in the room hopped to attention.

"All right?" the officer would inquire.

And the senior cadet in the room would answer.

"All right, sir."

Presently we came to a room where the senior cadet being asked, "All right?" did not answer.

"All right?" the tac said again and still the senior cadet said nothing.

It was some minor thing. Some cadet who should have been in the room studying was visiting in another room, I believe. At any rate, all was not right in that room and the cadet involved, having taken his chance of being caught, would now have to take his punishment. Nobody would lie for him and as the officers explained the system, he was bound not to lie for himself. They could deal with violations of the rules, but the whole power of the honor system was contained in those two words, "all right."

Boys Were Taking Chances.

As the officer spoke, standing in the shadows on the veranda of the barracks, doors could be heard opening stealthily around the square and figures could be seen dimly in the dark and faintly heard, running in bedroom slippers from section to section of the living quarters.

There seemed to be considerable clandestine visiting that evening and the too said the boys were taking their chances, insisting that not one of them would answer "all right," if challenged unless the visit had been authorized.

Capt. Wells elaborated on this honor system. Very often, said he, a cadet would put himself on report for some violation of the rules and accept his punishment even though the violation may have been unintentional. And cadets returning from furlough merely signed a blanket statement to the effect that they had done nothing to disqualify themselves for membership in the corps while absent from the Academy.

Marriage is a commonplace and pardonable indiscretion of itself and Mr. Cagle is not to be scolded for taking a wife. He was young and he must have been romantic because otherwise he would not have played football with such live imagination.

But the honor system of West Point gains no prestige when a first-class

JONES AND VOIGT WIN AFTER STRUGGLES IN FIRST BRITISH TESTS

Youthful Coal Miner Forces Jones, But Bows, 3 and 2.

Voigt Wins on 19th Hole; Johnston Eliminates 2.

By FRANK H. KING.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 26 (A.P.).—Opening play of the British amateur golf championship today was featured by weird weather and weirdly spectacular golf by Bobby Jones and a hitherto unknown English youth, Sidney Roper, who learned his golf between shifts as a coal miner.

Against an avalanche of four birdies and an eagle during the first nine holes, which Jones shot in 33 strokes, Roper replied gamely with a string of nine 4s, turning only two down and he clung tenaciously to Bobby all the way to the sixteenth hole, where he was eliminated, 3 up and 2 to play.

Roper, entered from a municipal course at Nottingham, where he is the Nottinghamshire champion, did not even have a caddy who knew the course, a friend carrying his clubs for him, but he had the shots which brought praise from Jones after the match and hope in the hearts of British golfers as he poured his steady fire of 4s against the American star.

Roper Shuns Golf Attire.

Roper, dressed in an old coat and flannel trousers and wearing a slouch cap and ordinary street shoes with hobnails, never faltered against his famous opponent, and if the American open champion had played just a little less sensational golf, he might have been beaten.

Jones and Roper provided the thrills today while the other two Walker Cup players in action, Harrison R. Johnston and George Voigt, did the hard work.

Johnston never found the touch of the St. Andrews Greens all day and he had to work hard for the two victories he needed to remain in the competition. The American amateur champion won his morning match from Bernard Darwin, only two up and one to play, while in the second round in the afternoon, Maj. A. G. Barry, who was the champion 25 years ago, took him to the eighteenth green where "Jimmy" won, one up.

George Voigt, in spite of trouble with his irons throughout his match, disposed of Edward Tipple, brilliant young English player, with a good putt at the nineteenth hole. Dormie at the seventeenth, the New Yorker lost the eighteenth and had to start again. The match was all square after nine holes.

Voigt's difficulties rested with his iron clubs. He half topped a number of shots and after being level at the turn went 1 down at the tenth. He won the eleventh where Tipple made a wild tee shot.

Voigt scored a birdie 3 at the twelfth and the thirteenth and fourteenth were halved, the latter with birdies. Three putts at the fifteenth cost the American the hole and the

Vance Wins 6th in Row, Allowing Giants 2 Hits

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 26 (A.P.).—One clean single and another one of the scratch variety were all that Dazzy Vance gave the Giants today as the Robins won their second straight from their New York rivals, 7 to 0. It was Vance's sixth victory of the season, and the Giants' fifth consecutive defeat.

Reese and Ott were the only Giants able to connect safely, the former getting an infield single off Gilbert's glove in the fifth while Ott singled to right in the seventh.

Mexico's Rout In Tennis Is Completed

Van Ryn, Doeg Sweep Matches for U. S. in Final Singles.

Tapia Wilts in Last Set and Is Beaten, 6-2, 6-3, 6-1.

CONSUMING but 1 hour and 26 minutes, John Van Ryn and John Doeg put the finishing touches on a decisive victory for Uncle Sam yesterday in the final singles matches of the United States-Mexico Davis Cup zone finals at Chevy Chase Club. Entering the last day's play with a lead of 3 to 0 in matches, the Americans gave their best efforts, apparently with the purpose of hastening the end.

That they succeeded, both Ricardo Tapia, jr., and Frederico Sendel, their youthful Mexican opponents, can substantiate, even though it pains them. Tapia lasted 51 minutes against Van Ryn, whose winning figures were 6—2, 6—3, 6—1. While Sendel held out only 35 minutes against Doeg, the hard-hitting Babe Ruth of netdom, who annexed the scores of 6—1, 6—0, 6—2.

Less than 1,000 persons were on hand to watch the Americans in their farewell cup performances and they saw the Yankees playing tennis as it should be played. The element of close competition was the only thing lacking in this most interesting afternoon of the series.

Van Ryn Has Foe Worried.

Van Ryn experienced less difficulty with Tapia than did Wilmer Allison in the second singles match last Thursday. The former Princeton University star kept the diminutive Mexican ace in almost continuous mental and physical labor trying to return his well-stroked shots.

Games went with service in the first set until the fifth game, when Van Ryn broke through Tapia's delivery to gain a lead of 3 to 2. The American took the sixth game on his own service, with the loss of only 1 point. Then he broke through again in the seventh. Although Tapia carried the eighth game to deuce, Van Ryn emerged the winner, the whole set taking up but fifteen minutes.

Tapia recalled his sterling form of the Allison match to afford Van Ryn a little trouble in the second set. The Mexican's baseline drives caused Van Ryn to err at the start, and the score was 2 to 0 in games against the United States, the second game going against Van Ryn on his own service.

Tapia's Delivery Smashed.

Then Van Ryn grew steadier and turned the tables. He smashed Tapia's delivery in the third game to open a drive that netted five straight games. These were especially hard fought, however, the sixth going to deuce no less than five times. Momentarily the American lost his stride and Tapia again broke his service in the eighth game. This was the last time that Van Ryn failed to cash in on his delivery.

The third set was a runaway, with Van Ryn winning the first five games. He stormed the net for smashes that had his opponent helpless. Tapia took the sixth game to interrupt the string, but Van Ryn finished it in the succeeding game.

Little Sendel, who is 19 and as slight in build as Tapia, was dis-

St. Louis, May 26 (A.P.).—The Detroit Tigers made it two straight from the St. Louis Browns today, winning 7 to 3. George Blaeholder helped the Tigers win by throwing to second when there was no one guarding the base.

Dale Alexander hit a home run in the ninth for Detroit. "General" Al Crowder, who relieved Blaeholder in the eighth, struck out the first three batters to face him.

5,000 Watch Mrs. Moody, Tilden Win

Both Score Straight-Set Victories in French Tourney.

Cochet and Brugnon in Doubles Finals After Thriller.

AUTEUIL, France, May 26 (A.P.).—The American field in the French hard-court tennis championships advanced without loss today along both the singles and doubles lines. Helen Wills Moody, big Bill Tilden and Elizabeth Ryan had to work for their victories while Wilbur Coen benefited by a default.

Both Mrs. Moody and Tilden in their singles engagements displayed sparkling tennis, although the caliber of the opposition was not such as they will meet later in the tournament. Their play did, however, give a record crowd of 5,000 in the Roland Garros Stadium fears or hopes—according to whether they were French or American—that the champions from overseas will be among those present when the finals in the men's and women's singles are disputed.

Mrs. Moody Wins Easily.

Mrs. Moody, now playing at top form, overwhelmed Adeline Neufeld, a young French player, in straight love sets, 6—0, 6—0, in which only two games went to deuce. Tilden took the youthful German hope, Edmund Nourney, into camp with the utmost ease, 6—0, 6—1, 6—2, experimenting and practising all sorts of strokes after winning the first set at love. Miss Ryan, the Californian now living abroad, played her usual fine tennis although the former French champion, Suzanne Deve, now playing as Mme. Desloges, gave her a hard battle in the second set. Miss Ryan won 6—2, 10—8.

Tilden and Fraulein Gilli Aussem, German miss, were the first pair to reach the semifinals in the mixed doubles. Big Bill again played scintillating tennis, but as usual committed the fault of attempting to play a singles game while engaged in doubles. They were hard pressed to win the second set from Takeichi Harada and Mme. Mathieu, 9—7, after winning the first 6—3.

Cochet and Brugnon Triumph.

France's old doubles standbys, Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, saved their men's doubles championship final from becoming an all-Australian affair, but were forced into five bitterly disputed sets to achieve this result. Cochet and Brugnon beat E. F. Moon and J. Crawford, 6—4, 6—4, 5—7, 5—7, 6—3.

The other Australian pair, Hopman and Willard, whom the French meet in the men's final tomorrow, have shown the best brand of doubles play seen in France in many years. Their performance today in defeating Jean Borotra and Rene Debuzelet was considered by experts the equal of that of Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn in the 1929 Davis Cup victory.

Finishing in semidarkness, Miss Ryan and Jean Borotra defeated Mlle Jeanne Sigart, of Belgium, and Jack Crawford, of Australia, 10—8, 8—6, to reach the semifinals of the mixed doubles where they will meet the Tilden-Aussem combination.

6 Errors Aid Macks To Beat Red Sox, 8-5

Philadelphia, May 26 (A.P.).—The Athletics raised their world's championship pennant today for the first time and then took the Boston Red Sox into camp, 8 to 5. Six Sox errors contributed to the A's victory.

Lefty Grove went the distance for the champions, and aside from the eighth inning, when the visitors scored four runs, he had no trouble. It was Grove's sixth win of the year, against no defeats.

Judge Landis, Ernest Barnard, president of the American League, and Harry A. Mackey, Mayor of Philadelphia, attended the pennant raising.

SHARKEY'S BOASTING GOOD OMEN, SAYS SCHMELING

Sailor's Past Bragging Is Recalled

Little Happened to Dempsey, Heeney, Max Points Out.

German Says Right-Hand Knockout Is Working Well.

By MAX SCHMELING
(As Told to Jimmy Powers).

ENDICOTT, N. Y., May 26.—So I read in the papers where Jack Sharkey says he, too, is confident and that he is going to knock me out in one round. Hmmm, so I think that is good luck for me. Ja, I think I remember Mr. Jack Sharkey saying he was going to, what you say, put the chill on some other fellows, too.

It seems to me there was a Jack Dempsey that Mr. Sharkey was going to knock out in one round. There was a Tom Heeney he said was so slow he was going to knock him out in one round also. Also, oh, yes, there was a fellow named Johnny Risko, from Cleveland, he said he would take in one round.

Record Books Bely Sharkey's Boasts.

If you will look in the record books you will find this Mr. Dempsey and this Mr. Risko and this Mr. Heeney sitting very patiently in their corners at the end of round one. They were sitting there still at the end of the fight, and Mr. Sharkey was not doing any knocking out that I remember.

If he had defeated all three of these men he probably would be the champion of the world today, and I would be the challenger. Instead now we go into the fight on an equal basis, so I think I shall not worry that Mr. Sharkey is going to knock me out in round one, so?

I finally have my right knockout punch working very well or clicking, as the boxing writers say. It clicked Jack De Mave in our last workout and he fell very hard. Remember that it is hard, first of all, to hurt a man wearing the pillows. And to hit him hard enough to make him fall quickly is delivering a really stunning blow that is magnified ten times when I wear the smaller gloves. Secondly it is hard to hit Jack De Mave with a right hand because he bends his shoulder around in front of his chin and you have to hook him to open him up.

Sharkey Stands Up And Boxes.

I do not think Jack Sharkey fights very well with his shoulder in front of his chin. He stands up more and boxes. This much is certain, a punch on the chin is a punch on the chin and no matter who gets it, whether it is De Mave or Sharkey, if there is enough power in it somebody is going to hit the canvas ring floor with a boom, is it not so?

—Churchill Downs Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THE Lexington Road Purse features the Churchill Downs card for today, but it is an overnight race and does not stand out as an attraction above the allowance event, fifth race, the latter having a larger purse. The class of horses is better in the fifth, with JOCK, FIDDLER, TANTIVY and CHIP among the better ones.

JOCK is in very light with 107 pounds, and with Ambrose up should show the way over FIDDLER, which has been backed in all of his races, but often failed to run up to expectations. TANTIVY at his best should make the others step along. JOCK is not the horse he has been in other years, but seems to have enough class and early speed to land the purse. FIDDLER may get the place from TANTIVY. DR. PARISH is the dangerous outsider. The distance is 6½ furlongs, and should suit JOCK.

FIRST RACE.

LADY FINGERS appears best in the claimer for fillies which opens the card. VERMICULITE has raced well in Maryland, but is better on heavy going. The track is fast. She may be the contender. SUPRYSE has speed when right.

SECOND RACE.

TAVY is the best of the 2-year-olds, the field composed of maiden fillies, in the second race. She is coupled with SPRING CLEANING as the Greentree entry. REST EASY, possibly the favorite, is believed second best of the field, and NORMAHAL has a chance for part of the purse.

THIRD RACE.

DUELIST looks easily best, and should repeat. He is a consistent plater. OLD CALLY'S race Saturday should insure support, and is tabbed for the place, and is much better than the others. MYTH may surprise.

FOURTH RACE.

PORTMANTEAU looks best in the Lexington Road Purse, at a mile, with 110 pounds. PROSE AND POETRY probably is the most dangerous of the opposition. There will be no decided favorite in the race.

SIXTH RACE.

Two-year-olds again go in the sixth race, with a tight fit between UPRIGHT and LIBERTY ACE, the first named having but a slight edge. CHILLY FLIGHT can hold the others safe. RUNNING GIRL will be one of the favorites.

SEVENTH RACE.

The largest field on the card is the closing event, and several of the better ones are evenly matched. MISS SCOTIA is selected to win on her recent racing. CARAMEL may be a slight choice and is dangerous. ROSE O'NEIL has a chance to show.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OCEAN CURRENT, $24.96, $8.28, $5.84; MELITA, $6.24, $5.20; MAT HUNTER, $4.62.

OCEAN CURRENT, closer up than usual, followed early pacemaker tenaciously and, under hard drive through stretch, outstayed MELITA. Latter, never far off early pace, responded gamely to urging in stretch and fought it out with winner until the last stride. MAT HUNTER tired after setting early pace, but hung on until last sixteenth.

FAVORITES AGAIN ADVANCE IN CITY NET TOURNEY

Easy Matches To Mangan, Considine

Allen Scores Second Victory, Eliminates Edge.

Misses Walker and Dunham Among Stars to Win.

WITH the exception of two matches, the results of which were termed "mild upsets," the City of Washington tennis championships progressed without incident on the Sixteenth street reservoir courts yesterday which saw the completion of the men's first-round matches, the playing of three second-round and four third-round affairs, and the beginning of the women's championship play.

Charles Allen, who it seems, has been vastly underestimated at his position on the George Washington University Team, continued the assault on his teammates when he elimininated Richard Edge, another Colonial player, 5—7, 6—3, 6—1. Allen opened fire on his mates the first day of play when he defeated Larry Phillips, ranking No. 2 player at George Washington, and he proved yesterday that his first-round victory was no fluke when he whipped Edge, who had been rated above him on the collegiate varsity.

Willis Wins Long Struggle.

The other surprise occurred when Richard Willis, former Central High tennis captain, struggled for more than two hours to down Everett Simon in three torrid sets. After the first, in which he was defeated, 2—6, Willis came back to down Simons in sets of extra length, evening the match with a 7—5 triumph and carrying the deciding match to 22 games before winning, 12—10. Both men were fast tiring toward the end, but sensational shots were not lacking.

Tom Mangan, defending champion, had only a workout in advancing through his 6—0, 6—0 defeat of Charles Drechsler, while Barnard Welsh, Western High's net captain, administered a beating to a somewhat more experienced foe, Herbert Shepard, 6—3, 4—6, 6—3.

In one of the four third-round matches played, Bob Considine, another George Washington player and a favorite for the title, outclassed Clyde Yeomans, of Georgetown University, 6—2, 6—3. Considine's brother, George, however, was not so fortunate, losing to H. Ritzenberg, 6—1, 6—0.

Miss Dunham Easy Winner.

A contender for the women's title which she failed ot gain last year after a bitter struggle, appeared in Miss Josephine Dunham, a clever performer, who decisively disposed of Margaret Bouve, 6—0, 6—2. Entering the fight for honors denied her last year, Miss Dunham had all the nervousness of a child before Christmas, but once in the fight, immediately took matters into her own hand. While not extended, Miss Dunham was offered enough competition to keep her going, and did not fail to take advantage of the match to warm up for future tests.

Miss Frances Walker, another favorite, advanced to the second round by means of a default, while the Misses Graham, Kingsbury, Finckel, Moore and Rose advanced without difficulty. Miss Marion King was forced to travel at top speed to turn back Betty Whitfield, 7—5, 5—7 and 6—4.

The results:

"Little Bill" Johnston, Ill, Will Shun Tennis

San Rafael, Calif., May 26 (A.P.).—W. M. (Little Bill) Johnston, star of the tennis courts, is a patient at the Ross General Hospital near here, and said today it was unlikely he would play any more tennis this year.

He has been in the hospital for three weeks and intends to remain in probably another two months, seeking complete recovery from a slight lung trouble which threatened him. He has regained 6 pounds in the three weeks.

Johnston several months ago was elected president of the Northern California Tennis Association, which, with the Southern California Tennis Association, is planning the formation of a parent organization to be known as the California Tennis Association.

VAN RYN AND DOEG IN EASY VICTORIES

mayed to find Doeg in tip-top form. The husky, left-handed Californian fairly burned the ball at his feet, but occasionally stroked it softly just over the net for tantalizing placements.

Remaining on the court, Doeg participated in an exhibition doubles match, pairing with Capt. Manuel Llano, of the Mexican Team, against Van Ryn and Ignacio de la Borbolla. The latter pair won the only set played by a score of 6 to 3.

VOIGT AND JONES EXTENDED TO WIN

sixteenth was halved with fives, Tipple leaving Voigt a dead stymie. Tipple started on a series of misfortunes at the seventeenth when he drove out of bounds into the station master's garden.

Voigt lost the eighteenth hole when he took 5 to 4 for Tipple and the match continued to the nineteenth. Tipple, chipping from short rough, again ran past the hole and was short with his putt. His putt almost stymied the American's ball, but Voigt using his opponent's ball as a guide post on the down-hill slope, confidently holed out.

Bobby Baugh, Alabama boy who captains the Oxford Golf Team, won his first round match, but was eliminated in the second round. Last year at Sandwich Baugh survived until the last sixteen.

Frank C. Stevens, jr., Hollywood, Calif., won his second round match, but a number of other Americans were removed from the competition including, Robert E. Hunter, G Parker Toms, Hervey Bates Perrin, Los Angeles; John H. Forsman, New York; Joseph Caldwell, Rochester, N. Y., and Paul Azbill, American living in London.

HALF MILERS OPEN MEET TODAY

Good Programs Listed for Hagerstown 5-Day Meet.

Special to The Washington Post.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., May 26.—The sport of horse racing, which was revived here last September after a lapse of ten years, will again call its subjects together at 2:30 p. m. today for a five-day session under the auspices of the Hagerstown Fair Association.

Race Secretary Edward J. Brennan has attracted 280 of the best thoroughbreds ever to gather for a half-mile meeting in this State.

Many of the horses performed at the recent Pimlico, Havre de Grace and Bowie meetings, while others performed during the winter sessions in Florida, Cuba, New Orleans and Mexico.

President Harry Edward Bester and his associates of the Hagerstown Fair Association, hope to make this week's meeting one of the best in the history of racing here.

Regardless of what this week's sport offers, President Bester announces that plans will go right ahead for the five-day meeting, slated to be held in September.

All Hands Ready For Opening.

Mortimer M. Mahoney, who operates the "iron men" at Pimlico, and who is one of the best known pari mutuel managers in America and Canada, will be in charge here. Mahoney has gathered together the pick of his American pari mutuel crews in an effort to give fans 100 per cent service.

The colony of race riders here includes several boys, who donned silks at the recent Pimlico, Bowie and Havre de Grace meetings. As no boy with a shady reputation will be allowed to ride here, this insures spectators of clean racing at all times.

Every racing paper in America, as well as the dailies of Maryland, Pennsylvania, District of Columbia, West Virginia and New York have representatives here. A staff of expert chart makers are on hand to carry out this end of the sport, and all signs point to the meeting here this week going over with a bang.

G. U. to Play Harvard, Boston College Today

Special to The Washington Post.

Boston, Mass., May 26.—Rain for the second time this season washed out a scheduled game between Georgetown and Boston College at University Heights today. But a combination of circumstances will enable the Hilltoppers to meet the Eagles tomorrow and at the same time provide one of the few big collegiate baseball doubleheaders in Boston's history.

Georgetown was scheduled to play Harvard tomorrow and then leave immediately for West Point, so it was at first thought impossible to stage the Georgetown, B. C. game at all when the heavens opened this morning, but this afternoon it was announced that inasmuch as this is examination week at the Heights, with classes being dismissed at 11:30 a. m., it would be possible to start the B. C. game at 12:45. This will be done and immediately after the game the visitors will hop into busses and be transported to Cambridge to meet Harvard at 4 o'clock.

Georgetown defeated both of tomorrow's rivals on their southern trips this spring. But did the same last year only to come North and suffer reverses. Desire to even last year's score led the players to accept the idea of tomorrow's doubleheader.

Annapolis, Md., May 26.—Nearly 300 members of the Navy "N" Club, composed of graduates of the Naval Academy and present students who won their spurs in athletic endeavor, gathered around the festive board tonight for the annual club dinner.

Charles W. Kennedy, chairman of the athletic board of control of Princeton, was the special guest of honor and speaker. ther addresses were delivered by Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robinson, superintendent of the academy, and Capt. Paul J. Dashiell, professor of mathematics in the Navy.

A contingent of 200 midshipmen were among those present, and Midshipman William (Moon) Chapple, president of the graduating class, in the role of master of ceremonies, put over a number of quips at the expense of several athletic groups.

Special mention was made in course of the banquet of the three special prize awards to midshipmen for athletis prowess during the year now drawing to a close. These went to members of the class to be graduateed on June 5.

For personal excellence in athletics, Bryan F. Swan, Wittenberg, Mo., will receive the Navy Athletic Association's dress sword. Swan played guard on the football team, point on the lacrosse team and was the 175-pound boxer. For influence in promotion of athletics during the year, Claude W. Hughes, of Mineral, Ark., will have his name engraved on the trophy cup presented by Col. Robert M. Thompson, class 1868. Hughes also was an outstanding athlete, playing center on the football team. Paul Moret, Jackson, Mich., football end, captain and crack middleweight boxer, will receive a special "N," and is among six middies who will receive letters of commendation of general officer-life qualities.

Other awards announced include a gold boxing glove (watch fob) to Norman Hall, Syracuse, N. Y., intercollegiate welterweight champion in the mitt game this year.

A protest filed by the Columbia Heights Business Men's Association Nine charging that Everett Haas was ineligible to participate as a member of the Anacostia Eagle Nine in the game last Sunday at Congress Heights will be heard Thursday night before the Capital City League protest board. Haas, who played with the St. Joseph's A. C. Team on May 18, was not eligible to play with the Eagles, Manager Pratt, of the Columbia Heights Team, claims.

Manager Francis Wahler, of the Eagles; Manager Pratt, of the Columbia Heights Nine; Manager Frank Clinotti, of the St. Joseph's A. C. Team, and Haas are requested to appear before the board. The board will meet at 8 o'clock in The Washington Post Building.

MARYLAND U. LOSES STAR PITCHER

Batson's Right Arm Goes Sore; Team in Final Today.

"BLACK JACK" BATSON'S good right arm, which fooled everybody by not going sore at the beginning of the season, has now, in an unwelcome late effort, turned on the Maryland University pitcher on the eve of the season's finals.

Jack's flipper is so sore as a result of his performance against Navy last Wednesday, that it is practically a certainty tat he will not be able to toe the rubber tomorrow when the Maryland nine faces Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.

It is extremely regrettable, in the eyes of Marylanders that "Black Jack" can not pitch this final game, for it had seemed only fitting that he should. He had won six games in eight starts to compile the best record of any Terrapin hurler. In fact, he was largely responsible for Maryland's best showing on the diamond in three years.

Batson's Arm Sore In April.

At the beginning of the training season, Batson noticed that his arm was growing sore, and just a few days before the opening game with Cornell, on April 5, the entire Maryland camp brooded over the thought that Jack was due to hold down the bench. Even Coach Burt Shipley was positive that the arm wasn't going to be of service.

Then Batson went out against Cornell and pulled the sensation of the year at the Old Line institution. He not only pitched the whole game, but yielded only two hits, and the arm felt great at the finish.

Having safely passed his first test, Batson soon became Maryland's most dependable pitcher. Among the five other teams he defeated was Virginia Poly, which later captured the championship of the Tri-State League, of which Maryland is a member.

Navy Game Too Much Of Strain.

Finally came the Navy game, holding before Batson and the Marylanders a chance to beat an old rival. "Black Jack" bore down with all he had, but it wasn't enough. Navy won. The effort was too much of a strain and the arm went bad.

Harry Milburn probably will do Maryland's pitching against the Quakers. He ranks close behind Batson in effectiveness.

If Maryland wins, its record for the season will read twelve vitcories, seven defeats and one tie.

Business High Beaten by Greenbrier Cadets

Lewisburg, W. Va., May 26.—Greenbrier Military School defeated Business High of Washington, D. C., 7 to 4, here today in the Cadets' final game of the season. Greenbrier scored four runs in the first on Toney's walk, successive singles by Winter Carney and Porterfield and an error. Chase, Washington hurler, who had seven strike outs, got three of them in the first inning. Greenbrier scored two more in the third on Winter's single and Wood's double and added the final run in the seventh when Carney scored on an error after hitting not lifted in favor of Garland Braxton while in any real trouble, the move merely being a "safety first" measure. Henry Johnson was Gomez' relief, swinging into action in the fifth. He had his troubles checking the Nats in this round, but performed fairly well thereafter.

Goslin Makes Star Catch.

In adidtion to sharing hitting honors with Judge, Goslin also turned in the best catch of the game, reaching over the short wall in left to rob Chapman of a homer with Gehrig on first in the eighth. The Yankee first-sacker was so sure that the catch could not be made that he simply tore around the bases, being at third when the Goose made the catch. This made it an easy matter for the Nats to turn in their third double-play of the game, equaling the Yankees' total in this respect.

Aside from this catch, there were several other fielding gems, and these, together with base action in almost every round, kept the small crowd of about 8,000 on edge from start to finish.

Combs Greets Brown With Single.

Judging from the start Brown made, it looked as though he was in for a drab day, for Combs greeted him with a single end, after Lary had lofted to Rice, successive walks to Ruth and Lazzeri packed the aisles. Then Gehrig cleared the bases with a lusty double, took third on Goslin's error, and died there. Before the Nat's could even come close to registering, the Yanks became 4 up when they molded a marker in the third from Lary's single, two long sacrifice flies, and a three-bagger by Gehrig.

Then the Nat's got to work. Goslin opened the fourth with a homer into the right field and Judge followed suit, cutting the alien lead in two. In the next frame, the Nat's staged a regular hog-killing, scoring seven times. Spencer started the rally by singling down the third-base line. Brown coaxed a pass, and Loepp laid down a perfect sacrifice. On Rice's roller, on which Gehrig made a good stop, Spencer was forced at home on a close decision.

Goslin and Judge Encore Act.

At this stage of the proceedings, Messrs. Goslin and Judge encored their home run act. The Goose's blow, with two on, put the Nat's one to the good and Judge's added one more tally. The Nat's were not through yet, however. Myer singled and Johnson, who replaced Gomez, found Cronin facing him. The "San Francisco kid" doubled his mate to third and Myer scored on Bluege's one-baser past Chapman. Bluege then pilfered second and Spencer cleared the bases with his second single of the frame.

This big inning practically decided the game, but both teams kept pecking away at the opposing pitchers. In the sixth Lazzeri opened with a double and completed the circle on Gehrig's sacrifice fly almost out of the park and Goslin's poor return peg after his good catch.

Cronin then took it upon himself to get this run back in the next round. After singling, he stole second, took third on Bluege's out, and he surprised every one, especially Pitcher Johnson, by stealing home when the Yank boxman became careless in his wind-up.

Yanks Stage 2-Run Flurry in Seventh.

The Yankees had one more flurry before the finish, scoring twice in their portion of the "lucky" frame. Johnson started the trouble for Brown by doubling to left and scored on Combs' three-bagger over West's head in left center. Lary scratched a single, tallying Combs, before Brown could stop the onslaught. Then Ruth hit into a double play, Judge to Cronin to Judge, and Lazzeri fanned.

Braxton was sent to Brown's relief for precautionary reasons and it took a great catch by Goslin to halt the Yanks in this round. After Gehrig, first up, had coaxed a pass and Byrd had skied to Rice, Chapman shot one which appeared due to land in the left field stands. Goslin was off at the crack of the bat, however, grabbed the ball just as it was sailing into the seats and started a third Washington double play, for Gehrig, having no idea the catch could be made, was all the way to third, and the peg, relayed by Myer, easily beat him back to first.

Neither side threatened thereafter.

ARMY'S CODE IS THROWN FOR LOSS

All Not "All Right" With Cagle for Two Years.

man the captain of the football team and the most prominent individual in the military academy answers "all right" for almost two years, when all is by no means right. He could have resigned.

This termination of Cagle's career represents a disservice to the military academy quite as great as the service he rendered on the football field. He was the second successive football captain to quit the army without having spent an hour with troops, Bud Sprague, his immediate predecessor having resigned a year ago to take a civilion job. Sprague was more graceful about it, though, for he explained that he felt a responsibiliay to this parents, whereas Cagle merely expressed a wish to commercialize his athletic reputation.

It seems all right for an athletic celebrity to turn pro on leaving a civilian school for civilians, theoretically, at least, pay their own way and are beholden to nobody when they graduate or quit. But a West Point cadet receives tuition, board, clothing, medical attention and pay with the understanding that when he gets through school he will serve in the Army with good will unless excused.

Now Cagle's withdrawal will lend force to the Navy's contention that the Army uses cadets for football purposes who enter the Academy with a mental reservation to resign, flunk out or marry out when they have had their fun. A cadet can make a very good thing of a West Point football career for, unlike a civilian football star, he comes out of school, after four years, with a nice savings balance on the books, deducted from his cadet pay to buy his second lieutenant's trousseau.

Capt. Wells tells me that the honor system is still sacred at West Point and that the cadet's "all right" still conveys the same solemn meaning. But perhaps the tactical officer has a mental reservation, too, nowadays. I mean that, maybe, when a cadet replies "all right," the tac says to himself, "you wouldn't fool me, would you?"

WESTBROOK PEGLER.

GRIFFITH IS ELATED OVER NATS' SHOWING

1925. This afternoon's fracas being his 767th in a row.

In case Gehrig were forced out of the line-up there is speculation as to who would take over his first-base assignment. According to the scribes, Tony Lazzeri is the club's handy man and would draw the assignment.

Reports from Philadelphia are to the effect that Manager Connie Mack will not be on the bench wig-wagging his score cards when the Nationals hit the Quaker City Friday. The veteran mahout of the Elephants has been absent for a week because of an extracted wisdom tooth, and today he had to go back to the "tooth carpenter" and have the roots of the molar dug out.

Marberry's Victory Proves Tonic.

Fred Marberry's great effort of yesterday against the Red Sox, when he allowed but three scattered hits, all singles, has acted as a tonic for him and he may be expected to look like the Marberry of old from now on. The big fellow had been worrying over his previous failure, but since his Sunday victory has been as frisky as a 2-year-old colt.

The game also boosted Goose Goslin's spirits. He suddenly came to life to crack out two hits which, including his sacrifice fly, drove home three runs. He, too, had been mighty low in spirits previously and seems to have taken on a new lease on life since. His homer in the fourth today was a mighty wallop which cleared Babe Ruth's head by such a margin that the "Bambino" never even looked up as it shot by. It landed almost half way up the right-field stands, well over toward center. Goslin's second four-bagger, with two on in the very next inning, which also was well hit, indicates the Goose is now on his way toward earning one of those bonuses in his contract.

STOCK PRICES CLIMB IRREGULARLY HIGHER

Many Early Advances Are Wiped Out by Short Selling at Close.

REVIVAL BY FALL SEEN

New York, May 26 (A.P.).—The mild revival of bullish enthusiasm which appeared late last week received a dash of cold water late in today's stock market.

Speculation for the rise was pressed forward with some vigor during the morning, but the market turned extremely dull after midday and short selling in the last hour wiped out most of the morning rise.

Closing prices were irregularly higher, but gains were largely narrow, although trading showed signs of acceleration during the morning, total sales were only 2,246,580 shares, or close to the low levels of last week.

Week-end market advices displayed considerable bullishness and attracted a moderate volume of buying orders at the opening, but news developments during the day were rather disheartening. With announcement that the exchange would be closed on Saturday, after the Memorial Day holiday Friday. Traders were disinclined to extend their holdings to carry over that period. Furthermore, reports from Washington that Congress would not adjourn until early July was a disappointment to some traders, who had hoped that the uncertainties of pending legislation would soon be lifted.

Rail Earnings Drop Heavily.

Railway net operating income reports for April began to appear in considerable numbers, and were less encouraging than the first few to come out last week. Aggregate net of the first fourteen roads to report shows a net decline of nearly 27 per cent from April of last year.

Although several economists and business observers are now looking for definite signs of improvement in August or September, banking surveys were not particularly cheeaful. The Continental Illinois Bank & Trust Co. stated in its latest review that factory employment may not return to normal before the end of the year. The Guaranty Trust Co., in its monthly review, said that continued unsettlement of commodity prices and a large volume of busines failures tended to retard recovery. It pointed out, however, that the disappointingly small spring expansion of business may be reflected in an unusually mild summer slump.

Corporate news included the announcement that Paramount-Publix had received sufficient tenders of stock of Famous Players Canadian to assure acquisition of control. Pan American Petroleum earned only $2.92 per common and class B share in 1929, against $3 in 1928.

Such shares as American Can, American Bank Note, Bullard, Columbian Carbon, Eastman Kodak, Johns Manville, Macy, Byers, Loew's and Westinghouse Electric closed up 2 or 3 points. United States Steel was in good demand for a time, rising about 2 points, but it retained only a fraction of its gain at the close.

Allied Chemical Advances.

Allied Chemical sold up 10 points in response to a Wall street analysis of the company stressing the prospects for its atmospheric nitrogen plants, but the gain was cut to 3½ points later. Peoples Gas sold up more than 11 points, in buying bases on the prospects of natural gas distribution, with rapid progress in the building of the pipe line from Texas.

J. I. Case sold up about 8 points, then slipped off 14 from the top. American Car & Foundry sagged 6 points to 52, the year's low, and American Locomotive declined 5 to the lowest price in years. The American Tobacco Issues, Coca Cola, Du Pont and International Harvester lost 2 to 4 points.

The commodity markets were largely steady to firm. Wheat futures surged up 1⅞ to 2⅞ cents, reflecting a decrease in the visible supply and reports of insect damage in Texas. Corn gained 1¼ to 1⅝ cents, and cotton closed steady.

Foreign exchanges showed little change, with sterling cables holding at $4.85 15-16. The Japanese yen was firm, but other far Easterns sagged in sympathy with silver.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, May 26 (A.P.).—Biggest export clearances of breadstuffs from North America that have been witnessed in a long while led to a sharp advance of wheat values today. There were also advices that the 1930 wheat crop of Italy is 60,000,000 bushels short of last year's total, and that in Saskatchewan widespread crop damage has resulted from high winds and soil drifting. Uneasiness regarding the outlook for the new winter wheat crop in Illinois was also a bullish factor.

Closing quotations on wheat were strong, 1¾ to 2⅞ cents a bushel higher than Saturday's finish. Corn closed ¼ to ⅝ of a cent up, oats ⅜ to ½ of a cent advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 20 cents.

Highest prices of the day in wheat, outdoing any reached heretofore since April 19, were attained in the late dealings helping to lift the market were estimates that today's wheat export business from Canada and the United States amounted to more than 1,000,000 bushels. Besides, the United States wheat visible supply showed 3,811,000 bushels decrease, and Liverpool quotations were higher than had been looked for, with reports at hand indicating persistent unfavorable weather in France.

Texas reports were received saying wheat harvest has started in some of the central counties of that State. Much more notice, however, was taken of dispatches asserting that in the Texas panhandle, where wheat production is usually on a large scale, the entire region south of Amarillo to Slatonville except a strip running northwest to southeast through Plainview, Floydada and Lackney, will hardly produce 8 bushels to the acre, even with ideal weather henceforth. Less favorable crop comments were also received both from Kansas and Nebraska. Exports of wheat and flour from North America during the last week were announced as aggregating 9,136,000 bushels against 7,177,000 bushels the week previous.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat strength. Corn was also responsive to relatively cool weather over the corn belt, and to need of replanting in parts of Illinois and Indiana.

Provisions advanced on account of scattered buying despite setbacks in the value of hogs.

STEADY UNDERTONE RULES BOND PRICES

Easier Tendencies Appear in Investment and Foreign Issues.

INDUSTRIALS QUITE DULL

New York, May 26 (A.P.).—A decline in time money rates to the low levels of the year failed to stir up much enthusiasm for bonds today. Although the undertone of the market was distinctly firm, prices had a tendency to seek lower ground and the day's volume of trading was only nominal.

Short-term loans were reduced to 3 per cent flat, a cut of ¼ of 1 per cent. A similar reduction was made in the other maturities, bringing the rates in sharp contrast with the 8¾ to 9½ per cent range prevailing a year ago.

United States Government were firm on extremely small turnovers. The strongest issue was the Treasury 4 which rallied 12-32 on a volume of only $52,000. Interest in the Liberties was negligible.

Rails Slump Slightly.

The series of unfavorable earnings statements by the railroads led to some liquidation of carrier company bonds, especially those of the adjustment income description. The St. Paul income 5s became the most active issue in the list, breaking 3⅜ net to the new 1930 low of 59⅝. The same road's general 4s lost slightly more and equaled the year's minimum, while the 5 per cent bond of 1975 sold off about 2½ points. Likewise to a new low. International Great Northern first 6s lost 1 point.

There was an easier tone to numerous investment issues, including Chesapeake & Ohio general 4½s, Louisville & Nashville 4½s, New Haven 4½s, Reading general 4½s and New York Central 4½s, although they were only nominal. Baltimore & Ohio 5s, Canadian Pacific 4s, Denver & Rio Grande Western 5s, Missouri, Kansas, Texas prior lien 5s and Union Pacific first 4s firmed.

Convertibles Prove Dull.

Convertibles lagged and the market missed the familiar activity of American Telephone 4½s, all but $14,000,000 of which had been converted at the close of business last Friday by holders desiring to exchange for stock-carrying rights. The revised conversion price on the few bonds outstanding is $166.88 and the market price, readjusting itself to this figure, gained more than 3 points in the face of weakness in the shares. Trading in the debenture involved only $36,000 par value.

Other stock privileges moved narrowly and net changes were fractional.

Utility mortgages were quiet and there was little or no activity in the industrials. American Cyanamid 5s rose more than a point and United States Rubber 5s gained 1 point.

The foreign list worked irregularly lower, but was exceptionally lethargic. Belgium and French listings held firm.

Prospective new bond offerings include a $16,000,000 issue of Kansas Gas & Electric Co. 50-year 4½s, to be sold around 93½, and a $3,000,000 issue of Intercontinents Power Co. 18-year convertible 6s.

U. S. RESERVE LOANS CLIMB $45,000,000

Weekly Data Show Drop of $85,000,000 in Net Demand Deposits.

GAS COMPANIES REPORT

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Increases for the week of $45,000,000 in loans and investments and $32,000,000 in time deposits and decreases of $85,000,000 in net demand deposits and $4,000,000 in borrowings from Federal Reserve banks were shown yesterday in the Federal Reserve Board's condition statement of weekly reporting member banks in leading cities as of May 21.

Loans on securities advanced $76,000,000 at all reporting banks while "all other" loans declined $76,000,000 at all of them. In holdings of United States Government securities, all reporting banks showed a net gain of $11,000,000, while holdings of other securities also increased $33,000,000 at all the institutions reporting.

April statements of operation of the Washington Gas Light Co. and the Georgetown Gas Light Co., were filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission. April net income of the Washington Gas Light Co. was $109,916.47, showing a gain in business over the month last year when it was $104,052.83. For the year to date, net income aggregated $381,113.80 as against $392,432.64 for the corresponding period in 1929.

The Georgetown company for last month revealed net corporate income amounting to $21,730.01, an advance from the month a year ago when it totaled $15,058.08. For the first four months of 1930, the company's net corporate income is $84,531.45, which is also an increase over the comparative period in 1929 when it totaled $58,745.34.

Ticker Club Membership.

Officials of the Ticker Club, of Washington, natural cooperative and protective association of local financial houses having membership in the New York Stock Exchange, expect to announce the club's original membership list today following a meeting of the board of governors which will decide what members shall be official representatives of the sixteen firms now composing the club.

The various brokerages have made known to the board what members they desire to represent them and these names will be acted upon at today's meeting. Indications are that the club will start with about 40 of the leading brokers of the city on the roster of the representatives of the interested firms.

A welcoming dinner, sponsored by seventeen of the leading citizens of Baltimore, will be given in honor of Col. William Cooper Procter and the officers of the Procter & Gamble Co. at the Chesapeake Club in Baltimore on Wednesday, June 11.

New Baltimore Plant.

This method is being employed to welcome Procter & Gamble to the South on the eve of the opening of their new $5,000,000 plant in Baltimore, which has been announced by a citizens' committee of which Waldo Newcomer, chairman of the executive committee of the Baltimore Trust Co., is chairman.

John E. Parker, of G. M.-P. Murphy & Co., has returned to the H street office of that firm after a visit of several days at Virginia Beach.

Col. Robert N. Harper, who is retiring as president of the District National Bank to become chairman of its board, is receiving flowers from his many friends.

J. Thilman Hendrick, chairman of the board of Lanston Monotype Co., is back in the city after a business visit to the company's London office. Harvey D. Best, Philadelphia, president of the company, accompanied him.

Mrs. Geraldine Johnson, who has been held at police headquarters since she was examined by a commission of physicians Saturday, who recommended that she be sent to an institution after it was shown that she had threatened to commit suicide, was released yesterday on $500 bond for her appearance before Justice W. S. Snow, of the juvenile and domestic relations court, when required. Police Capt. Campbell stated that a recommendation as to the disposition of her case would be made to the State board, which would direct the proper disposition.

It was shown at the hearing Saturday that Mrs. Johnson, who is but 17 years old, had left her home early in the morning and gone to the river, where she was standing when accosted by some men, to whom she spoke of the probability that they would soon fish her body out of the river. In the meantime, another man picked up two notes which she had written and dropped from her pocketbook, one addressed to her husband and the other to her mother, referring to her determination to end her life. When approached by Capt. Campbell, however, she appeared to have changed her mind, and readily accompanied him to police headquarters.

The appointment is made as a result of the military tournament held May 16, which was won by the George Mason High School in competition with the Alexandria and Washington-Lee High Schools, thus entitling the winning school to name the highest ranking cadet officer.

Public Help Asked In Fish Dynamiting

Sportsmen Must Give Aid to Wardens to Halt Practice, Is Warning.

Richmond, Va., May 26 (A.P.).—Dynamiting for fish in Virginia streams is threatening the ruin of many miles of fishing waters, Maj. A. Willis Robertson, chairman of the State Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries, said here today.

Unless the public helps the personnel of the commission in stopping this practice, Maj. Robertson said, fishermen will be cheated of much of their sport. This method of obtaining fish destroys at least 100 small fish of no use to any one for each adult fish taken, he said.

"The practice of dynamiting," Maj. Robertson said, "is getting entirely too prevalent throughout the State. Certainly no good citizen can condone dynamiting. It has been outlawed for years. The public can not escape responsibility merely by saying it is the duty of the game wardens to enforce the law. With hundreds of miles of fishing waters in every county it is impossible for one warden to be on every stream all the time. Neither can a game warden work both day and night."

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA was searching for carbon paper.

"What d'yuh want carbon paper for?" I asked, knowing she never files copies of her letters.

"Oh, just because——"

"Because, what? There must be a reason."

"Well, I have a reason."

"Well, I have no carbon paper."

"Oh, dear, oh, dear," she sighed. "Whattum I gonna do?"

"You're gonna do without carbon paper, as I see it—but what's the big idea?"

She grew a little leary. "Must you know?" she asked, and I sensed a secret.

* * * *

IN truth, I didn't have to know—but when she finally landed three pieces of carbon paper and still continued the hunt 'twas plain to see there was something up.

"With three sheets of carbon paper you can make copies of the Congressional Record," I told her—and then she gave herself away.

"I've got to have five more sheets—" she stammered, and tried to cover up.

"Five and three—that's eight! In other words, you want nine impressions. A chain letter, eh?"

Luella was flabbergasted.

"How'd you know?" she asked, bewildered.

It was so. I tried to argue her out of it to no avail.

"And you, my Luella, you are going to send out nine copies of a chain letter—adding more victims to a vicious habit. I'm surprised!"

She tried to excuse herself: "I know it sounds like a mean trick, but it says here I'll have seven years' bad luck unless this is sent out within 24 hours."

"Yeah? And what'll happen if you do send it out?"

SHE drew a ring around a date on the calendar. "In eight days," she exclaimed, "some great event will happen——"

"The passing of another week," I chided. "Who started this chain letter, in the first place——?"

Luella was fired with animation: "An officer in the American expeditionary forces, during the war," she replied, quick with the information.

"It must-a been some company cook, with nothing to do between meals——"

"But look at this list of names," she bragged.

* * * *

SURE enough, there they were: John J. Pershing to Mahatma Gandhi, Mahatma Gandhi to George Bernard Shaw, George Bernard Shaw to Calvin Coolidge, Calvin Coolidge to Henry L. Mencken, Henry L. Mencken to Bishop Cannon, Bishop Cannon to Jimmy Walker, Jimmy Walker to Andrew Mellon, Andrew Mellon to Jack Dempsey, Jack Dempsey to Ramsay MacDonald, Ramsay MacDonald to——

"Hold on there," I cried, "this is a man's chain letter. What right have you, of the fairer sex, to join a mob like that?"

Luella tapped the floor with her heel: "Don't be so impatient," she begged. "Mr. MacDonald sent his letter to Mary Pickford—and there's where I come in——"

"That's where who comes in?"

"Mary Pickford sent it to me, and——"

"Then I guess I'd better start one right away to Douglas Fairbanks, and eight other fellows——"

Before the night was over, we had 'em in the mail—eighteen chain letters, the Lord forgive us.

EXPERT AID SOUGHT ON SEWERAGE PLAN

Arlington County Chiefs to Employ Assistants for Kinnier on Job.

SCHOOL ISSUE APPROVED

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Assurance was given yesterday by Chairman Edward Duncan, of the County Board of Supervisors that the board proposed to secure the services of the most competent engineer available to plan for installation of the county-wide trunk line sewerage system which is propcsed in the bond issue on which the voters will vote on Monday, June 9.

"The proposed bond issue totals $2,173,089 and provides for a trunk line system which will take care of all the thickly settled sections of the county and also provides for the future, and the board will see to it that the work is planned by capable engineers and that all work will be done by contract," Chairman Duncan said.

"Of course, all preliminary plans and estimates have been prepared by County Engineer C. L. Kinnier, who will have an expert sewerage engineer to assist him. We take this step to give the citizens of the county assurance that we are determined that the system, should they, on election day, support the bond issue, shall be installed in accordance with most modern methods.

In conclusion Chairman Duncan said, "Within the next few days there will be made public a full statement from the board of supervisors covering every detail of the plans as proposed in carrying out provisions of the proposed bond issued."

With announcement of mass meetings, three of which are scheduled for tonight, County Engineer C. L. Kinnier and County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp are regarded as two of the busiest men in Arlington County.

The first meeting at which these two men will speak to discuss the sewer and school bond issues will be in the auditorium of the Patrick Henry Schoolhouse at Arlington. The meeting is being held under auspices of the Arlington Citizens Association.

From there they go to the mass meeting being held under the auspices of the Lyon Park Citizens Association in the Community House at Lyon Park.

The third meeting is being held in the auditorium of the Ballston Firemen's Hall and is under joint auspices of the Ballston Citizens Association and the Arlington District Council of Citizens Association.

The Woman's Club of Lyon Village announce a card party and dance tonight at the Potomac Boat Club at 8 o'clock.

More than 50 persons, the majority of whom were children, attended the special spring orthopedic clinic held at the Clarendon Health Center Sunday under auspices of the Arlington County Health Department. Dr. D. M. Faulkner, of the State Board of Health, conducted the clinic.

In addition to many patients from Arlington County there were a large number from Alexandria City and Prince William County.

Dr. Faulkner was assisted by Dr. P. M. Chichester, county health officer; Mrs. M. A. Rudasill, county nurse; Mrs. N. R. Davies, county school nurse, and Miss Pearl Griffith, who is in charge of the orthopedic work of the Visiting Nurse Society of the District of Columbia.

Dr. Chichester announced that the next clinic of this character in the county will be held early in the fall.

The monthly meeting of the Lyon Village Citizens Association will be held tomorrow night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Medley at 8 o'clock.

The association will complete plans for its annual carnival to be held the week of June 16.

Charles B. Green, local attorney, was admitted to the bar of the United States Supreme Court yesterday.

He was presented to the court by W. Thomas Phillips, member of the Arlington County Bar Association, of which Mr. Green is also a member.

With completion of the concrete shoulders along the Washington-Richmond Highway, work of laying the asphalt center was started yesterday by the contractor, John H. Olcott.

The highway is being widened to 32 feet from a point opposite the Southern Oxygen plant at South Washington and extending to the Arlington County line, at Four Mile Run. The work is being done by and under the supervision of the State Highway Department. It is hoped to have the work completed and highway opened to traffic by June 15.

The Ballston Council, No. 221, Junior Order United American Mechanics, will meet tomorrow night in the Ballston Firemen's Hall at 8 o'clock.

Charged with wreckless driving, D. C. Bean, H. David Lockling, and J. W. Pobst were each fined $14.25, including costs, by Police Judge Harry R. Thomas in police court yesterday.

Jesse A. Rosson, on a similar charge, forfeited the sum of $15 in police court.

Arrangements are being completed for the annual Confederate memorial exercises to be held in the rooms of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce the evening of June 3 by Arlington Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, it was announced by the committee last night.

Representative R. Walton Moore has been invited as the principal speaker.

Unanimous indorsement of the $640,000 proposed school bond issue on which the voters of Arlington County will vote on Monday, June 9, was given by the Aurora Heights Citizens Association at its meeting held in the James Monroe Schoolhouse last night.

Addressing the meeting, Fletcher Kemp, county school superintendent, reviewed his thirteen years in office and pointed out that when he came to Arlington County there were enrolled in the schools 2,000 pupils, with a total of 70 teachers. Today there are more than 5,000 pupils, with a total of 121 teachers, he declared.

The value of county school property today amounts to $1,800,000, with bonds outstanding amounting to $662,000 and short-term loans of $225,000, he said.

Mr. Kemp explained that $225,000 of the proposed bond issue will be used to retire that amount of short-term loans and that the remainder of $415,000 will be used to construct 58 additional call rooms at a number of the county schools.

He pointed out that at the present time there are 31 pupils in classrooms at the Washington-Lee High School, and if continued there was danger that the State would not continue to credit the school as a standard high school.

"Give Arlington County the proper school facilities. Nothing will aid its development more than that," he said.

"With the general depression in business throughout the county, now is the time for the Federal Government, the State and local governments to step out and start construction work and thereby put money into circulation. It is only a sound business policy," he said.

In conclusion, Mr. Kemp said: "Go to the polls Monday, June 9, and support the school bond issue and give to the youth of Arlington County the education facilities to which it is justly entitled."

BATTLE FLEET PUTS OUT THROUGH CAPES

SHIPS WILL GO TO WEST

Norfolk, Va., May 24 (A.P.).—With the U. S. S. California, flagship of Rear Admiral Schofield, steaming in the van, the battle fleet, based in Hampton Roads since Tuesday, when it was reviewed by President Hoover on the Southern drill grounds, steamed through the Virginia Capes today and turned southward en route to its home station on the West Coast. The U. S. S. Saratoga, giant airplane carrier and flagship of the commander in chief of the aircraft squadrons of the fleet, and battleship division two, composed of the battleships Maryland, Nevada and Oklahoma, did not accompany the fleet southward, however.

The Saratoga, after taking aboard her planes just off the Virginia Capes, turned back to cast anchor in the roadstead, where she is scheduled to remain until Sunday or Monday of next week. The change of schedule was made last night in order to permit the Saratoga's planes taking part in the Curtiss Seaplane Trophy races to be held at Anacostia, D. C., Friday or Saturday of this week.

The races were scheduled for last Saturday and the planes from the Saratoga and her sister ship, the Lexington, now undergoing overhaul and inspection at the Norfolk Navy Yard, went to Washington to take part in the air maneuvers. The races had to be called off, however, on account of inclement weather.

Battleship division two is to remain in Hampton Roads until the latter part of this week, awaiting the arrival of Rear Admiral J. R. P. Pringle, who will take over the command of the division with the Maryland as his flagship. Admiral Pringle comes to this division from the post of president of the Naval War College at Newport.

In addition to the California, which is commanded by Capt. H. E. Lackey, formerly commanding officer of the Hampton Roads Naval Training Station, the other vessels of the fleet which moved out of Hampton Roads this morning were the battleships West Virginia, Colorado, Tennessee and New Mexico, the airplane carrier Lexington, the destroyers Litchfield, Decatur, Pruett, Noa, Hulbert, William B. Preston, the hospital ship Relief, the supply ship Procyon, the tanker Cuyama, the tenders Tern, Brant and Patridge, the submarine tender Argonne, and the submarines V-2 and V-3.

WIFE OF MINISTER CHARGES CRUELTY

Rev. P. E. Heimer, Frederick Clergyman, Accused in Divorce Suit.

CROWDS ATTEND TRIAL

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., May 26.—Before a crowd that filled the courtroom to overflowing, including a large number of women, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Heimer testified today that her husband, the Rev. Dr. Peter E. Heimer, for seventeen years pastor of the Thurmont Reformed Church, had treated her with cruelty, had appropriated to his own use about $10,000 she inherited from her parents, and had ordered her to get out of their home. Mrs. Heimer was the first of a number of witnesses in her suit for divorce with alimony and council fees.

She testified that she and her husband were married about 37 years ago and had lived in Thurmont for 17 years, where he was pastor of Thurmont Church. She said he treated her badly for ten years, but the real trouble started about six years ago when he took over her money and refused to pay her any of the income.

She added that when she returned home from a lodge meeting last summer she found doors locked and had to climb in a window. On another occasion, she said, he threatened to use a butcher knife on her and on numerous occasions declared he would kill her.

Dr. Morris A. Birely testified that he treated Mrs. Heimer for bruises on her arms and hip. Mrs. Heimer told the physician that the bruises were inflicted by her husband.

Dr. Heimer has filed a cross bill for an absolute divorce.

He alleges that his wife is desirous of making a career and had treated him with great cruelty. He said his wife left home while he was on his vacation last summer, taking with her his insurance policies, church papars and other personal effects.

Mrs. Heimer was on the witness stand forsabout six hours and testified in a calm and unperturbed manner. Her husband, in clerical garb, occupied a chair by the side of his counsel within touching distance of wife and daughter, the latter a witness for her mother.

The case will be resumed tomorrow and will likely continue until Wednesday. About a dozen witnesses have been summoned to testify for Dr. Heimer.

STREET CAR FARES RECORD HUGE DROP

Loss of 10,000,000 Revenue Passengers Yearly Seen at Present Rate.

TAXI COMPETITION FELT

Loss of revenue passengers on street car lines has assumed alarming proportions since the beginning of the operation of the 35-cent flat rate taxicab services throughout the city, according to figures filed with the Public Utilities Commission by street car companies.

Since February 1 street car lines have lost 1,700,000 pay passengers, which would mean, when translated into annual figures, with due allowance for special conditions, a loss of 10,000,000 revenue passengers a year to car companies which are intent on their fight to boost street car fares to 10 cents cash with four tokens for 30 cents.

Figures for the three months show that the loss in passengers was 175,000 in February, 1,062,000 in March and 518,000 in April, as compared with the same months last year. Somewhere between the losses of March and April is the true loss, because of the fact that Easter fell in March last year and in April this year, and the Easter season always means large numbers of visitors and increased patronage for the street car lines.

Despite the fact that street car passengers have decreased annually for the last several years, at hearings before the Public Utilities Commission on higher street car fare car company executives said they hoped that the bottom had been reached. But, though none would attempt to say definitely what has caused the suddenly accelerated rate of decrease, it is regarded as significant that the falling off has been augmented since reduction of taxicab fares.
